REED WILL NOT HAMPER COURSE OF PRESIDENT TOWARD MEXICO

"No War Unless Forced on Us by Violation of Rights of U. S." Missourian Tells Senate in Speech

BATTERS HEFLIN ON RELIGIOUS ISSUE

Walsh of Massachusetts Protests Against Insinuation Against Loyalty of Catholics.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Deploring what he termed intemperate speeches and articles on the Mexican situation, Senator Reed of Missouri declared today in the Senate that he did not propose to interfere with the efforts of President Coolidge to protect the interests of the United States "until or unless it becomes manifest he is pursuing a dangerous course."

"I do not want to weaken his hand," Senator Reed declared, as crowds in the galleries leaned forward to catch his every expression.

"I do not believe we are in any danger of war with Mexico unless it is stirred up by intemperate speeches or intemperate articles in the newspapers."

Reed spoke after there had been a fiery exchange between Senators Bruce (Dem.), Maryland, and Heflin (Dem.), Alabama, who renewed his attack on the Knights of Columbus and reiterated that they were seeking to involve this country in war with Mexico.

Reed joined with the Marylander in asserting that no Catholic had asked him to urge that the United States stir up a religious dispute or to foment war in Mexico. At the outset he declared he was reared in the Presbyterian Church.

"My ancestors signed the covenant of that creed," he said, "neither, sir, am I a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

Reed in his brief for Mr. Coolidge and for his subordinates," the Missourian continued, "But in the present situation, which now presents itself, I do not propose to interfere with the efforts of the executive to protect the interests of the United States, until or unless it becomes manifest he is pursuing a dangerous course.

"Mexico has not in all respects kept faith with us and I should like to see her keep faith. I am willing to give the administration a chance to work that problem out.

No War Unless Forced On Us.

"There's not going to be any war with Mexico unless Mexico forces that war by violating the rights of the United States.

"Calvin Coolidge is not going to march an army down into Mexico over a controversy involving religion. No one would let him do it if he wanted to."

Reed decried the "shameful appeal" to religious prejudices in the Mexican situation.

"It is shameful, no matter by whom made or where made," he said. "Catholic and Protestant, Jew and Gentile signed the Declaration of Independence—and since have died together on every field of battle."

The Monroe doctrine, Reed went on, imposed an obligation upon the United States in the present Mexican situation.

"Other nations have interests in these countries, and have a right to protect those interests if we do not see to it that they are protected.

"And if other nations are forced to go in, then a war may come, which might be a real war. Our life is very delicate."

"Give me the diameter of a man's intelligence, and I will define the circumference of his utterance," Reed said.

Hot Shot for Heflin.

Heflin here interrupted the Missouri Senator, and denied he had precipitated the religious issue.

"You brought it on the floor of the Senate," Reed shouted. "Your guns rolled and rumbled from this chamber until the old water logs of the Potomac bobbed up and down in the river."

"Let the Senator go ahead," Heflin shouted. "I shall have something to say when he finishes."

"Oh, I know you will," Reed fired back. "And the rivers will run on and on, days without end."

Heflin replied he was motivated by no impulse other than his sincere opposition to war when he

FORMER GOV. FRANCIS' FUNERAL AT OLD HOME IS LARGELY ATTENDED

Old Associates in Business, Politics and Civic Affairs at Brief, Simple Ceremonies — City and State Represented.

The men who worked with David Rowland Francis in business, in politics and in public affairs paid their final tribute to the former Mayor, Governor, Cabinet member, World's Fair president and Ambassador at his funeral in the Francis residence, at Maryland and Newstead avenues, this morning.

Not all the coworkers of Gov. Francis were there. Of the 118 World's Fair directors, 31 remain, in the twenty-third year after the exposition's close. At the funerals of many of the others, Gov. Francis has headed the yearly lossing directorate group. Some of the 31 now live outside St. Louis and others were kept at home by illness or bad weather, or were out of the city, so that only 10 of the directors were present. They were Breckinridge Jones, Nicholas M. eHil, Festus J. Wade, A. L. Shapleigh, C. F. Blanke, Benjamin McKeen, George D. Markham, Rolla Wells, Thomas H. Francis and Colins Thompson, the last two Gov. Francis' brother and his former private secretary.

Of those who knew him as the "boy Mayor" and as Governor before his fortieth birthday, even fewer survive. But the snowy-haired Bell was there, and Edward A. Noonan, who sought the nomination for Mayor when Francis got it, and who was his successor in that office. P. P. Connor, a veteran Merchants' Exchange member, carried his recollections even farther back, and told of knowing the young "Dave" as a clerk for his uncle, D. P. Rowland.

It was a gathering of middle-aged and old men, with young men noticeably in the minority, and with a scattering of women, that filled the reception hall, parlor and library of the fine old house, long a show place of St. Louis, and the home of the Francis family until Gov. Francis' departure for his Russian diplomatic post in 1916.

House Filled With Flowers.

The body of Gov. Francis was taken to the house at 7:30 from his recent home at 6464 Ellenwood avenue, where he died Saturday evening, at the age of 76. An hour later, automobiles began to enter the gate on Newstead avenue, and to leave their passengers at the doorway where presidents and foreign potentates were received in bygone days.

Since the old residence was in its heyday, tall apartments have sprung up to the north, and the New Cathedral has reared its square back toward the house. But the fenced space has not been invaded, and those who rode up to the house had, through a blurring atmosphere, a vista such as few homes in the city can any longer present.

Within, the pillared hallway was hung with wreath upon wreath of roses and floral coverings hid the railings of the central staircase. To the left, in the long south parlor, the roses were mingled with lilies, and at the west end of the room stood the casket, a cross-shaped design of lilies forming the cover of its lower portion.

Chairs had been placed in the parlor and in the library, across the hallway, and here those who came to pay their respects, were seated as they entered. Another room, west of the library, was reserved for the more than 100 honorary pallbearers.

The casket was open, and many took the opportunity for a last look at the distinguished St. Louisan, whose career had fulfilled literally the scriptural proverb, "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings." Others preferred to remember him as they had known him before his long illness.

Bankers, lawyers, corporation heads and men of affairs soon filled the room reserved for the honorary group. The State Government was represented by a delegation of three Senators and three Representatives, designated by the Assembly yesterday. E. A. Noonan, Rolla Wells and Henry W. Kiel, successors in the office of Mayor, and former Govs. Major and Gardner appeared. The State University was represented by members of the board of curators, and by President Brooks and former President Hill.

Old Associates Present.

Directors and former presidents of the Merchants' Exchange, the presidency of which was Mr. Francis' first public office, formed a group which tended to intermingle with that of the World's Fair directors.

No special group was present to commemorate the last chapter of his public career, his service as wartime Ambassador to Russia. A message received yesterday from a Red Cross officer, who witnessed his work there, declared that Gov. Francis "literally worked himself

ALCOHOL A MOST EXCELLENT DRUG, SAYS NOTED SURGEON

Dr. G. D. Stewart Tells Colleagues He Wishes Supreme Court Could Be Convinced of Fact.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Addressing the annual banquet of the American College of Surgeons last night, Dr. George David Stewart, president-elect, declared alcohol was a most excellent drug and he wished that the Justices of the Supreme Court could be made to believe so.

"Russia went dry in 1915," he said, "and then went crazy in 1917."

He added that Congress, in passing the eighteenth amendment, should have passed a law to prevent the people from eating certain kinds of food.

Dr. Charles H. Mayo said he favored prohibition, but was "no bigot."

The Rev. C. B. Moulinier, president of the Catholic Hospital Association, told the surgeons that he had "unconsciously" broken the prohibition law, but only on a physician's prescription.

MAD CARLOTTA NEAR DEATH, KING ALBERT AT BEDSIDE

Widow of Maximilian of Mexico May Breathe Last Any Moment, Doctors Say.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 18.—Empress Carlotta, 86-year-old widow of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico, is dying, the influenza from which she has suffered for several days having developed into pneumonia. Attending physicians, after a consultation, announced that death might come at any moment.

Carlotta hardly touched food in the last five days. She recognized those about her, but was unable to speak. King Albert, learning that his aunt could not live throughout the day, hurried to her bedside.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon Carlotta was unconscious and her breathing was so faint as to be hardly distinguishable.

Coolidge Buys Picture for 25 Cents

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. — A lithograph of "Old Ironsides," which cost three cents, was sold to President Coolidge today by Secretary Wilbur, assisted by Admiral Eberle, for 25 cents. It was the first of 4,000,000 pictures which will be put on the market to save the old frigate. School children and other small contributors already have given about $270,000.

SHOT TO DEATH IN PLUCKY FIGHT WITH HOLDUP MAN

Morris Steinbach, Proprietor of Oil Filling Station, Although Fatally Wounded, Disarms Robber.

VICTIM THE FATHER OF FIVE CHILDREN

Revolver and Cap Only Clews to Murderer Described as Dark Complexioned and About 19.

Shot in the face and body last night in a plucky fight with a holdup man, Morris Steinback, 47-year-old filling station proprietor of 5073 Enright avenue, died of his wounds at City Hospital at 6:20 a. m. today while his wife and five children were gathered at his bedside.

Steinback went down defending his filling station on the northeast corner of Twenty-third and Carr streets from a holdup man who entered the place at 7:40 o'clock and disguised his purpose by asking for a headlight bulb.

"As I turned to get the bulb he put a revolver against my back and told me to hold up my hands," Steinback told Police Sergeant James O'Gorman on the way to the hospital. "I whirled and grabbed at him. He stepped back and fired twice."

Hit by Two Bullets.

One bullet struck Steinback in the mouth, piercing his head. Another struck him in the left side. Undaunted he grappled again with the robber and wrested his revolver from him. In the struggle Steinback fell to the floor, he told Sergt. O'Gorman, and the robber kicked him in the head.

Steinback got to his feet as the robber fled and, running to the door, fired two shots after him. He turned back into his station and collapsed a few minutes before Sergt. O'Gorman arrived. The holdup man failed to get the $50 that was in the cash register.

For the police he described his assailant as about 19 years old, five feet four inches tall and dark hair and complexion. Apparently the robber was injured in the fight, perhaps by a blow struck by Steinback with the revolver, for a gray cap which he abandoned in flight was bloodstained on the inside.

It was just a month before, on Dec. 17, that one of Steinback's sons was held up at the filling station and robbed by two men. On the following night Detectives Kilfoy and Rowland killed a filling station robber at Leffingwell avenue and Washington boulevard. Later the robber's companion, Martin Jones, admitted they were the men who had robbed Steinback's station.

UPPER MISSISSIPPI BARGE PLANS GET NEW SUPPORT

Fargo, N. D., and Zion, Ill., Ask Consideration From Interstate Commerce Commission.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Two additional petitions affecting the projected barge service on the upper Mississippi River were presented today to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Fargo Commercial Club asked the commission to see that the barge service rates were arranged with consideration for Fargo necessities, while the city of Zion, Ill., and Wilbur Glenn Volkwa, as operator of Zion business institutions, asked that joint rates over the line be extended to that city.

The Inland Waterways Corporation, which proposes to operate barges from St. Louis to St. Paul, beginning next spring, has a petition before the commission to force railroads to make joint rates for rail and water transportation over the barge line.

ANTI-EVOLUTION MEASURE GIVES STATE HOUSE A LAUGH

McDaniel and Jackson Sponsor Bill to Bar Darwinian Theory From Schools.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18.—An anti-evolution bill, introduced into the House of Representatives today, was greeted with laughter when read.

Introduced by Representatives McDaniel of McDonald County and Jackson of Oregon County, the bill seeks to prohibit "the teaching of any theory or hypothesis in regard to the origin of life on this planet in the public schools that is contradictory of the divine account of creation as set forth in the first and second chapters of Genesis in the Holy Bible."

A fine of from $50 to $100 and revocation of the teacher's permit to teach is provided.

RECEIVER NAMED IN FEDERAL COURT FOR JONES' FIRM

ADDITIONAL FRAUDS REPORTED FOUND

Judge Faris Appoints Hans Wulff With Power to Operate Plant for Two Weks Only.

With the appointment of Hans Wulff, an attorney, as receiver for the David Jones Co., in the United States District Court today, the first step was taken to determine how much of the $2,726,000 liabilities of "Purity Jones," whose one-man laundry machinery concern collapsed yesterday under the weight of $1,300,000 frauds, will be lost to friends, customers, banks and finance corporations. Discoveries of additional frauds were reported, but creditors withheld information as to details.

As yet no criminal action has been taken against Jones, but defrauded creditors intend to complain to State and Federal authorities. Investigators for the 13 banks and finance corporations, which hold Jones' paper for $2,326,000 have charged that Jones has violated both State and Federal statutes.

His admitted action in selling duplicate notes given to him by some of his laundrymen customers in the Middle West and South comes under the State statutes against swindle and obtaining credit by false pretenses. Creditors have learned, moreover, that in his note deals with out-of-town finance corporations he sent fraudulently duplicated paper through the mails. There is a possibility that action will be brought against him under the Federal statute against using the mails to defraud.

$1,300,000 in Fraudulent Paper.

Exclusive publication in yesterday's Home Edition of the Post-Dispatch that Jones' company had $2,326,000 in paper outstanding with $400,000 unsecured claims was followed immediately by two actions in involuntary bankruptcy against him. The Post-Dispatch related how three St. Louis banks and five finance corporations held $1,300,000 of David Jones Company paper, while the holdings of five out-of-town financial houses brought the total to $2,326,000. Of this sum, it was pointed out, $1,200,000 had proved fraudulent paper. It is estimated that of the total liabilities not more than half will be realized through liquidation. The total loss from the Jones failure was set by one creditor at $1,600,000.

Federal Judge Faris, in making the appointment of Wulff today, overruled the suggestions of attorneys representing various creditors that Frank B. Nall or Will Gentry be appointed. "I have no patience with this thing of getting off in a corner and agreeing to the appointment of a receiver," the Judge remarked.

He also frowned on the suggestion that the David Jones plant at 5249 Natural Bridge road be operated under the receivership longer than two weeks. In giving permission for a two weeks' operation in order to complete machines now under construction, Judge Farl remarked that if was his experience that such operation did not pay. He said he could recall of only one bankupt firm which had ever made a profit under a receivership, while many others had lost money.

The seeming reluctance of Jones' dupes to complain against him to the prosecuting authorities has been explained by a creditor as sound business judgment. The affairs of the David Jones Co., and its subsidiary, the Lloyd Real Estate & Insurance Agency Co., are in such a muddled shape that only Jones can explain the kinks. If he is charged under a warrant or by indictment with his frauds, he would be obliged to stop talking for his own protection. The creditors want his help in explaining matters, and at a meeting of secured creditors yesterday afternoon no one did anything more than to remark, "Jones ought to be punished for this."

Those in charge of the liquidation expect to have great difficulty in sorting out the legitimate deals from the fraudulent ones. Jones' assets are fortunately involved in assignments, postings of collateral, indorsements and liens. He had $900,000 in life insurance, a home and other property.

Investigation has disclosed, however, that he has assigned the life insurance, or most of it, to creditors and five children were gathered at his bedside.

'Purity' Jones, Ex-Barkeeper, Aimed at Millions in Business Built Up on Paper and Bluff

High-Pressure Tactics Sold Himself and His Soap to Hosts of Admiring Laundry Men.

He called himself "Purity Jones' in the bombastic advertisements of the David Jones Co., and that has caused the men who trusted him to make ironic jokes about how their money went to Davey Jones' locker.

Purity Jones! There was summed up the sweet and abiding faith which Jones' creditors and customers were asked to clutch to their hearts in place of the cash settlements they should have got. Good old Davey Jones, a real swell fellow—that was Jones all over.

His dupes are wondering today how much his $1,200,0000 swindle will cost them. Facing bankruptcy with libilities of $2,726,000 and indictments for fraud with evidence of note duplications and fake mortgages against him, even now some of the old Jones magic survives.

Creditors Can Hardly Believe It.

Some creditors cannot believe Jones did it. A few say that if they had more money they would lend it to Jones. Several have refused to state the amount of their losses, standing by "Purity Jones" until the last duplicated note is proven false.

One creditor on the unsecured list, to whom Jones owed $70,000 last month, said he would grant him another month's credit, despite the fact that this creditor had been told of Jones' fraudulent dealings. The creditor seemed certain that the financial wizardry of Jones would somehow pull him out of his difficulties.

But the majority told Post-Dispatch reporters that they realized the David Jones Co. had crashed and how Jones had betrayed their confidence in him. Many sad stories will be told when the play "What Happened to Jones," is enacted in bankruptcy court.

Jones had a high credit rating, having been listed in Dun's commercial report as B-plus-1, which meant that credit extended to him up to $500,000 was justified.

"How did he do it?" some creditors and customers are asking. There was magic in Jones. He bore the reputation of go-getter, good fellow; he was a high-powered salesman. Jones laughed and joked. Jones hustled. Jones was always in a hurry. He jabbed a cigarette and slapped a back and pouff!—Jones was out the door.

Customers looked after him and said to themselves: "There's a businessman." A striking character, Jones, with something impressive in his heavy-set frame and swarthy countenance.

Jones was a self-made man, and he let one see he was working very hard making himself before one's very eyes. About 15 years ago Jones ran a saloon on the South Side. It did not pay very well so he got a job as a soap salesman for Armour & Co. One friend said he would bet Jones made $20,000 a year as a soap salesman.

Sold Himself With His Soap.

All the time he was selling soap Jones was making friends among laundrymen. It is of record that he made 187 friends. These 187 laundrymen liked Jones so well that when he went into business for himself in 1918 under the name of the David Jones Brokerage and Supply Co., with the basement of his home as his office, they became his customers. When, later, he organized the David Jones Co. in a little repair shop on Florissant avenue near Bellefontaine Cemetery, his laundrymen friends stood by him. They bought Jones' washing machines and centrifugal clothes driers.

$2500 FEE OF BEN C. HYDE ATTACKED IN STATE SENATE

State Superintendent of Insurance Got Money for Two Days' Work in His Official Capacity.

PASSED ON MERGER OF TWO COMPANIES

Resolution Calls on Officer for Detailed Statement of Amounts Received by Him During His Term.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18.—A fee of $2500 received privately by Ben C. Hyde, State Superintendent of Insurance, and brother of former Gov. Hyde, from the International Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis for serving two days in an official capacity in passing on a merger of the International with the Standard Life of Decatur, Ill., was the basis of a resolution offered in the Senate today by Senator Haymes of Springfield, chairman of the Committee on Insurance, asking for an accounting from Hyde. The resolution later was adopted.

Senator Haymes said the resolution probably would have a hearing upon the confirmation of Hyde for a second term, which is pending before the Insurance Committee, and that it undoubtedly would result in an amendment to the law removing an ambiguity under which such fees have been retained by insurance superintendents, instead of being turned in to the treasury.

Haymes, in his resolution, called upon Hyde to furnish to the Senate a detailed statement showing the names of all insurance companies which have consolidated or merged during the five years Hyde has been in office and the compensation paid by the companies to Hyde for passing upon the applications for approval of the mergers.

Basis of Action.

In offering the resolution he acted upon information derived from photostatic copies of International Life records, including cashier's memoranda and canceled checks and drafts, the particular documents before him revealing an unusual business procedure in paying out funds of the company.

In November, 1924, the International Life, which had come under the same ownership as the Standard Life of Decatur, sought a consolidation of the International to reinsure the risks of the Standard. Under the Missouri statute for such a consolidation to become effective the approval of the Missouri superintendent and the superintendents of two other states is required.

Accordingly, the records in Senator Haymes's possession show Hyde called in Clifford, Ireland, then Director of Trade and Commerce of Illinois; Frank N. Julian, Insurance Commissioner of Alabama, and Bruce T. Bullion, Insurance Commissioner of Arkansas. They sat as a commission to hear the application of the International, and, after sitting for two days, Nov. 20 and 21, they approved the reinsurance contract and the merger. Each received $2500 from the International.

Chief Questions Involved.

One of the principal questions involved in the hearing was the legality of the procedure by which the group then in control of the International, which included J. R. Paisley, then president of the company; David W. Hill, now president, and John M. Atkinson, general counsel, acquired control of the company.

According to Haymes's information, approximately 40 per cent of the stock of the International was owned by the International Co. of St. Louis, a holding company, the 40 per cent constituting real control, as the remainder of the stock was rather widely distributed. Haymes has a copy of a confidential report of W. W. Herndon, a special examiner for the Kansas Insurance department, which contains Herndon's version of the special financing by which some of the International Insurance stock was obtained.

"The present management," Herndon's report states, "gained control of the International Life Insurance Co. and the International Holding Corporation on May 8 1924. On the same day the life insurance company made a $65[illegible],000 loan to the holding corpora

LAUSANNE TREATY WITH TURKEY IS BEATEN IN SENATE

Borah and Supporters of Ratification Fail to Muster the Necessary Two-Thirds Vote.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The Senate today refused to ratify the Lausanne treaty with Turkey.

Supporters of the pact, led by Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee, failed to muster the necessary two-thirds vote needed for ratification when the issue was decided at an executive session.

The treaty would have re-established diplomatic and commercial relations with Turkey.

FORD ASCRIBES MEXICAN TROUBLE TO FINANCIERS

"They Want to Fight for Same Reason We Fought in Cuba—to Give Them Control."

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—The Boston Herald today quotes Henry Ford as saying that talk of war with Mexico is due to the fact that "some financier wants something in Mexico," but that the idea is "ridiculous."

"They are talking war because some financier wants something in Mexico," Ford said. "They will never get it because the public is too intelligent and well posted to stand for it. They want to fight for the same reason that we fought in Cuba, to give the financiers control—in this case, control of Mexico.

"I don't think they will be able to pull the wool over the President's eyes. They won't catch him asleep. Just when they think they have him they will find that they haven't. It's ridiculous, anyway. Anything can be handled without war.

"I know very well, and I'm not egotistical, but the Ford Motor Co. could go into Mexico and develop the resources of that country without causing any hard feelings among the Mexicans. The thing to do is to give them industry."

COOLIDGE STANDS PAT ON POSITION IN LATIN-AMERICA

Shall Americans' Property in Mexico Be Confiscated Without Payment? He Asks.

REPEATS VIEW ON MONROE DOCTRINE

Plea of European Countries to Protect Nationals, He Says, Influenced Action in Nicarague.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—While the Senate and House were renewing the debate today on the Mexican-Nicaraguan embroglio the White House took occasion again to outline the attitude of the administration toward Mexico's new land and oil regulations.

It was explained that President Coolidge regarded the controversy between the United States and Mexico over oil and land laws as boiled down to the single question: "Shall the property of American citizens in Mexico be confiscated or taken without being paid for?"

Mr. Coolidge feels that every step taken in his decision in regard to the new Mexican laws has been taken with that in mind and for the purpose of preventing confiscation.

So far as Nicaragua is concerned the President feels that the Monroe doctrine has a specific place in connection with the administration's policy. In view of the fact that other Powers do not send forces into Central or South American countries to protect their own nationals and their interests, it is the custom to notify the United States when they consider their nationals in jeopardy in order that the Washington Government may first determine, in the light of the Monroe doctrine, what action it cares to take.

In the case of Nicaragua, two European countries informed the Washington Government fears were entertained for their nationals in Nicaragua and the President took the view that this aspect of the question could not be disregarded.

The President looks upon the question of mediation in the dispute between the Nicaraguan factions as very largely a domestic question in Nicaragua. His chief concern for the United States is that tranquility should be restored in Nicaragua as soon as possible.

As the peace proposals made by President Diaz of Nicaragua have not come to the White House in any official way, Mr. Coolidge has not undertaken to pass judgment upon them.

tion, taking as collateral 163,000 shares (par value $1) of the stock of the Standard Life Insurance Co. On this date the holding corporation borrowed $215,000 from the Standard Life Insurance Co. and on July 14, another $100,000 a total of $415,000, taking as collateral 6360 shares (par value $25) of stock of the International Life Insurance Co.

Officers of Firms the Same.

"The money received from these loans was used to buy the stockholding of the former management. The officers of the two life insurance companies and the holding corporation were the same."

Prior to the hearing, the Missouri insurance department had obtained an opinion from the office of the Attorney-General as to the legality of this means of financing the purchase of the company. The opinion of the Attorney-General was that two corporations with the same officers and directors could have that sort of business relationship providing the purpose of the transaction was legitimate.

The opinion, written by Assistant Attorney-General Frank, and bearing the approval of Attorney-General (late Supreme Judge) Otto concluded with this statement:

"It is the opinion of this department that transactions or dealings between the International Co. of St. Louis, a Delaware corporation, and the International Life Insurance Co., Missouri corporation, are neither illegal nor void on the sole ground of partial unity of personnel in directors or stockholders, but voidable only and if challenged in a court of equity they would be viewed with a critical eye and subjected to the severest judicial scrutiny and in the absence of fraud ... fairness would be upheld."

Has Copies of the Checks.

This information was obtained by Senator Haynes in connection with the detail of the method by which Hyde and the other commissioners received compensation for their services in officially acting on the merger. Haynes has copies of the checks which were passed. The involved method used was this:

The International Life Insurance Co. drew two checks upon its account in the National City Bank in St. Louis, payable to the bank ..., for $7000 and one for $5000. For this $12,000 the company received

CENTER OF INQUIRY INTO INSURANCE FEE

New York Exchange and cashiers' checks, four for $2500 each and one for $2000, payable to J. R. Paisley, president of the company. Paisley indorsed the checks and either delivered them to the insurance commissioners, or, in one instance, cashed one and delivered the cash.

The check, which went to Superintendent Hyde, of which Haymes has a copy, was not indorsed by Hyde but was cleared by him through a small bank in Northwest Missouri, of which a relative of Hyde was president and in which the Hyde family has large holdings.

Cleared by Small Bank.

Above the indorsement of Paisley on the back of this check appears in typewriting "Pay to order of Farmers' State Bank." Below the indorsement is the stamp of the bank, reading: "Pay to the order of any bank or banker November 24, 1924. Farmers' State Bank, Princeton, Mo.," and the further banker's indorsement; "Pay National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis, Mo., or order, November 26 1924. First National Bank, Kansas City, Mo."

Incontrast wit hthe method by which the Hyde check was cleared the copies of the checks given Ireland and Julian show they were put through banks in the regular way and bear their indorsements.

The photostatistic records in Haymes' custody contain this memorandum from the treasurer's office of the International Life Co.:

"12-4 10,000 rein. com. (reinsurance commission) Ill. Mo Ala Ark. This was paid as expense in full of commissions. Ck 5,000, cash 7,000, National City Bank 10,000, to its commissions, 2,000 to J C Rafferty actuary 12,000."

Inquiry at the State Insurance Department and an examination of the records there this morning resulted in no finding that the $2500 fee received by Hyde had been transmitted to the State Treasury.

The only transmittal shown in connection with the International-Standard merger was $6 for four certified copies of the order approving it. Superintendent Hyde was not in the office. E. G. McGee, a special examiner of the department, said that, in his opinion, the Insurance Superintendent received no fees in connection with hearings on mergers or reinsurance contracts.

Statement of Examiner.

"The Superintendent receives only his expenses," McGee said. "In the many years I have been connected with the department I have never known any such fees to be paid into the State and never have known of any such fees being received by the superintendent."

J. A. Rathbone, deputy superintendent, also expressed the opinion that the superintendent was not entitled to fees in such matters. He said he had no knowledge and never heard of a fee being paid in the International case.

Admits Retaining Fee.

Superintendent Hyde, reached by telephone at Kansas City, said he received the $2500 fee for approving the contract between the International Life Insurance Co. and the Standard Life, and contended he was entitled to retain the fee. He said he had sat in half a dozen such hearings while he had been State Insurance Superintendent and had kept the fees, but said he could not recall the total received.

Hyde said the State Insurance Commissioners of Illinois, Arkansas, Alabama and Missouri sat in the hearings on the International Life and Standard Life contract and that each of them received a fee of $2500 for their services. Hyde declared the negotiations extended over nearly a year and that considerable work was done by the various State departments in investigating the proposal. He said he could not recall how many days he personally devoted to the case, or how long he sat in the hearings.

"So far as I know, the superintendents always have retained the fees in such cases, and each of them in Missouri has had several such cases during his term," Hyde said. "Our law permits these fees to be retained and I believe there is a court decision somewhere on such a case."

Hyde said he did not recall the case.

Senator Haymes and Senator Wammack of Bloomfield, who examined the Missouri statutes, Wammack collaborating with Haymes in the preparation of the resolution, said there appears uncertainty in the law regarding fees for approving mergers.

The law is specific that all fees of the department must be turned into the State treasury, and one section specifies the fees which shall be charged for specific acts. That section contains no mention of approval of mergers.

Law on Merger Plans.

The one specific section on mergers, consolidations and reinsurance contracts sets out the plan for calling Commissioners from other States to sit with the Missouri superintendent and contains this language: "Compensation of the Commissioner or superintendents acting under the provisions of this article, together with the expenses or costs incident to proceeding under this section, shall be paid by the company or companies bringing such petitions." No limitation is placed upon the amount which may be charged, and the section specifically refers to the payment as "compensation," instead of "fee."

Senator Wammack said: "I believe any court would hold this 'compensation' to be 'a fee,' and would hold that it should be turned in to the State treasury as other fees. If this particular case is typical of the methods of the department I would consider that to be by far the best paying office in the State."

The law fixes the salary of the Superintendent of Insurance at $3000 a year. Senator Haymes before introducing the resolution said:

"If it should be held that the Superintendent is not required to turn such fees into the Treasury the law should be changed to require him to do so. If it should be held that he had no right to charge the fee, or that he should turn it in to the Treasury, then it would be a question whether Supt. Hyde should be confirmed for the second term to which Gov. Baker has appointed him, if in fact some more drastic action should not be taken."

HELD UP IN AUTO, TAKEN TO COUNTY, ROBBED OF $436

Jacob D. Grotsky, Cigar Company Treasurer, Reports Man With Pistol Climbed Into Machine.

Jacob D. Grotsky, secretary-treasurer of the Mound City Cigar and Tobacco Co., 5183 Easton avenue, was robbed of $436 he was taking to a bank for the company this morning by a man who forced him to drive his own car to a lonely point two miles west of Florissant.

Grotsky, who lives at 5527 Pershing avenue, was driving slowly north in Union boulevard at Spalding avenue when the robber hopped into his coupe, drawing a revolver.

"Don't look at me or look back," the man commanded, but Grotsky, in a fleeting glance, saw a machine with two men in it trailing behind. He was forced to go out Natural Bridge and Florissant roads and when he was told to stop the car the robber took his ignition key away. Then the man made his escape in the trailing car.

Reed Won't Hamper Coolidge Course

made his first speech regarding the Knights of Columbus.

"Why am I criticised by two of the sharpest-tongued men in the Senate?" he asked. "Is it because of Catholic constituents? Is it because of presidential ambition?"

Unlucky Gestures Get a Laugh.

The Alabaman's speech ended with a touch of comedy which notably relaxed the tension of the crowded chamber. Warming up to a stirring peroration, with one vigorous gesture, he inadvertently swept his desk clear of great piles of books, papers, documents, sending them crashing to the floor, over his chair and into the waste basket.

The galleries fell into a gross violation of the rules against laughter and the next instant Heflin lifted a herculean arm for a mighty thump on his desk and landed a blow on Senator Mayfield of Texas, who had been wormed within the line of fire by the peripatetic oration of the Alabaman.

Mayfield jumped from his seat and moved over two rows to a zone of safety, while Heflin reached his climax in a roar of laughter from the floor and galleries.

Walsh Defends Catholics.

Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Massachusetts, himself a Catholic, entered a protest "against the insinuation of disloyalty of the Roman Catholic Church and that her members are conniving to engage this country in armed conflict with Mexico."

"I regret that this occurrence has taken place in this, the most representative legislative body in the world," Walsh said, "a body whose history and traditions reflect so gloriously the learning, the patriotism and the statesmanship of America.

"I want to say to my co-religionists that in no body in all the world is there a larger percentage of more fair-minded men than in the United States Senate; here men think in terms of country; here religion and condition of birth and race is reduced to a minimum, and the men in this body are serving America."

Walsh said he regretted that "this attack" had come from a Southern Senator, and from a member of the Democratic party which millions of Catholics had supported through all the trying days from the time of the Civil War.

"I shall not attempt to defend the Roman Catholic Church. I am unworthy to do so," he said. "But I want to remind you that for 19 centuries that church held the torch of religion aloft in the world and that it was the Roman Church that preserved the teachings of Christ.

"I am a Roman Catholic and I am opposed to armed intervention in Mexico. Now let this matter be forgotten."

Heflin and Bruce Clash Over Knights of Columbus.

Senator Heflin (Dem.) Alabama, again charged on the Senate floor today that the Knights of Columbus had sought to provoke war with Mexico.

Heflin repeated his previous statement that a $1,000,000 fund was voted at the Philadelphia convention of the Knights of Columbus last August to carry on an educational campaign in the United States as to the aims of the organization in Mexico.

The Philadelphia resolution was passed Aug. 6, he continued, and Ambassador Sheffield left Mexico City for a conference with President Coolidge Aug. 13. Meantime, he continued, a Knights of Columbus publication dated Aug. 8, carried a statement of the Mexican-United States situation which conformed very closely to the semi-official statement published here soon after Sheffield's arrival in the American capital.

He read a provision of the Mexican Constitution, providing for freedom of religion, and a statement by President Calles saying the Mexican Government was not interfering with "the religious convictions of any human being."

The Senator then served notice he would ask the librarian of Congress to examine newspapers daily for statements of his views and that he would attempt to explain to the Senate, in cases of misrepresentation of his views, how such misinterpretations might be accounted for.

Senator Bruce (Dem.) Maryland, declared Senator Heflin's remarks were an unfair reflection upon many of his constituents. Calling attention to the fact that "the illustrious Bibb Graves, grand cyclops of the Ku Klux Klan," yesterday was inaugurated Governor of Alabama, the Maryland Senator continued:

"Notwithstanding the ties that exist between me and my fellow Catholics of Maryland, not one single Catholic prelate, not one single official of the church ever has approached me, or uttered to me a single word in regard to my attitude on the Mexican situation.

"We have in Maryland one of the greatest Knights of Columbus organizations in the country. I almost scorn to say that they are a body of as highly patriotic men as are to be found in the commonwealth.

"Who was nearer to the firing line in the World War than the members of the Knights of Columbus?"

Responding, Heflin said he had been "attacked outside of this chamber by those who favored war," but never before had he been attacked on the Senate floor.

"I have been accused of intolerance," he continued. "If my determination to keep my country out of war is intolerance, let the Senator from Maryland make the most of it."

Senator Robinson Offers Arbitration Resolution.

Senate approval of arbitration of "diplomatic controversies" with Mexico relating to the alleged retroactive and confiscatory provisions of the Mexican oil and land laws are given in a resolution introduced in the Senate today by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

In presenting the resolution Robinson said it was concurred in by Chairman Borah (Rep.), Idaho, of the Foreign Relations Committee and Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democratic member.

Expressly recognizing the duty of the United States to protect the lives and property of its nationals in foreign countries the resolution said that it was "sound policy" to arbitrate international differences before "an impartial tribunal empowered to apply the principles of international law."

"The resolution is designed to be helpful," Robinson declared, "by expressing the opinion and advice of the Senate, which it is believed will also indicate with some reliability the state of public sentiment concerning the policies to which the resolution relates."

"Demonetization" of U. S. Foreign Policy Demanded.

A demand that American foreign policy be "demonetized" was made in the House today by Representative Connally (Dem.) of Texas, in a critical analysis of recent events concerning Mexico and Nicaragua.

"Mahogany concessions in Nicaragua and oil wells in Mexico are not worth the lives of American soldiers or the loss of American influence abroad," he said. "The time is here when the people of the United States must come to grips with the sordid Powers who seek to use the instrumentalities of Government for their own profit."

Recalling the revelations of the Senate oil inquiry, Connally called on the President "to use the great powers of your office to prevent greed and money from using the powers of this Government in its foreign relations to bring upon us the odium of the rest of the world and the hatred of those nations with which we deal."

He declared it "significant" that the Nicaraguan situation reached a crisis just as the oil dispute with Mexico became critical. Defending the Mexican oil laws, he said they did not discriminate against American citizens, and that the Mexican courts were open to American oil companies desiring to test the constitutionality of the new regulations."

President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg were charged in the House by Representative Lozier (Dem.), Missouri, with "using the bolshevik bugbear to cover their imperialistic program of conquest."

Chicago Consulting Engineer Testifies for Defendants in Diversion Case.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Diversion of water from Lake Michigan into the Illinois drainage canal and thence into the Mississippe River has increased the channel depth of that stream at St. Louis 1½ feet at the low water stage Robert Isham Randolph, consulting engineer of Chicago, testified in today's hearing on the lake diversion case before Charles E. Hughes, Supreme Court master.

Randolph said the increment in flow resulting from the diversion into the Mississippi valley has resulted in a steady increase in the channel depth of the Mississippi River at all points between the mouth of the Illinois River and New Orleans. The witnesses testified for the defendants in the case, including the Chicago interests, who are under attack from other lake states which object to the diversion program.

PASTOR NORRIS' ILLNESS DELAYS MURDER TRIAL

Tonsilitis Confines Him to Room—Defense Suggests Taking Him to Court on Stretcher.

MEANTIME JURY IS KEPT LOCKED UP

Evidence Offered That Chipps Was Drinking on Day Ft. Worth, Tex., Evangelist Killed Him.

By F. A. BEHYMER.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 18.—The trial of Dr. J. Frank Norris, Fort Worth pastor, charged with the murder of Dexter E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman, last July, was delayed today by the illness of the defendant. Judge Hamilton adjourned court until 2 p. m. and shortly before that time announced court would not convene.

The delay was asked by the defense just before court opened today.

Norris was ill at his hotel room with tonsilitis. Defense attorneys said they did not want to delay the trial very long and would bring the defendant into court on a stretcher if necessary.

Counsel for state and defense conferred in chamber with the judge. The defense wanted the judge to inform the jury that Norris was ill but the state objected to this.

Jury Locked Up.

Judge Hamilton, when court opened, simply informed the jury it would be impossible to continue wit hthe case. He then ... the jury locked up with instructions not to discuss the case.

Dr. Norris has been ill with cold since the start of the trial. The affliction has been irritated by the strain of the trial and last night became acute.

Dayton Moses, Dr. Norris's attorney, said the defendant's illness was not serious.

Drinking on Day He Was Killed.

Out of the mouths of 34 witnesses, 32 men and two women, proof was presented yesterday that D. E. Chipps' reputation as a drinking man was bad and that when drinking he was troublesome, overbearing and quarrelsome. Some of them it was shown ... he had made threats against Norris and by others instances of his obstreperousness were given. The witnesses were policemen, garage men, hotel clerks, business men, barbers, a farmer and a member of the legislature.

It was shown for the first time in the trial, by two of the witnesses, that he was under the influence of liquor the day that he was killed.

John Woodruff, Fort Worth policeman, testified out of the ... of an experience which included four fights with Chipps, ... all of which the policeman came off victorious. He told about the ... Once, Chipps was for taking Woodruff's beat off of his hands. Woodruff remonstrated. He was being paid for running that beat, he told Chipps, and was going to run it. Whereupon Chipps started to put Woodruff off of the beat. Woodruff pacified him by knocking him down, carrying him off to the station and putting a charge against him.

Threat Against Norris.

Another time Woodruff came upon Chipps quarreling with somebody on the street and wanted to know what the trouble was. Chipps asked him to come and have a drink. Woodruff declined and Chipps said, "Do you know what I am going to do?" Woodruff said, "No," and Chipps said "I'm going to start me a graveyard and put you and Frank Norris in the same grave." He was pacified again and taken to the station. Another time when Chipps was raising a rumpus" at a hotel Woodruff was called. After he had pacified Chipps he found an open knife near where Chipps had fallen.

Woodruff admitted on cross-examination that on none of these occasions did he find a pistol on Chipps.

Other witnesses, however, told of seeing Chipps flourish a weapon.

The State showed by most of the witnesses, on cross-examination, that Chipps when sober was polite, inoffensive and gentle.

The dull proceedings of the day were enlivened by frequent wrangles of the lawyers and repeated allusions by the defense to the "hired lawyers" assisting in the prosecution.

Norris is showing the effect of the strain of the trial. He has lost his jauntiness and although his face is always expressionless he exhibits nervousness by almost continuous movement of his thumb

FORD CO. ANTICIPATED ITS IMMENSE GROWTH

Prepared in 1913 to Double Capacity, Witness Testifies at Tax Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 18.—Plans for doubling production capacity were formulated by the Ford Motor Co. as early as 1913 when profits were accumulating at the rate of $24,000,000 a year, it was testified today at the hearing of the Board of Tax Appeals of the plea of former minority stockholders against an additional tax levy of more than $30,000,000 for the year 1919.

It was in 1919 that Henry Ford took over the minority stock after the minority holders had learned the Government would value their stock at $9,489.34 a share.

By the testimony respecting expansion plans Joseph E. Davies, chief of counsel for the appellants, sought to establish that the stock of the company was worth the valuation which the Government now attacks as too high.

P. E. Martin, vice-president of the Ford Motor Co., and Orlay H. Dawson, a former employe, testified this morning that prior to 1913, the future growth of the company had been foreseen and anticipated. Dawson testified the Highland Park plant of the Ford Company at the end of 1909 had an area of 444,800 square feet. This was steadily enlarged, he said, until at the end of 1914 it aggregated 1,947,000 square feet.

Martin testified that when he entered the employ of the Ford Co. in 1903 about six months after its organization, it occupied a two story building that measured but 90 by 150 feet.

Martin described various production economies installed in the Highland Park plant into which the company moved in 1910. These included the "line production" under which material in the raw entered at one end and the finished product came out at the other. He also described the installation of crank case presses which bent sheets of steel into crank cases. Castings had been used up to that time.

to death for his country and for Russia." One person who shared the Russian experience was there—the faithful valet of 35 years' service, Philip Jordan.

Before 10 o'clock, the time appointed for beginning the service, the rooms on either side of the hall were filled, and men and women were standing in the hallway, while the arrival of newcomers was retarded by a jam of automobiles.

Some of the women were shown to seats around the railing of the balcony. The two officiating clergymen, the Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor of the Second Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Dr. William Crowe of Westminster Presbyterian, took their stand at the foot of the staircase.

Simple Religious Ceremony.

"Our help is in the name of the Lord," was the first passage read by Dr. MacIvor from the Old Testament. Through familiar phrases the reading continued, "All flesh is grass." "We are but strangers and sojourners." As he closed his book, a choir began singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

"Surely, a great man and a prince hath fallen in Israel," were opening words of Dr. Crowe's prayer. He spoke of the eternal mercy and the "everlasting arms." The Twenty-third Psalm, beginning, "The Lord is my Shepherd," was read by Dr. Crowe.

The reading of New Testament passages, conveying the hope of immortality, was followed with a prayer by Dr. MacIvor. "Lead, Kindly Light," was sung, and the short service ended with benediction, and without eulogy or other address.

As the head of the cortege waited before the door, the honorary pallbearers took up their march, two by two, through the hallway and to the porch and sidewalk. Railroad, banking and corporation heads, surgeons, lawyers and ministers, were in the procession.

Then the six sons of Gov. Francis, as active pallbearers, appeared, carrying the casket. They were headed by the two eldest, J. D. Perry and David R.—no longer Junior. Close behind the casket came Thomas H. Francis, brother and lifelong companion of "the Governor." Women and children and members of the Francis and Perry families, followed.

Thirty-five automobiles went to Bellefontaine Cemetery for the interment, to which the general public was not invited. With the brief committal service of the Presbyterian Church, Gov. Francis' body was placed beside that of his wife, Jane Perry Francis, who died in March, 1924.

More than 150 floral tributes were received. A few of those whose cards were noted among the roses, lilies and carnations, were Gov Baker, Robert S. Brookings, the Missouri Historical Society, Yale University, Breckinridge Long, L W. Baldwin, Clarence H. Howard Breckinridge Jones, Paul Brown the Log Cabin Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mr. and Mrs Rolla Wells, Samuel M. Felton, Mr and Mrs. Erastus Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Festus J. Wade, and the Kentucky Society of St. Louis.

The delegation from the Legislature consisted of Senators Kinney, Cave, Ralph and Bates, and Representatives Ely, Wisdom, Parker and Weinbrenner. Both houses adjourned yesterday as a tribute to Gov. Francis.

E. Lansing Ray and George C. Willson were the university curators officially designated to represent the board.

Tribute to Mr. Francis in House of Representatives.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A tribute to former Gov. David R. Francis of Missouri, who died Saturday, was paid in the House yesterday by Representative Rubey (Dem.), Missouri.

Tribute to Non-Sectarian Charity Work by Mr. Francis.

Mr. Francis was president of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association from the time of its organization in his office in 1893 until 1920, after his return from Russia and in that time its annual collection, divided among Protestant, Catholic and Jewish hospitals, aggregated more than $800,000, which reimbursed the institutions in part for more than 1,000,000 days of free service to patients.

A. L. Shapleigh, who succeeded Mr. Francis as president, praised his predecessor in a statement of the latter's work in the association. Although it collected only $5176 in its first year, the association was receiving more than $50,000 annually by 1918. Mr. Francis who always found time to direct its work in spite of other affairs, until he became Ambassador to Russia, invariably contributed $500 a year to the fund, even when abroad.

RECEIVER NAMED IN FEDERAL COURT FOR JONES' FIRM

Gave Fake Chattel Mortgages.

Another ticklish situation which is blocking precipitate demands for Jones' prosecution is that many laundrymen have been what a bank investigator called, "suspiciously innocent" in helping Jones put over his frauds. In addition to discounting notes which he should have returned to the laundrymen, Jones duped them by fake chattel mortgages. That is, he sold mortgages naming non-existent machinery as security, or naming laundry supplies, instead of machinery, or naming laundry machinery which he had sold but never delivered. Finance corporation investigators have reported to their companies that there has been apparent collusion between Jones and some laundrymen.

There are 187 laundries involved in the paper transactions and many were not good for even the money they legitimately borrowed from Jones. In numerous cases these laundries are held responsible for twice or three times what they actually borrowed, and if pressed for payment would be forced into bankruptcy. A checkup of the laundries is under way and an officer who had received reports on this work told a reporter today that probably half the laundrymen who trusted Jones will be ruined by his frauds.

Walter R. Mayne, attorney, who was engaged by several finance corporations a week ago to act as Jones' personal attorney and endeavor to straighten out his affairs, said he came to the conclusion that Jones has not made a dime out of all his peculations.

Says Business "Ran Away."

"Jones told me," said Mayne, "that he expanded too fast and the business ran away from him. He asserted he had put everything into the business to keep it floating."

The stubborn loyalty of men whose trust Jones betrayed and the almost superstitious notion still lingering among his creditors that with a few months of freedom he could rise like a Phoenix from the ashes of his old company, has thus far served to stave off prosecution. Each creditor is waiting to let another creditor initiate action, each hoping Jones has a lot of assets up his sleeve which he will turn over to the creditors if they save him from prosecution.

Last January Jones tried to launch a stock expansion deal by increasing the capitalization of the company from $400,000 to $1,50,000. He had auditors prepare a report of his financial status for the purpose of inducing a Chicago investment company to handle the stock issue. The report noted that the profits of the David Jones Co. last year were $30,000. It placed the total assets at $1,922,359.28, with a surplus of $209,655.27 and total liabilities at $618,594.70, covered by notes. The Chicago concern found discrepancies in the report and declined to handle the new stock issue.

$240,000 From One Concern.

Robert F. Lemen, president of the Lemen Laundry, 1020 Gaty avenue, East St. Louis, today said the total amount of notes in his name which Jones had sold to banks and finance corporations is $240,000. He did not discover the frauds until Jones, when told last month that he must explain to a credit association certain discrepancies in the Lemen account, replied, "The credit association can go to hell." This started the creditors on the investigation.

"Jones was a salesman," said Lemen. "He could sell you anything. He had my confidence and I trusted him. He was always in a hurry. He would rush into my office and say, Lemon, I need $50,000' or some other amount. Then he would tell me that the finance company would not hold my old note any longer and to make out a new note. I would give him the new note and tell him to destroy the old one.

"I kept this up, making new notes on his promise to tear up old ones, until one day duplicate chattel mortgages on machinery in my plant turned up at Belleville. A credit association investigated the case and when Jones told them to go to hell, I knew something was wrong."

JANITOR FOUND SLAIN IN BASEMENT ROOM

Negro, Employed at Apartment at 5701 Clemens Avenue, Had Been Stabbed.

There was no heat in the apartment morning. Tenants wondered why. A new Negro janitor had been hired a month ago and he had been an efficient one.

At 9:45 o'clock, John Cavanaugh, a tenant, went downstairs to investigate. He found the body of the janitor in his basement room. He had been stabbed through the heart, and had died hours before. No weapon was found.

Mrs. L. M. Keller, another tenant, had heard scuffling in the basement about 10:30 o'clock last night. The noise died away, and she went to sleep, without investigating.

The janitor was Cassie Mullens Jr., 29 years old, previous address unknown. In his room was an insurance policy for $280, taken out Jan. 3. The beneficiary is Cassie Mullens Sr., address unknown.

GERHART LOSES LONG FIGHT TO GET NORTHEAST APPROACH

U. S. Supreme Court Virtually Dismisses Free Bridge Litigation, Holding That No Federal Issue Is Involved.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The 15-year fight which Frank H. Gerhart of St. Louis has been waging to compel the city to adopt his solution for putting the railroads on the St. Louis Municipal Bridge across the Mississippi, collapsed today when the United States Supreme Court virtually dismissed his suit to compel the city to proceed with condemnation proceedings in East St. Louis for a northeast approach to the bridge.

The northeast approach is essential to Gerhart's plan, which is to make the bridge usable for all railroads by giving them all necessary connections and then for shippers to route their freight over the Free Bridge and force the roads to follow the routing.

In the opinion of the Court, Luke E. Hart, attorney for Joseph Luechfeld and William Kuehl, in whose name Gerhart caused the suit to be brought, failed to establish that a Federal issue was involved. It then declined to listen to Oliver Senti, counsel for the city, this action being tantamount to a dismissal of the suit.

It is expected that the Court will formally support the city's motion for dismissal on the ground of lack of jurisdiction.

State Decision Will Stand.

Hence, the decision of the Missouri Supreme Court will stand and that was a refusal to compel the city to build the northeast approach as Gerhart desired.

Hart was sharply questioned by Justices Van Devanter and McReynolds. When he had finished, Justice Van Devanter remarked that the case had come to the court on a writ of error and not a writ of certiorari, indicating this was the Court's reason for declining to hear further arguments.

Chief Justice Taft then called the next case.

Senti said after the hearing that if he had been permitted to present the city's side of the case, he would have pointed out that the condemnation suits had been stopped in 1924 after the voters had accepted by a general referendum the Board of Aldermen's plan for dismissing the actions. Senti said that the northeast approach would have cost $5,500,000, not $1,500,000 as first estimated in 1906, and later in the $89,000,000 bond issue election.

Hart contended that because Congress had authorized the city to build the bridge the appeal from the Missouri Supreme Court could properly be brought before the United States Supreme Court. Justice Vandevanter pointed out that the act "permitted" the city to build the bridge.

Why Plan Was Dropped.

One influence upon the Board of Aldermen in dropping the northeast approach plan was the opening of negotiations for the exchange of uses of the Eads Bridge and Municipal Bridge between the railroads and the city, whereby the railroads would use the Municipal Bridge and would build, at an estimated cost of $5,000,000, approaches necessary to give all roads access to the bridge.

Argument Ended for Time Being Anyway, Says City Counselor.

The Supreme Court's decision, in the opinion of City Counselor Muench, ends the proceedings to compel the continuance of condemnation of right-of-way for a northeast bridge approach. "Of course," he said, "the Board of Aldermen can pass new legislation, or proponents of the northeast approach can inaugurate a new movement, but for the present, as I see, the argument is over."

The bond issue, passed in 1923, provided $1,500,000 for a northeast approach to the Municipal Bridge and the Board of Aldermen passed condemnation ordinances, which were abandoned when it became apparent that the approach would cost from $4,500,000 to $5,500,000, or at least three times the sum voted in the bond issue. The abandonment was actuated, also, by the fact that negotiations for a trade of uses of the Eads and Municipal Bridges was under way.

Gerhart's suit, filed in the name of two taxpayers, sought to compel the city to proceed with condemnation of right-of-way and construction of the bridge approach in spite of the fact that sufficient funds to complete the project were not available.

Maid Saves Two Children in Fire.

LAKE CITY, Fla., Jan. 18.—Fire destroyed the country home of Frank Brimmer, associate editor of Field and Stream, last night. Mr. and Mrs. Brimmer were not at home. A Negro maid rescued their two children from the burning building. The dwelling, on the shores of Lake Lona, contained many manuscripts and photographs.

MRS. SIDENER FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Wife of Circuit Attorney Alleges General Indignities and Incompatibility.

Suit for divorce, on the ground of general indignities, was filed last night by Mrs. Myrtle M. Sidener of 6233 San Bonita avenue, against Howard Sidener, the Circuit Attorney.

The petition was filed after the regular closing time by arrangement with the Circuit Clerk's office. Sidener filed an entry of appearance and a general denial. The case was assigned to Judge Taylor's division of the Court of Domestic Relations, and may be heard tomorrow.

They were married Oct. 8, 1908, at San Antonio, Tex., and separated Nov. 24 last.

Mrs. Sidener states she has been kind and affectionate toward her husband, but he, for several years past, has offered such indignities as to make her condition intolerable. She alleges he has remained away from home at night and upon returning has refused to explain his absence; that he has been morose and melancholy and has refrained from speaking to her; that once, without cause, he refused to allow her to return to her St. Louis home while they were visiting in Wisconsin; that he repeatedly has refused to accompany her to places of amusement; that at home he has refused to discuss matters of any kind, and that all these acts have caused her great humiliation.

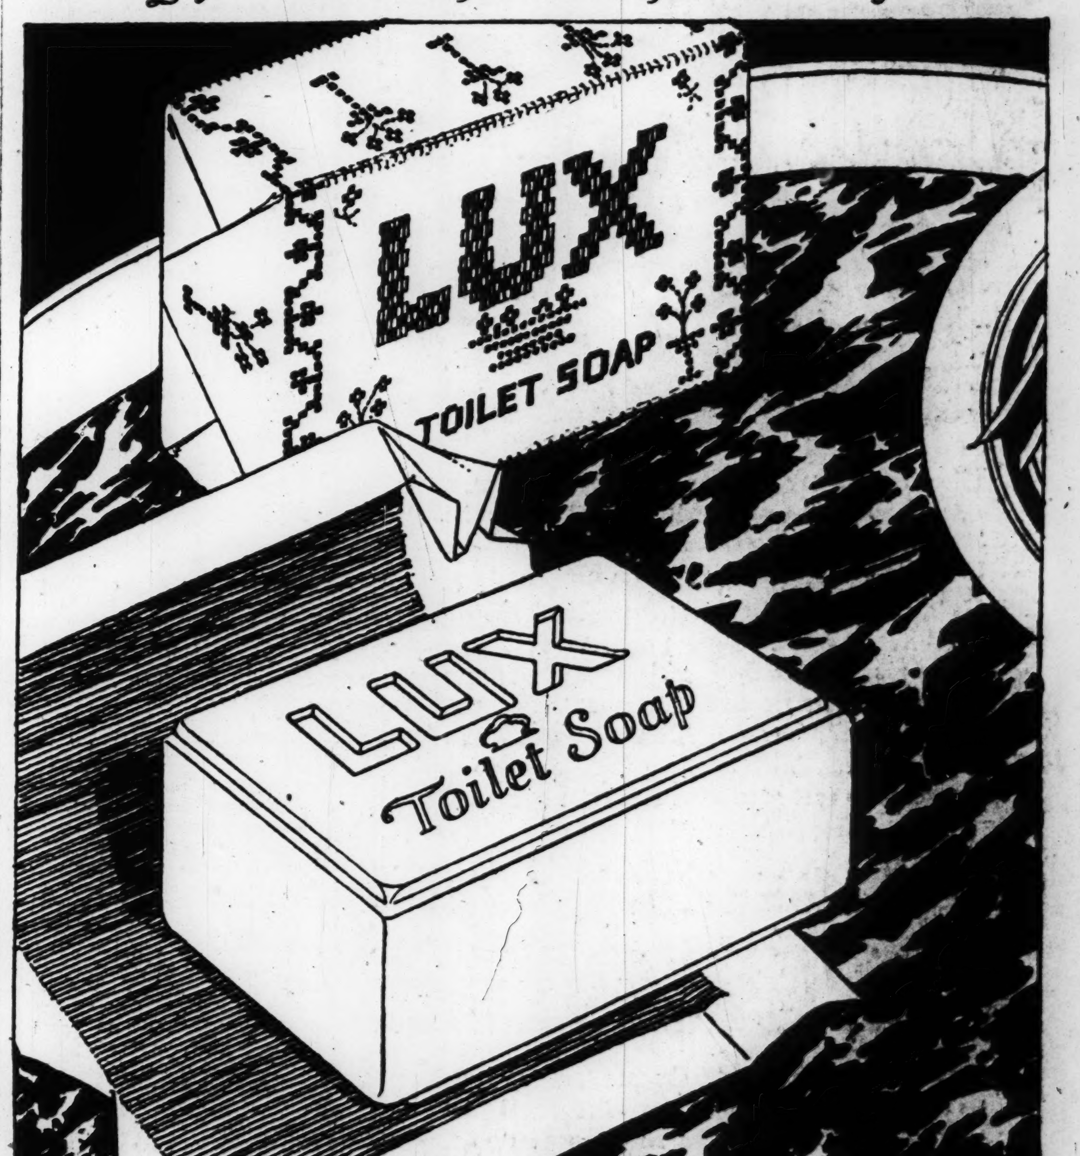

She asks for custody of their son, Charles Howard Jr., 12 years old, and such maintenance as the court may deem suitable "in view of the nature of the case and the circumstances of the parties require."

Sidener is 50 years old, has served three terms as Prosecuting Attorney and is now in his second term as Circuit Attorney. In 1917 he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor.

Sidener's lawyer is William Baer, former Assistant Circuit Attorney. Mrs. Sidener is represented by the firm of Jones, Hocker, Sullivan & Angert.

"PURITY" JONES AIMED AT MILLIONS IN THE BUSINESS HE BUILT

bee 45 years ago, Jones always had something of the grand seigneur about him. He was expansive. When the laundrymen organized hunting trips they could count Jones in. They liked to have Jones along. He was the life of the party. Nothing tight about Jones, either. Likely as not he would pay more than his share, or lend you a gun or a dog.

The wish to be every man's friend seemed to guide Jones in his business affairs. The David Jones Co. developed fast and its president performed services of astounding generosity. He started men in the laundry business. He took their notes for supplies and machinery. He was lenient as a creditor.

Jones' friends think now that this is what started him on the wrong track. He was blowing a bubble instead of building a sound business. Jones seemed to believe that he could keep a hundred or more little laundries afloat on borrowed money and develop them into a paying clientele.

He ran up large sales totals because he sold on credit and this gave his concern an air of prosperity.

Jones Bought $7000 Car.

But the expansion of the David Jones Co. was as nothing compared to the expansion of David Jones himself. He bought a $7000 automobile. In this he dashed about town, drawing up before a bank or a finance corporation office most importantly. He looked like ready money. He had a huge diamond stickpin and a diamond ring. He smoked cigars put up for him especially, and banded with his name. He carried them in a handsome leather folio on which was inscribed in gilt letters his business motto: "If it's used in a laundry we have it."

A banker who dealt with Jones said today: "There wasn't anything cheap about Jones' personality. He could sell a banker as well as the lowliest man on the street. He was a high-powered salesman."

At the height of his glory, which came about a year ago, Jones seemed bound for millions. He had built a handsome four-story factory building at 5149 Natural Bridge avenue. His sales turnover was impressive. What the bankers did not know was that his business was built largely on paper and bluff.

The laundrymen who were struggling along trying to make good for their old friend, Jones, had expanded far beyond their resources.

How Notes Were Duplicated.

Then began the second phase of Jones' career, which is to be the subject of grand jury investigation.

He would say to a laundryman, hustling in and talking crisply to the point. "The bank won't discount that note of yours. It's for a year. The bank wants a 90-day note." The laundryman would say "Sure, Davey. I'll make another note. Send the old one back will you?" And Jones would slap him on the back, take his new note, promise to return the old one, and gallop out the door. Looking after him the laundryman would say "Good old Davey Jones. He's a hustler."

But Jones, in many cases, neglected to send the old notes back. He sold both notes, doubling the actual indebtedness of his friends who had trusted him.

Last July however, the bubble began to grow thin. Finance corporations and banks compared notes and found duplications. Investigators visited laundrymen and asked them how many notes they had given Jones. Bit by bit the dupes pieced together the story of how Jones had floated his business on paper and was now keeping it afloat with more paper.

One Man Out $175,000.

Friend Wilson of the Metropolitan Laundry, 4440 Olive street, was in for $175,000 when he did not actually owe half that amount. Friend Lemen of the Lemen Laundry in East St. Louis was in for $240,000 although he insisted he owed much less than that. So it was with Carl Lay, president of the Delmar Laundry, 2601 Ohio avenue, who was nicked for about $50,000 loss.

Jones had taken in his own brother-in-law, Jesse Friday, an attorney, who is reported to have lost $50,000 on his paper.

During the summer and fall Jones kept galloping ahead of his pack of creditors. Now and then one would corner him and ask for a settlement. He would murmur something about a new stock issue and a reorganization, and if an opening to the door was in sight he would duck through.

One insistent creditor took his two big diamonds and a second deed of trust on his residence at 3618 Utah place. Various other creditors, by confronting him with evidence of note duplications or other frauds got assignments from his $900,000 worth of life insurance.

Such was the magic spell of Jones' personality that up until the last week bankers and finance corporations were agreed to give him time to pull out of the mess. "Jones can get out of any hole," men told each other.

And even when the truth was known laundrymen gathered at the club rooms of the Laundrymen's Association in Hotel Statler yesterday afternoon and talked gruffly about good old Jones.

"Anyway," they said, "Jones made damn good machines."

Found Dead in Waiting Station.

The body of Warren Cheney, 32 years old, a chauffeur, of Spring and St. Charles roads, St. Louis County, was found in a street car waiting station at Vinita, St. Louis County, at 7 a. m. today. Death is thought to have been from natural causes.

WITNESSES FOR U. S. IN $35,000 ROBBERY GUARDED

Seven Men to Go on Trial at Springfield, Ill., Today for Looting Postoffice Safe at Alton.

ST. LOUISAN ONE OF THE DEFENDANTS

Precautions to Prevent Trouble When Accused Men and Former Friends Meet in Court.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 18.—Three St. Louis detectives are guarding four men who will testify for the Government at the trial starting late today of seven men charged with a $35,000 safe robbery at the Alton postoffice, May 12, 1924.

The defendants are Ray Larrison, John Adams, Robert Dooling, Joseph Meyer and Ben Simon of Alton, Joseph Melling of Springfield, and Joseph Marino of St. Louis. The case against Louis Hammerman, St. Louis, was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Among those who will testify against the seven are Byron J. Shelton and Morris Rodensky of St. Louis, each serving 25 years in Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., for mail robbery here in 1923; James Kirby, serving sentences totaling eight years for violation of the Mann and Dyer acts, and George Merrill, who has been held as a material witness since last October.

Precautions have been taken to prevent trouble when the defendants and their former friends, now witnesses against them, meet in court. Detectives Isaac Carroll and Portman of St. Louis are here to see that nothing more than growls are exchanged when the two groups meet. By giving testimony Shelton, Rodensky and Kirby expect to expedite their own release from prison.

For the past ten years there have been two gangs, neither hostile to the other, plying their business between Alton and Springfield, according to the authorities. Since they were not hostile to each other, each gang was pretty well acquainted with the "job" pulled by the other. Hence the testimony by one gang against the other.

Kirby testified yesterday against Melling in the Springfield case, Melling having received a severance which delayed his trial until now. Kirby said that Melling, while not actually participating in the robbery, had guilty knowledge of it and helped to plan it. The case will go to the jury late today, and then Melling will go on trial with the others in the Alton case.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—A 30-day stay of execution of the year-and-a-day prison sentence and the fine of $5000 imposed on Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, after conviction of perjury about the champagne bath episode, has been granted by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The stay is pending appeal to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari.

The basis of Carroll's plea was threefold: That false statements of an irrelevant matter do not constitute perjury; that Carroll's constitutional rights had been invaded through his lack of opportunity to question directly the men who subsequently composed the jury and that an improper person was in the grand jury room when Carroll was interrogated, namely, Andrew Paden, stenographer, who is not an attorney.

CHARLESTON A KAFFIR DANCE

Special Correspondence of the Associated Press.

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 2.—The Christian churches of South Africa are attacking the Charleston, which they declare is a Kaffir dance.

Simultaneously with the starting of the church campaign, notices have been posted in the shops warning employes that they will be fined or discharged if they continue to practice the Charleston behind the shop counters. The Rev. W. A. Palmer, 20 years a missionary among the natives, said that modern ball room dances approximate those of the Bantu people. Another missionary said: "The Charleston is called a modern dance. I have seen the natives dancing it in the jungles of Africa for the past 19 years."

Elmore New M.-K.-T. General Chief.

Frank W. Grace, superintendent of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railway's Muskogee division at Muskogee, Okla., has been promoted to general superintendent of the system, effective Feb. 1. His new headquarters will be at Denison, Tex. He was appointed by H. E. McGee, general manager who yesterday was made a vice president of the road.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 18.—Three St. Louis detectives ...are ...guarding four m en who will tes...ify for the Government at the ...rial starting late today of seven ...men charged with a $38,000 safe ...obbery at the Alton postoffice, ...May 12, 1924.

The defendants are Ray Larri...on, John Adams, Robert Dooling, Joseph Meyer and Ben Simon of ...lton; Joseph Melling of Spring...ield, and Joseph Marino of St. ...ouis. The case against Louis ...ammerman, St. Louis, was dis...issed for lack of evidence.

Among those who will testify ...gainst the seven are Byron J. ...helton and Morris Rodensky of St. Louis, each serving 25 years in ...ederal penitentiary at Leaven...orth, Kan., for mail robbery here ...n 1923; James Kirby, serving sen...ences totaling eight years for vio...ation of the Mann and Dyer acts, ...nd George Merrill, who has been ...eld as a material witness since ...ast October.

The ...case will go to the jury late to...day, and then Melling will go on ...trial with the others in the Alton ...case.

TEN DAYS, $100 FINE FOR CARELESS DRIVER

Ernest Borchers Takes Appeal From Police Court Penalty.

Ernest Borchers, 29 years old, an ex-convict, who had two fist fights with Jacob Shucart, vice president of the National Bottling Co., 3122 Easton avenue, last Friday, was sentenced to 10 days in the Workhouse and fined $100 for careless driving by Police Judge Bock today. He appealed.

Testimony was that Borchers, in a light coupe, westbound in front of 3144 Easton avenue, struck the rear of Shucart's automobile and then engaged in a fight with Shucart. Borchers declared he drew a knife to defend himself after a garage mechanic attacked him with an automobile axle.

Shucart also related, though it was not accepted as evidence, that four hours later Borchers invaded his office with a revolver sticking from his pocket and threatened him until an employe overpowered him. Borchers did not draw the revolver, according to his testimony as police of Dayton Street District said yesterday in complaining that Miss Florence Weigel, Assistant Circuit Attorney, had refused to issue an attempted robbery warrant against Borchers.

Miss Weigel said today she still had the complaint under advisement, but insisted Shucart had given no information to indicate that robbery was Borchers' motive for invading his place.

Borchers several years ago was known as "the daredevil of the St. Louis taxicab fleet," being arrested more than 20 times for speeding and careless driving in a service car. He served in the penitentiary from 1917 to 1922 under a 10-year sentence for assault and attempt to rob.

$12,000 SURPLUS IN CIRCUIT CLERK'S OFFICE FOR 1926

Amount Turned Over to City Treasury About $14,000 Less Than in Preceding Year.

The surplus in the Circuit Clerk's office for the year 1926 fell by approximately $14,000 under the surplus of the preceding year, it was shown yesterday by a fiscal report made by Circuit Clerk John Schmoll. The report shows that the office took in from all sources a total of $151,570.65 and disbursed $139,523.05, leaving a balance of $12,047.60 to turn into the city treasury. Schmoll explained that the current reduction in surplus was due to the necessity of hiring more deputies to handle steadily increasing business.

The largest item among disbursements was for salaries of deputies, which aggregated $125,52[illegible]. Witness fees totaling $68,656.58 were collected, of which $[illegible] found its way to the city treasury as unclaimed.

WOMAN AND MAN CUT WHEN WINDOW FALLS FIVE STORIES

Traffic Policeman's Warning Saves Others on Washington Avenue From Injury.

Miss Agnes Witt, 24 years old, of 1520 Illinois avenue, and E. C. Hales, 49, of 4549A Lucky street, were cut about the head and hands yesterday afternoon when struck by a pane of glass which fell from a window on the fifth floor of a building at 801 Washington avenue.

The pane of glass fell while an employe of the Leopert-Roos Fur Co., occupant of the quarters, was washing it. Traffic Policeman Brooks, station 4, at Eighth and Washington, saw the falling glass and warned pedestrians, but Miss Witt and Hales were unable to escape being struck.

LEGION RETAKES CANNON

Controversy With Webster Groves Commission Settled by Compromise.

A German cannon, a World War memento of the Webster Groves American Legion Post, has been recaptured from the rear of the City Hall in Webster Groves after a controversy between the Memorial Parkway Commission and the Legionnaires. The base of the cannon will be removed and the barrel used as a flag staff holder—a transformation that renders it acceptable to those who opposed its retention because of its battered condition.

Last month the commission agreed to place the cannon in front of the City Hall, but it was put in the rear. The Legion maintained it should be preserved in entirety and a foundation provided for it in the Memorial Parkway, at Big Bend road and Lockwood avenue. The flag pole arrangement is in the nature of a compromise.

DIVORCED PAIR APART 30 YEARS REMARRIED

Woman Who Thought Man Dead Meets Him at Funeral of His Mother.

After 30 years of separation—during 15 years of which they had not seen each other—Gottfried Vollenweider, 52 years old, of 2631 Gravois avenue, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Stella Vollenweider of Venice, Ill., met last November at the funeral of his mother. They were remarried Jan. 6 and will make their home at the Gravois avenue address.

Mrs. Vollenweider at her home, 124 Kerr street, Venice, said today she thought her divorced husband was dead when on Nov. 20 she read the death notice of his mother, Mrs. Ludwina Vollenweider. With a floral offering she went to the Gravois avenue home and was surprised to find her husband alive and well.

The Vollenweiders were first married in 1895 and separated two years later. During their brief life together they had one child, a daughter, now Mrs. Mary A. Goodenough, of 6562 Mount avenue. Mrs. Vollenweider returned to her home in Venice and she says made considerable money trading in livestock. She divorced her husband in 1911 but neither remarried.

Last Sunday the daughter, a foster son and four grandchildren attended an anniversary party at the Venice home, where the pair will reside for the next week or two.

CONTRACTS LET FOR TEACHERS' HEADQUARTERS IN COLUMBIA

Jefferson City Concern Bids $40,000 on Main Part of Project.

Bids for the construction of the Missouri State Teachers' Association Building were opened yesterday at the office of the architect, William B. Ittner, Inc., in St. Louis. The general contract was let to E. H. Kuehn of Jefferson City for approximately $40,000. Louis J. Crum of Columbia was awarded the plumbing contract at $180[illegible] and the heating contract at $7600. The electrical work was given to John L. Platte of Columbia at $975.

The Columbia Commercial Club has secured a lot for the building site at the west side of the University of Missouri campus. The building is to be finished by June 15.

The committee which awarded the contract is composed of Uel Lamkin of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, Maryville; Superintendent of Schools J. N. Crocker, Sedalia; J. R. Whiteford, Superintendent of Schools, Cape Girardeau; Miss L. R. Ernst, St. Louis; Prof. C. H. McClure, Washington, and E. M. Carter, Columbia.

DEATH SENTENCES OF MORE THAN 1000 ROBBERS UPHELD

Russian Supreme Court Commonly Confirms Decision of the Lower Jurisdictions.

MOSCOW, Russia, Dec. 13.—Death sentences of more than 1000 highway robbers were confirmed by the Supreme Court of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics during the fiscal year 1925-6. The lower courts convicted 130,000 persons, 80 per cent of them robbers. The Supreme Court heard the cases of 1530 country bandits and 2000 city highwaymen, about half of whose robberies were accompanied with murder. Another 2000 were involved in home-brew fights, usually accompanied with murder; 8000 were tax dodgers and 1500 were embezzlers whose sentences, aside from those shot, averaged two years and their peculations $350. About one-fourth of the cases were appealed and the sentence of the lower court was usually confirmed. About 800 were charged with political offenses, all occurring before 1919, as political offenders of the present usually are sentenced by executive police order without appearing in court.

CITY SEEKS TO HALT STREET CAR FARE INCREASE FEB. 7

Intervening Petition Asks That Schedules Be Suspended Until Audit Is Completed.

The city of St. Louis yesterday intervened to prevent, if possible, the increase of street car fares on Feb. 7 from 7 cents to 8 cents, or two tokens for 15 cents.

It filed a petition with the Public Service Commission asking that body to suspend the new fare schedules until an audit of the railways' books, now in progress, shall have been completed. The audit has been in progress since June and is about finished. The city contends that the need of the company for any fare increase cannot be discerned without the audit to show its true operating condition.

INDICTED FOR KILLING CLAUDE WILKERSON

ROBERT K. BARDWELL

BARDWELL PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN MURDER CASE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Jan. 18.—Robert K. Bardwell, who fatally shot Attorney Claude Wilkerson on the main business thoroughfare of Sedalia on the morning of Monday, Dec. 27, was brought here from the Cole County jail yesterday for arraignment on a charge of first-degree murder.

Bardwell, since the killing, had been in jail there and after entering a plea of not guilty to an indictment returned by the Pettis County grand jury was returned to Jefferson City in custody of Deputy Sheriff William Rector.

Bardwell made no statement while here and the only action taken in his case was arraignment for his plea. It is doubtful if the case will be taken up this term of court, which has a crowded docket, and the defense if it should be called, intends, it is believed, to ask for a continuance.

The court, with Circuit Judge Dimmitt Hoffman on the bench, refused to fix bond, stating that as the charge was first-degree murder no bond would be accepted.

At a preliminary hearing, previously given Bardwell, before Justice of the Peace D. N. Yount, bond was fixed at $25,000, which he had been unable to furnish. The indictment from the grand jury excludes all previous court procedure in the case.

BONE GRAFTING OPERATION TO MEND DISLOCATED NECK

Section of Patient's Shin Used in Treating Injury Suffered Four Months Ago.

A section of shin bone is holding up the neck of James B. Parsons Jr., an automobile mechanic, of 5575A Palm street, whose neck was dislocated in an automobile accident, Sept. 1.

The basal vertebrae had been thrown out of line, causing slight paralysis. For four months the neck was held in place by a plaster cast, but when the cast was removed the neck again moved forward.

The bone grafting operation was performed last Saturday by Dr. F. L. Morse at the Baptist Hospital. He removed a section of Parsons' shin, about five inches long and one-fourth of an inch thick, and grafted it onto the back of the neck vertebrae. The patient is improving rapidly, and it is expected his neck will be as serviceable as before the accident.

ARMED MEN HUNT GIRL, 17

Five Italians, all armed and two of them masked, invaded the home of John Rigo, 810 North Ninth street, last night and demanded to know the whereabouts of his granddaughter, Mary Sheredano, 17.

Rigo said she was next door at her home, 812 North Ninth street. When they left he called police, and went to a neighbor's home on Morgan street, where she actually was, to warn her. The five men had gone when police arrived. Miss Sheredano told them she knew of no admirers who might want to kidnap her for a wedding in the Italian style.

MACHINE GUNS IN HAWK HUNT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Irked by the failure of dozens of marksmen to bring down the hawk or hawks preying on the Loop pigeons, a detective bureau squad unlimbered machine guns yesterday. A dash to a North Side back yard proved futile when a hawk reported perched there could not be found.

Raymond Loetz, 18 years old, was the only casualty of the day. He had just purchased a rifle and was examining it preparatory to joining in the hawk hunt when the weapon was discharged accidentally, wounding him in the leg.

Pickpocket Arrested on Street Car.

Detective-Sergeant Eugene Martineau, on an eastbound Manchester car, at Vandeventer avenue, recognized Woolridge Malone, 31 years old, Negro pickpocket and ex-convict. He watched Malone, he said, and arrested him when he reached into a hip pocket of Frank Simons, 4426 Chouteau avenue.

Student Beaten by Intruder.

By the Associated Press.

GALESBURG, Ill., Jan. 18.—Cut and beaten into unconsciousness by a marauder at the Sigma Nu fraternity house at Lombard College Edward George of Petoskey, Mich., junior at Lombard, is in a serious condition. George was taking his turn at guarding the house because of numerous fraternity house robberies here and at Monmouth lately. He said he was on his way to the pantry to get a lunch when the intruder struck him. Cuts on his body were caused by a sickle, which the assailant dropped. He was beaten on the head with a blackjack.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

JURY AWARDS MAN TWO LAMPS AND 25 CTS. AFTER TWO YEARS

G. H. Harris' Mother-in-Law Must Return Them and Pay $60 Costs.

After two years of litigation over the possession of two coal oil lamps—value, when new, $6.50—George H. Marsh, of 2012 Harris avenue, yesterday was granted possession of the lamps and 25 cents damages from his mother-in-law, Mrs. John Starz, of Ferguson, by a jury in Circuit Judge Wurdeman's court at Clayton.

The suit, begun by Harris after he and his wife, who divorced him in June, 1925, separated, also will cost Mrs. Starz about $60 in court costs. Harris must pay his attorney's fees. During two years of married life, Mr. and Mrs. Harris were separated and reconciled several times, and on one occasion the wife took to her mother's home three coal oil lamps. On the last reconciliation, she returned only one lamp, and after the final separation Oct. 21, 1924, Harris sued in justice court at Ferguson for the return of the lamps.

Justice Garrett allowed him the lamps and $25 damages, and Mrs. Starz appealed. At the trial yesterday Harris said the only damage to the lamps he could point out was a broken chimney on one, which could be replaced for 25 cents.

$28,915 OF AUTO LICENSE FEES IN DEFUNCT BANKS

Secretary of State Reports to Senate; Total of $7,893,000 Paid to Treasurer Since February.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18. — A report that $28,915.90 in State automobile license funds is tied up in defunct banks that were selected as depositories by Secretary of State Charles U. Becker was forwarded to the Senate today by Becker, in response to a resolution adopted by the Senate yesterday, calling for a full report on the financial status of the automobile registration department.

An audit of the automobile license collections by Becker's department for the last five years is in progress, growing out of the failure last August of the Citizens' Security Bank of Englewood. When this bank closed it had a deposit of $25,013.65 in automobile license funds, in Becker's name. A claim has been filed by the Attorney-General for preferred payment, based on an assignment of the claim to the State by Becker, and a contention that the funds were not properly deposited in the name of the State.

Becker's report shows a deposit of $25,013.65 and $198.16 in interest due in the Citizens' Security Bank of Englewood; a deposit balance of $12.50 and $1532.73 in interest due, in the defunct Federal Trust Co. of Kansas City; and a deposit of $2157.86 in the defunct Farmers' Exchange Bank of Gallatin, carried there by Don C. McVay of Gallatin, manager of the branch license office at Gallatin. Last February the automobile license fee deposit in the Federal Trust Co. of Kansas City totaled nearly $300,000.

The report showed total collections of $7,926,126 in automobile license fees from Feb. 1, 1926, to Jan. 17, 1927, of which $7,893,500 has been turned into the State treasury. Becker stated he had turned over to the Treasurer $9985 in interest on automobile deposits during 1926. He has stated his predecessors did not turn in the interest to the State.

MINISTER, 60, WEDS HIS ADOPTED DAUGHTER, 38

Bride Had Lived in Home of Former City Temple (London) Pastor Since She Was 7.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The Rev. Reginald John Campbell, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Brighton, since 1924, and for 12 years pastor of City Temple, London, gave his parishioners and many friends a surprise when he married Ethel Gertrude Smith, his adopted daughter, yesterday.

The bride, who is 38 years old, was adopted by the Rev. Mr. Campbell and his first wife at the age of 7. She is a life-long friend of his daughter, Mrs. Lecouteur, and was a devoted companion of his late wife.

After Mrs. Campbell's death, Miss Smith devoted herself to her foster-father, who is 60. She acted as his secretary.

The Rev. Mr. Campbell and Mrs. Campbell are now on their way to Algiers, on the northern coast of Africa.

The Rev. R. J. Campbell in 1915 returned to the Church of England after he had spent 20 years as a Non-conformist minister. He is well-known in the United States, having lectured in various cities.

Policeman Shoots Negro.

John McCartney, 40 years old, a Negro, of 2001 Wash street, was shot in the hip at 9:30 p. m. yesterday by Patrolman Thomas Grisham, who had arrested him as a disturber on complaint of two other Negroes. Grisham reported that while he was calling for a patrol wagon at a call box at Eighteenth and Biddle streets, McCartney seized his night stick and lunged at him. Grisham said he fired one shot at the ground, but when the Negro continued to advance, fired at his legs.

PART TWO — ST. LOUIS, TUESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 18, 1927. — PAGES 13—18

CLOSING STREET WILL GIVE CITY PARCEL POST SITE

Government Will Recommend Purchase of Property Next to Postoffice if 17th Street Is Deeded.

NO BEARING ON NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

Growth of St. Louis Postal Business 128 Per Cent in 10 Years and Population 10 Per Cent Cause.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—If the City of St. Louis will close Seventeenth street at Walnut street and deed the property to the Federal Government, the Postoffice Department will recommend the purchase of the property adjoining the general postoffice near the Union Station for the erection of a parcel post annex.

This tentative proposal was included in the report made by Postmaster-General New and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon yesterday to the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds in presenting the minimum needs throughout the country for additional space to house governmental activities.

Frank E. McMillan, the postoffice engineer, said the proposal should not be confused with the prospective Government office building for which a survey was completed recently by W. F. Field of the Treasury Department.

The Government rents the present parcel post annex near the general postoffice for $12,500 a year.

Population Increase 10 Per Cent.

After recalling that the population of St. Louis had increased 10 per cent from 1910 to 1920, whereas the postal receipts had increased 128 per cent from 1915 to 1925, a statement by the Postoffice Department said: "It would seem the growth of the postal business in St. Louis will in the near future call for additional space and the present site will not permit of an addition to meet such needs."

"Just east of the general postoffice in St. Louis is a piece of land extending from Clark avenue on the south to the parcel post annex on the north," the statement continued. "This site is 100 feet wide by 384 feet in length and is owned by several different persons. The above tract, however, will not face square with the front of the postoffice building, but if 50 feet additional on the north should also be purchased, the site would square with the front of the postoffice building. Both parcels should be purchased, namely 100 feet wide on Clark avenue, and extending north a distance of 434 feet.

"Seventeenth street is located between the above parcels of ground and the postoffice building proper and does not extend beyond Clark avenue. It is believed that if the city would close this street and permit its use by the Postoffice Department the Government would be able to control the property from Moore street on the east to the Federal building on the west, a distance of 180 feet, and from Clark avenue on the south to Walnut street on the north, 384 feet.

"If the city of St. Louis will close Seventeenth street at Walnut and deed the same to the Government, it is recommended that the adjoining property as above referred described be purchased under the provisions of the public buildings bill."

McMillan said nothing had been done to get the co-operation of the city in the proposal.

"As far as I know this is the first time the Postoffice Department's plan has been revealed to anyone," he said. "No appropriation was asked for the proposal because the Government first wants to know what the city will do, he explained.

In making the general report to Congress, Secretary Mellon and Postmaster-General New estimated that at least $176,000,000 would be required to provide the additional space contemplated in some 225 projects throughout the country. Included in the report were recommendations for the erection of a new postoffice building in Kansas City, near the Union Station, for all postal activities, to cost approximately $3,000,000; for a new building in Sedalia, to cost about $170,000, and for new buildings in Trenton and Sikeston.

Earthquake Felt in Tokio.

TOKIO, Jan. 18.—A sharp earthquake was felt here early today. It was more severe at Sendai north of here, and other places in the northern part of Hondo Island on which Tokio is located. Clocks stopped and some old walls fell, but there were no casualties or material damage. The imperial observatory reported the shock was centered at sea.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS AUTHORITY OF CONGRESS TO COMPEL TESTIMONY

Ruling in Daugherty Contempt Case Is That Right to Conduct Investigations Is Essential to Legislation.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The power of congressional committees to conduct investigations was upheld by the United States Supreme Court yesterday. It held that the power to investigate included the power to compel witnesses to attend, and punish them for failure to do so.

The case involved was the celebrated one of Mal S. Daugherty of Washington Court House, O., and arose from his refusal to go before the Brookhart-Wheeler committee of the Senate during its famous investigation of the official conduct of the then Attorney-General, Harry Daugherty, brother of Mal Daugherty.

No more important decision has come down in years, and it had been eagerly awaited, not only by Congress, but by lawyers, publicists and others throughout the country who realized its significance. Had it gone the other way, it would have meant the end of such investigations as those that uncovered official wrongdoing in the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills oil leases, the Veterans' Bureau frauds, the corrupt primary elections, the Daugherty case itself, and many which have set the country to thinking.

Possibilities in Decision.

Not less interesting will be its immediate practical results. It may mean that Harry Sinclair, multi-millionaire oil magnate, will have to go to jail for refusing to testify before the Walsh committee in the Teapot Dome inquiry.

It offers a similar possibility in the cases of Samuel Insull, Chicago Traction magnate; State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe of Chicago, and Thomas Cunningham, prominent Pennsylvania politician, all of whom refused to testify before the Senate committee headed by Senator Reed of Missouri, during the recent investigation of corruption in the Republican Senatorial primaries in Illinois and Pennsylvania.

By its clear and emphatic statement of the reasons that make such investigations necessary, the Court gave a smashing blow to the propaganda against "Government by Investigation," which certain large business interests have carried on constantly during the last three years. That propaganda started on a great scale after the activity of the Walsh committee in the oil cases, and has assumed formidable proportions.

A "Liberal" Decision.

The decision belongs to that class known as "Liberal" and is one of the few thus describable which the Court has rendered in recent years. In view of that fact, it is remarkable to note that it was made without a dissenting voice. Justice Stone refrained from participating, because he had been connected with the case before his elevation to the bench.

Incidentally it lends some credence to the view that the august court is not wholly unresponsive to public opinions. This case had been before it for more than two years. That very fact strongly indicates that for a long period there was a division in the court, a division that eventually was composed.

Reports to that effect had long been current. Criticism of the Court for failure to announce its decision had been growing, and even was voiced on the floor of the Senate a month ago by Senator Heflin (Dem.) of Alabama.

Students of the court have observed in its opinions in recent years a distinct tendency to limit the powers exercised by Congress and to expand these exercised by the President and the courts. This tendency was especially shown in the recent case upholding the President's power to dismiss Federal appointees without the consent of the Senate, and brought forth a caustic and fiery dissent from three of the court's own members. The present decision is regarded as making some amends to Congress.

The decision was delivered from the bench by Justice Van Devanter, in the presence of a notable gathering of attorneys. Hardly had the reading been concluded before Senator Reed of Missouri announced its character on the floor of the Senate, and obtained unanimous consent for its publication in the Congressional Record.

"This decision is of vast importance to the House and Senate," he said. "In that it firmly established the right of either body in an investigation which relates to legislation to compel the attendance of witnesses on pain of punishment for contempt. Had it been otherwise the power of Congress would have been greatly circumscribed."

Comment of Senators.

Identical or similar opinions were given by many other Senators.

"It is highly gratifying," said Senator King (Dem.) of Utah. "All thoughtful men are aware that the power to investigate is one of the most important and useful powers possessed by Congress. It was inconceivable to me that any other opinion could be reached, in view of the history of our Government, although I know of the campaign of propaganda which has been waged against congressional investigations by the interests that have good reasons to fear them."

"The value of the power to investigate," said Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, "lies in the fact that investigations can be carried on by a fearless and honest minority, even when a majority is opposed to the purpose of the investigation. The late Senator La Follette many times, and Senator Walsh in the oil cases, declared that so long as the power to investigate remained, one determined and courageous man could expose a bad situation and compel justice to be done. It would have been a calamity if this power had been destroyed."

Senator Wheeler, whose effort to compel Mal Daugherty to testify, led to the present case, said:

"If the decision had gone the other way it would have just about put Congress out of business. We cannot legislate intelligently without information; often we cannot get the information without an investigation, and an investigation is certain to fail without the power to compel unwilling witnesses to furnish it."

Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana; Borah (Rep.) of Idaho; Hiram Johnson (Rep.) of California; La Follette (Rep.) of Wisconsin, and Howell (Rep.) of Nebraska made similar observations.

Books Have Been Burned.

It is an ironical commentary although not affecting the broad significance of the decision, that the immediate practical result which might be expected to follow has become impossible. The purpose of the Wheeler-Brookhart committee in summoning Mal Daugherty was to make him produce the account of his brother Harry, at Midland National Bank. The purpose was to learn whether Harry Daugherty had been accepting graft.

Despite the decision, the books will not be produced, for the sufficient reason that Harry Daugherty afterward burned them. This was admitted when he and Thomas Miller, former Alien Property Custodian, were tried in New York last year on charges of defrauding the Government of their services. That case resulted in a mistrial, and is soon to be retried.

History of Case.

The Wheeler-Brookhart committee, which had been operating in Washington, appointed a subcommittee in April, 1924, to go to Washington Court House to take the testimony of Mal Daugherty and examine the books of the bank of which he was president. When it arrived, a subpena was served on him, requiring him to appear before the committee. He ignored it.

Senators Brookhart and Wheeler reported this to the Senate, which thereupon ordered the Sergeant-at-Arms to take into custody "the body of the said Mal Daugherty," place him under arrest, and produce him at the bar of the Senate.

John J. McGrain, a Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, executed the warrant, but Mal Daugherty's counsel immediately obtained his release under a writ of habeas corpus issued by Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran of Cincinnati.

The case eventually was tried, and Judge Cochran granted a permanent injunction against the deputy, restraining him from arresting Daugherty on the ground that the Senate Committee had exceeded its authority in trying to compel Daugherty's attendance. He held that the Senate's power to compel testimony for the purpose of enlightening its legislative actions was not conferred by the Constitution and had never been upheld by the Supreme Court.

Furthermore, he declared that the Senate in this instance was not seeking information in connection with legislation, but was endeavoring "to place Harry Daugherty on trial for his official acts. This," he said, "it has no right to do."

The case was appealed to the Supreme Court, and there it remained from August, 1924, until yesterday.

Two Questions Considered.

In its opinion, the Supreme Court states that only two questions were to be considered, and they were: (1) "Whether the Senate (or the House of Representatives, either) has power through its own process, to compel a private individual to appear before it or one of its committees, and give testimony needed to enable it efficiently to exercise a legislative function belonging to it: and (2) whether the process was being employed in this in-

MEXICAN PRELATE LEADING REBELS, SAYS WAR OFFICE

Revolting Force in State of Jalisco Said to Be Under Command of Archbishop of Guadalajara.

MORE TROOPS SENT TO THAT SECTION

Socialists Decide to Delay Electoral Campaign for Obregon Because of Disturbed Conditions.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18.—The War Department says it has been informed that Francisco Orozco y Jiminez, Catholic Archbishop of Guadalajara, under the emblem "Long live Christ the King," is personally leading a rebel army in the State of Jalisco.

Headquarters of the Catholic church in Mexico City, which has repeatedy denied that the church is instigating uprisings, has no confirmation of the report that the Archbishop is leading rebellious forces.

Priests Discredit Report.

Catholic priests here refuse to credit the report that Archbishop Francisco Orozco Y Jiminez of Guadalajara has taken to the field as head of a Catholic rebellion.

They admit the possibility that he has gone to some ranch where he is surrounded by armed men for protection, as was the case in 1917, when he was also charged with rebellion.

The situation in Jalisco appears to be serious, for the War Department has ordered Federal reinforcements to go to that state. At last accounts the Federal forces had killed more than 100 rebels in the vicinity of Tepatitlan, after a similar engagement in which, the authorities announced, the rebels had suffered 100 casualties.

While Jalisco and Durango seem to be the two states where the revolt is most widespread, other sections, like Puebla and Tlaxcala, are witnessing fights.

Federal Leaders Optimistic.

Official circles are optimistic over the final outcome of the rebellion. This feeling is increased by the latest victories of the federals in the states of Jalisco and Durango and the fact that for several days one or two rebel leaders have daily been reported killed while others unconditionally surrendered.

Yesterday, Felipe Mendez and Jose Jesus Martinez, insurgent chieftains in the states of Guanajuato and Michoacan, respectively, fell while fighting the federals.

Gen. Cedillo, military commandant for San Luis Potosi, reports that he ordered a mobilization of troops aboard motor lorries to Villa Arriaga, Guanajuato, where Mendez was operating. Owing to "hearty co-operation from the Agrarians," he says, "the federals overtook the rebels at Rosario, killing Mendez and four others. Martinez was killed in an encounter with troops commanded by Maj. Aragon at Huizata, Michoacan.

Five rebels were killed by federals under Gen. Espinoso Cordova at San Antonio, in the state of Queretaro.

Defeat of Indians.

The War Department announces that 14 rebels were killed, in addition to the rebel chieftain Damaso Barraza, in the battle at San Bartolo, Durango, on Sunday. Three military columns are pursuing Tirso Gurrola, who fled with his forces when Barraza fell.

Gen. Francisco Manzo, military commandant for Sonora, reports that the Yaqui Indians suffered "an unprecedented defeat" at Huataciquili. He says the Indians lost their best warriors, but does not mention the extent of the casualties to either side.

Campaign activities looking to the presidential election of 1928 will be abandoned for the present in view of the disturbed domestic situation.

This decision is announced by the alliance of socialistic parties, which has been working for several months in the interest of former President Obregon. The Agrarian party has also forbidden its members to participate in further electoral activities at this time.

Archbishop Once Deported, but Allowed to Return.

The most Rev. Orozco y Jiminez, who headed the Mexican delegation to the Eucharistic Congress at Chicago last year, was arrested in Zacatecas, Mexico, in 1917, and with the Right Rev. Miguel de la Mora, Bishop of Zacatecas, was accused of being implicated in a plot to further the plans of Villa. He was exiled from Mexico but eventually was allowed to return.

Bishop Diaz Refused Entry Into Guatemala.

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Jan. 18.—Bishop Pascual Diaz, secretary of the Mexican Episcopate, was not allowed to enter Guatemalan territory because of a law prohibiting the entry of Jesuits. It is not known where he went.

Gen. Jose Alvarez, personal chief of staff to President Calles, declared in a statement today that the Mexican Government had documents signed by most of the Catholic Archbishops and Bishops of the Mexican Episcopate showing revolutionary activities by the Episcopate.

The statement was in reply to the Episcopate's denial of Alvarez's previous accusation that it had fomented an organized Catholic rebellion against the Calles Government. He reiterated these charges, declaring the Government had abundant proof of them.

Among the proofs, he said, are signed confessions made to the Government by captured rebels, documents signed by Rene Capistran Garza, refugee leader of the League for Defense of Religious Liberty, who was recently proclaimed "Provisional President of Mexico" by a border junta, propaganda by the league for defense of religious liberty, propaganda by the Knights of Columbus of the United States, and reports from many Mexican State Governors and military commanders conveying details of revolutionary propaganda by Catholic priests.

Taft Advocates Putting County Prosecutors Under State Control

Chief Justice, in Interview, Declares States Also Should Have Detective Force and Constabulary.

SUGGESTS REFORMS IN CRIMINAL LAW

CHIEF JUSTICE TAFT,
Of the U. S. Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Chief Justice Taft, in an interview with Oliver P. Newman in the current issue of Collier's Weekly, lays the duty of curbing crime and lawlessness at the doors of State Legislatures and advocates many far-reaching reforms in judicial procedure.

The Chief Justice, his interviewer says, feels that the seriousness of the crime situation and the need of action justify him in departing from the tradition of silence which attaches to the office of Chief Justice of the United States.

Chief Justice Taft, according to the interview, favors the abolition of grand juries as well as Police Court juries, and for the former would substitute a system of informations by prosecuting attorneys founded on investigation.

For State Constabulary.

He would have these officials in each county under the control of the State Attorneys-General, and in turn have the State departments of Justice co-ordinate the activities of all police officers of the State. Each State, the Chief Justice thinks, should have a State detective service and a State constabulary.

"The State governments," the Chief Justice is quoted as saying, "have largely avoided effort and expense in the initial arrest and prosecution of crime up to this time. They ought now to assume a duty in this regard."

While constitutional rights of defendants should be preserved, the Chief Justice is quoted as favoring greater freedom for Judges in advising with and instructing juries without danger of having that made grounds for reversal.

One Appeal Enough.

He favors greater liberality in introduction of evidence and greater discretion on its admissability.

In criminal cases, one appeal, under ordinary circumstances, the Chief Justice believes sufficient, and for prompt trials he advocates more Justices.

Paroles, Mr. Taft believes, have been abused, and should be granted with greater care, and he attacks "soft" treatment for convicts. On that point, his interviewer quotes the Chief Justice as saying:

"We ought to give criminals who are confined for years a place where they may live in a wholesome way, but we ought not to make our prisons a refuge, whereby, through entertainments and efforts to reconcile prisoners to their confinement, we give them the impression that they are the guests of the people instead of persons under severe discipline for punishment. The first object of the punishment of crime is to deter others."

FORMER MEMBER ASSAILS TARIFF COMMISSION CRITIC

Culbertson's Wife Had Land When He Was Active in Wheat Case, Burgess Charges.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—In a defense of the Tariff Commission on which he formerly served as a representative from Pennsylvania, William Burgess told a Senate investigating committee yesterday that critics of the commission had been guilty of the practices about which they themselves complained.

Burgess charged that William S. Culbertson, a former commissioner and a present Minister to Rumania, who criticized Commissioner Glassie for participating in the sugar case when his wife owned an interest in a Southern sugar plantation, had neglected to tell the committee that he had taken an active part in the wheat case when his wife owned one-quarter section of Kansas wheat land from which she received an annual rental of $275, which he said was double the amount Mrs. Glassie received from sugar.

AMERICAN OIL COMPANIES APPEAL TO MEXICAN COURTS

Seek to Enjoin Cancellation of Rights; Land Law May Further Complicate Matters.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18.—The question of violation of the property rights of American oil companies under the new petroleum laws has been thrown into the Mexican courts by the filing by the oil companies of restraining orders to prevent infringement of their rights and cancellation of their drilling permits.

The newspaper Excelsior declares it impossible for Mexico to accept "international arbitration of her present differences with the United States.

New complexities will be added to the situation on Jan. 21, when the alien land law goes into effect. Under it all foreign landowners will be obliged to file declarations with the Government, thus accepting the law, or will be considered to have renounced their rights to an appeal to their Governments so far as such properties are concerned. Apparently there is not likely to be any immediate confiscations of foreign owned land.

EAST PRUSSIA FEARFUL OF AGGRESSION BY POLAND

Declares France Is Backing Proposal to Dismantle Last of Fortresses.

By the Associated Press.

KOENIGSBURG, East Prussia, Jan. 18.—Aggressive intentions by Poland are seen by the Patriotic League of East Prussia, which in a manifesto sent to the Berlin Government protests against dismantling the fortifications of Koenigsberg and Loetzen.

"The fact that Poland, with French backing, insists on depriving us of this last defense proves Poland's aggressive intention toward East Prussia," the manifesto says. "We protest against such a campaign, voicing the expectation that the German Government will remain firm on this question."

The question of dismantling the fortresses on Germany's eastern frontier is at issue between the German Government, the Interallied Military Control Commission and the Allied Council of Ambassadors. Termination of the interallied control over Germany's armament hinges on this question.

ADVOCATES ITALO-ARAB RACE

Professor Warns Italy's Population Will Double in Future.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Jan. 18.—Elimination of the Berber race in Italian colonies of Northern Africa and the selection of a "pure Arab breed," which, having an anthropological affinity with Mediterranean types might form a superior Italo-Arab race, was advocated by Senator Leonardo Bianchi, former Minister of Instruction, in a lecture last night.

Declaring that within 70 years Italy would have a population of 80,000,000, Bianchi emphasized that the absorbing problem for Italy was to supply work and food for double the present population. Therefore it was necessary to find a new outlet for emigration.

French Traveling Trade School.

By the Associated Press.

GRENOBLE, Jan. 18.—France's first traveling trade school is attended enthusiastically by village workmen. It opened at Venose, a small village near here, and will tour the surrounding country. Carpentry, smithing, leather-working, welding, wood carving and other trades are taught. Complete equipment for proper instruction and trained supervisors assure excellent manual education. The school was organized under the direction of the Ministry of Public Instruction.

Latin-American Labor Backs Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18.—Labor organizations of seven Latin-American countries have telegraphed their support to "the Mexican proletariat" in the "rebellious campaign carried out by American industrialists in the United States," says an announcement by Ricardo Trevino, Secretary-General of the Mexican Regional Confederation of Labor. Messages were received from organizations in Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico, Nicaragua and Panama.

POLISH GOVERNMENT SEIZES FUNDS OF ALLEGED PLOTTERS

Denies Arrests Are Directed Against Racial Minorities, but Correspondent Disputes This.

Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—In connection with the arrest of 300 alleged communists in an alleged revolutionary plot, the Polish Government has confiscated funds in a Vilna Bank belonging to a White Russian society. Three directors of the bank were arrested, charged with distributing funds to the plotters. A fourth White Russian member of the Polish Diet has been arrested, as well as five soldiers of the Warsaw garrison.

The Government organ, Epoca, says the arrests were not directed against racial minorities in Poland but only against the plot, but the Berlin Tageblatt's Warsaw correspondent contradicts this, pointing out that a number of the prominent men arrested are not communists. The correspondent intimates that the Government action is anti-Jewish and anti-Socialist.

DIES 24 HOURS AFTER WIFE

Viscount Bearsted, London's Former Lord Mayor, Passes Away.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Viscount Bearsted, better known as Sir Marcus Samuel, before he was raised to the Peerage, died in his London home last night, 24 hours after his wife's death in the same house. He was at one time a great financial figure and shipowner and was a pioneer in the oil industry and founder of the Transport and Trading Co.

Marcus Samuel was born in 1853 and was created a Baron in 1921 and a Viscount in 1925. In 1881 he married Fanny Elizabeth Benjamin, daughter of the late Benjamin Benjamin. He was knighted for services rendered to H. M. S. Victorious, when that battleship ran ashore in Chinese waters in 1898. He served as Lord Mayor of London and received his Peerage for "eminent public and national services."

ITALY BUYS FAMOUS VILLA

Structure With Decorations by Raphael Erected in 1511.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 18.—The Italian Government has purchased the famous Villa Farnesina, which was erected in 1511 by Peruzzi, for the papal banker, Agostino Chigi, an enthusiastic admirer of art and patron of Raphael.

The structure, which is renaissance in design, was valued by Italian experts at 14,000,000 lire but was sold to the Italian Government for 12,000,000 ($480,000) the lower price being accepted because of the admiration of the owners for Premier Mussolini.

Raphael painted some of the rooms with mythological subjects. His designs were used by his pupils in decorating the ceilings and other masters contributed to make it one of the most artistic jewels of Rome.

PERU TURNS DOWN KELLOGG'S TACNA DISPUTE SOLUTION

Rejects Cession to Bolivia Because Rights Nation Has Defended Cannot Be Marketed.

WILLING TO RECEIVE OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Plan of Kellogg, However, Has Been Considered Last Chance of Settling Old Controversy.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Solution of the 40-year-old dispute between Chile and Peru over the Provinces of Tacna and Arica was as far away today as it was when the American Plebiscitary Commission decided that a successful plebiscite was out of the question.

Peru, in a note presented to the State Department yesterday by Ambassador Velarde, rejected the proposal of Secretary Kellogg that the provinces be ceded, with appropriate guarantees, to land-locked Bolivia. The latter had previously accepted the proposal and Chile had agreed to it in principle.

Thus, American arbitration officials find themselves in the position of having had turned down what Secretary Kellogg described as the only solution of the aging controversy. All other proposals, he said, had been blocked because the question turned "upon a point of national honor," and each country applied to every settlement suggested the test of whether it would enable the other to "claim a moral victory."

Plebiscite Not Held.

Peru pointed out in her latest note that since the plebiscite had not been held, Tacna and Arica "continue to be Peruvian," and asserted that she could not accept the proposed cession of the provinces "to anyone, whether by purchase or by any other method, because he who has been defending for more than 40 years his rights over said territories cannot convert them into a merchandise subject to a price, however large this may be."

The Kellogg proposal complicates the issue instead of simplifying it, the note said. Peru noted, however, that her rejection did not carry with it the "intention of obstructing any other solutions."

"Far from that," the note asserted, "Peru has accepted the partial or complete internationalization of provinces, has accepted their division, giving Bolivia gratuitously an outlet to the shore and an inlet whose conditions would allow it to be converted into a large, suitable and safe port.

Will Listen to Suggestions.

"Finally it is disposed to listen to all suggestions for a settlement but under the conditions that the provinces of Tacna and Arica be returned to it, the latter with its port and Morro."

The note dealt with each of Kellogg's proposed conditions and concluded by saying that Peru could not accept "even at the risk of running counter to its traditional policy of deference to the United States of America, a solution which carries with it the forsaking of its citizens, which is what it would amount to, if they are left in the state of subjection and shame in which they live today."

TURKISH FORCES SEIZE KURDISH SHEIK AFTER 3 YEARS' CHASE

Abdul Rahman Captured; His Brother Said Was Hanged as Rebel in 1923.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 18.—After three years of guerilla warfare Turkish forces finally have conquered the Kurdish rebel Sheik Abdul Rahman. He is brother of the even more notorious Sheik Said, who stirred up the Kurdish rebellion of 1923 and was subsequently hanged.

Since the death of his brother, Abdul Rahman, with a considerable following, has harried the Eastern provinces and impeded the attempts of the Kemalists to establish reforms in that semi-savage corner of the republic. The capture of the rebel and his entire band in the village of Maamouret-Ul Aziz, is accounted an important achievement toward the establishment of security in Anatolia.

So wild is this region that martial law established in 1923, after the suppression of Sheik Said's revolt, has been prolonged for another year by recent vote of the National Assembly. Moreover 1500 persons in this region, opposed the reforms inaugurated by the republic, will be transferred to Western provinces.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mr. Lionberger Davis Explains.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FIRST, let me express deep appreciation for your fair and impartial report of the last meeting of the Citizens' Terminal Committee, held on Tuesday, Jan. 11, 1927. You are to be commended highly for giving prominent space to the views of both sides of the so-called bridge exchange ordinance. I hope and believe you will continue to print the facts; and, if and when the facts are made known to the people of St. Louis and of East St. Louis, opinions based thereon may lead to correct conclusions and wise and vigorous action.

I quite agree with the following quotation from your editorial of Friday evening, Jan. 14, in which you say:

"The minority report of J. Lionberger Davis, who is now the leading objector of the bill, does not offer grounds for intelligent discussion."

For more than a month, and at every meeting of the Citizens' Terminal Committee, I have asked for facts, within the knowledge of the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis, whose president, Mr. Henry Miller, attended each meeting of the committee, for facts which cannot be secured from any other source, unless the majority members of the committee have them and will disclose them. I have asked the chairman, Mr. Harry Scullin, and all other members of the committee for facts and have been unable to secure them. How can I offer grounds (which I assume must be based on facts) when they lie exclusively within the knowledge or possession of the other side of this controversy?

You say in the same editorial:

"Mr. Davis apparently is opposed to the whole exchange transaction as proposed in the ordinance."

I am, "as proposed in the ordinance," and also to the provisions relating to franchise ordinances which, as far as I can learn, have little, if any, bearing upon the proposed exchange of uses of the Eads Bridge and tunnel and the railroad deck of the Municipal (Free) Bridge.

You say in the same editorial:

"He (Davis) wants the city to build a new vehicular bridge, a remote possibility."

I did not say I wanted the city to build such a bridge. What I did say, over my own signature, was:

"A suitable passenger and vehicular bridge can be built for about $2,000,000 or $3,000,000. Why, we ask, should we validate and perpetuate the exploitation of the people of St. Louis and of East St. Louis? Perhaps the city could acquire the Eads Bridge and tunnel by purchase or by condemnation on fair terms. If not, it could build its own vehicular bridge."

I have had figures submitted to me relating the costs of a suitable vehicular bridge over the Mississippi River, costs below $2,000,000. The Eads Bridge and tunnel, however, are now bonded, and capitalized for $14,240,000, and generous interest and dividends are being paid thereon to the holders of those securities and would be continuously paid after the adoption of the proposed ordinance.

You say in the same editorial:

"The report (Davis' minority report) is so full of appeals to hostility caused by past conditions and prejudices that it is difficult to find a salient point for judicious discussion."

I am not responsible for "hostility for past conditions." I have had no hostility against the Terminal, as the editor well knows when his views and opinions were different from mine. I am in no way responsible for nor did I appeal to "hostility caused by past conditions."

I said in my minority report:

"I am not opposed to a fair, impartial and just treatment of the Terminal Railroad Association, provided the Terminal will keep its records and books in such a way that the people of St. Louis can know the true facts of its operations and charges."

I agree with the statement in the same editorial:

"We want a fair bargain and fair terms for the city and ALL the railroads." (The capitals are mine.)

When the facts, which are material and relevant, are made known, it will be possible to answer the invitation of the editor in the same editorial:

"If any better formula than that adopted with regard to the terms on which independent railroads may use the bridge may be suggested, the Post-Dispatch has an open mind and will give it full consideration."

If the Post-Dispatch will continue to seek the necessary facts and make them known, perhaps a sensible and fair suggestion may be made by those who have the best interests of St. Louis at heart.

I agree most heartily with the concluding paragraph of your editorial just discussed:

"We do want, as soon as possible, the legitimate expansion of terminal facilities adequate to handle St. Louis traffic and another free highway between St. Louis and East St. Louis."

By all fair and just means, let us get adequate terminal facilities and another free highway across the river; but, pray God, let us hold the one free highway we now have but would lose if the proposed ordinance should become a law.

J. LIONBERGER DAVIS.

THE PEOPLE ARE SPEAKING.

It would be hard to find a better illustration of the value in government and the power of aroused public opinion than that exemplified by the protest against the Coolidge administration's imperialistic course in Nicaragua. From the first news of our Government's activities in Nicaragua, when we practically took possession of the country in order to set up our Government there under specious pleas of protecting American lives and property and interests, the tide of public opinion has been rising.

When all the facts became known, when Mr. Coolidge submitted his message and Mr. Kellogg exhibited his bolshevism scare, and both indicated their hostility to Mexico, the public protest rushed towards a climax. The press printed all the facts. The great majority of newspapers expressed strong disapproval of our imperialistic policy in Latin-America. Independent newspapers lashed the administration for its unfounded charges against Mexico and its harsh and menacing attitude, which invited war. The protest was strengthened by voices from the Senate. Borah thundered against imperialism. Other Senators entered their protest. The people began to be heard from through the press and other agencies of publicity.

The atmosphere in Washington has completely changed. Mr. Kellogg's nightmare has been laughed away. Mr. Coolidge's policy is discredited. He cannot proceed along the lines originally marked out by the interests and influences surrounding him, without defying public opinion. He must listen to the voice of the American people.

We do not know what Mr. Coolidge will do. We do not see how he can proceed with the discredited officials in the State Department. We do not see how he can help ridding himself of the ridiculous Kellogg, the discredited Olds, and reorganizing his State Department. We do not see how Mr. Coolidge can avoid reversing the course of the administration, and in reversing, find new subordinates, who will restore its credit and regain the confidence of the people. But it is certain that Mr. Coolidge cannot carry out the policy upon which he has entered.

The press of Europe and of Latin-America spoke too hastily when they camned the United States as imperialistic in its aims and methods in Mexico and Central America. The foreign press only heard the quavering voice of Kellogg and the uncertain voice of the President. They are listening in now to the voice of the American people, condemning what the administration has done, and demanding that the United States abandon the strong arm and return to the policy of friendly co-operation and noninterference with the internal affairs of the Latin-American peoples. They will have to revise their opinions of America.

The unpleasant incident conveys a warning to all Presidents and public officials. It suggests that the way of wisdom is to take the people into their confidence before acting. This will avoid trouble and humiliation.

MOUNT COOLIDGE.

The movement to name some high mountain peak for Calvin Coolidge has fallen flat. A group of Cal's Vermont worshipers undertook this labor of love, but have given it up because they say they could not find any mountain that is unnamed. We are amazed that men from a hard and stony land, where persistence is supposed to be a reigning virtue, should give up so easily. The thing to do is to change the name of some peak. We do not think the hot lips of Mauna Loa's crater could ever form Cal's name, but one of Greenland's icy mountains might do very well.

We shall not lose our temper because a French historian says the Basques beat Columbus across the Atlantic by several centuries, but we warn the wretch not to claim that the Basques sailed the blue Cape Cod before the Cabots and Lowells.

ALL OVER.

Mr. Kellogg's bolshevism scare is all over. It has dissolved into nothingness, and languishes at length in that realm of the immaterial made famous by what the little boy shot at. It stampeded for a day some of the more subservient administration newspapers, but when the country indicated what it thought of that kind of diplomacy the panic ended.

However, there is no disposition among the people who prefer truth to fiction to let Mr. Kellogg go unwhipped for putting out such a canard. The New York Times, which is the arch enemy of bolshevism, condemns him for attempting to justify himself with such a preposterous yarn and thinks it was ignoble of him to so belittle his office.

This incident was constructively picturesque. When Mr. Kellogg grabbed the ball and attempted his spectacular run around left end he was clearly in the territory of the Times. It was a breathless country that rose from its seats in that moment to see if the Times would let him get by with it. What a shout went up when it promptly tackled him and rolled with him the whole length of the editorial page! Even Senator La Follette, who is no part of the Times claque, was jubilant about it. He could hardly contain himself while telling about it on the Senate floor.

The Senator also pointed out how unfair the charge was to Mexico, which must have occurred to many of us. Mexico is a highly socialized State. She is not often happy in her relations with such an opposite theory of government as we hold in the United States, but that does not put her upon the side of bolshevism. The President of Mexico opposes bolshevism. He has said so by word of mouth and in his official acts. Senator La Follette thinks Mr. Kellogg was disingenuous in not recalling that this is so and trying to make it appear that the opposite is the case.

Nor was it less than an almost unthinkable stupidity for Mr. Kellogg to make it appear that bolshevism is any such world-wide peril as he would have us believe. What can his knowledge of world politics be like when it is quite well known to have been nothing of the sort for several years? The New York Times ought to know what its status is. The Times has addressed itself to the subject with such passion that nobody questions its authority. It is a field in which it is truly expert. Yet the Times says of the bolshevists that "they are in fact everywhere today outside of Russia a discredited and hopeless lot."

That, in our opinion, ends the bolshevist debate. Mr. Kellogg resorted to make-believe to save himself, thus adding to folly the shame of faking. It is hard to imagine that his plight could be worse.

AN ENCOURAGING DECISION.

It has for some time seemed that in the long battle over public corruption under the Harding administration there would not be a point won for honest government, but this happily is not to be the case.

Despite failure of the people to repudiate at the polls the party which made public office the highway to private fortune; the promptness with which 12 good men and true acquitted Fall and Doheny; failure of the Daugherty jury to reach any verdict at all, and the reprisals visited upon some of those who exposed all this rottenness to our wondering gaze, the United States Supreme Court makes at last a point for the kind of government the founders of the republic thought we could have.

This omnipotent tribunal rules that a congressional committee can compel testimony in any matter pertaining to legislation, an issue arising from the refusal of Mal S. Daugherty to bring the books of his bank before the Senate committee investigating the lurid career of his brother, Harry M. Daugherty, in the office of Attorney-General of the United States.

Delivered by Justice Van Devanter, in a courtroom crowded with lawyers, and instantly communicated to the Senate, where it was hailed by the scant number of those who still believe that without honesty in public places the Government cannot stand, this decision is accredited with momentous importance. It is, indeed, of more importance than either the apathy of the people at the polls or the indisposition of juries to send anybody to prison. If fortune was a long time favoring the side of public morality with a point, or government of, for and by privilege had seemed invincible, the decision was a knockout when it came.

We know now that the men who refused to testify before the Reed committee, for all their political eminence and influence, were in excess of their rights. We know that Mr. Crowe, the Prosecuting Attorney at Chicago, and Samuel Insull, public utilities magnate, can be made to tell what they know of the primary slush fund made up for Frank L. Smith. We know that Thomas F. Cunningham, who refused to come in and tell about the use of money in Philadelphia for William S. Vare, can be brought in perforce.

After all, that is a point worth establishing. It is worth all the disappointments meanwhile to those who took one triumph of evil after another to be a terrible portent of our time.

Perhaps the tide has turned. Perhaps from this on it will be a succession of victories for honest government, and no one will recall the dark days in which all seemed to be lost.

THE PETROLEUM LAW IN COURT.

Four American oil companies have decided to test the new petroleum law in the Mexican courts. The Mexican Government, it is reported, cordially approves this action. President Calles, it will be remembered, in replying to one of the early Kellogg notes, pointed out that foreign investors could appeal to the courts for redress of any wrong they may claim to have suffered.

Those trials, assuming they are fairly conducted, ought to be illuminating. The complainants will be privileged to state their grievances in full and in detail, and the Government, in its defense, will be obligated to justify its course. The contests will not be cluttered up with the misunderstandings of long distance diplomatic exchanges. The specter of propaganda will not muddle the scenario. Those trials presumably will be battles of facts.

Meantime, it is of record that other foreign investors in Mexico's oil lands have complied with the new law. Such compliance, to be sure, does not conclusively prove the justice of the law. Circumstantially, however, it does indicate that the new law is not so viciously confiscatory as it has been painted. For the British and Dutch oil magnates who have large holdings in Mexico are just as jealous of their property rights and no more inclined to submit to confiscation than are American magnates.

By 5100, a geologist says, this tilting earth will have moved Niagara Falls to Chicago. Our bet is that long before the mad merry Maytime of that year Chicago will have gobbled up the Falls, the Adirondacks and the minarets of Gotham.

THE FATE OF THE PROFESSOR.

What has become of the old-fashioned professor—the diligent student of past and present learning, the austere and self-respecting searcher after truth, the apostle of culture—in a word, the intellectual aristocrat of the campus?

He is surely not to be encountered in the mammoth architectural clusters which are currently called universities. In these, there are chiefly well groomed, button-holing, expert publicity seekers for themselves and the institutions they represent.

In the course of a deliciously ironical article, in the January number of the Scientific Monthly, Dr. Otto Heller places the blame for this mutation of the professorial type at the door of the public's indifference toward higher learning. It is this attitude, he holds, which accounts for the passing of the scholarly professor and the rise of the present campus Babbitt.

With his solution we desire to pick no quarrel, but we do wish Dr. Heller had shown how inevitable the mutation really was, once the higher learning was placed upon its present expanded basis, and it was thus forced to appeal to large classes of students who were congenitally incapable of appreciating scholarship and culture. Any profession, if subjected to a similar democratization, would have deteriorated as has that of the professor.

Dr. Heller proposes no way out of this impasse, but he actually suggests one when he defines the true purpose of higher education as "steering the gifted minority from the crowd." It is only by recognizing this purpose and shaping themselves to serve it, that the universities can once more attain their old respectability and vitality. Johns Hopkins, by abolishing the first two years of undergraduate work and becoming again an institution of higher learning, has shown the way to a real renaissance of education. It is in such institutions that the old-fashioned professor, now an outcast from the academic groves, may again find a haven of peace and usefulness.

We wonder, too, just what would happen in Washington if an impish correspondent should wave a red rag in the face of "Nervous Nellie."

DOLLAR DIPLOMACY.

From the Omaha World-Herald.

SUPPOSE that the United States were the little country and Nicaragua the big one, and suppose, too, that the Congress at Washington were controlled by the Democrats instead of by the Republicans. Suppose that after the election and inauguration of Coolidge and Dawes, John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan had started a revolution. Suppose they had been able to compel Mr. Coolidge to retire from the presidency, and had driven Mr. Dawes out of the country under a threat of death. Suppose then that the Democratic Congress had presumed to "elect" Mr. Davis President and that Nicaragua had refused to recognize him. Suppose that Mr. Davis thereupon had stepped aside and prevailed upon Congress to "elect" Mr. Bryan President. Suppose that Mr. Dawes had then returned to the country, had been declared President, and undertaken to assume the powers of government. And suppose, finally, that Nicaragua should thereupon recognize Mr. Bryan as President and sent its warships and marines to prevent the elected Vice President, Mr. Dawes, from assuming the presidential office under the constitutional rule of succession. This is precisely what has happened in Nicaragua. The Liberal party won the presidential election there by almost a two-to-one vote, in a regular and orderly fashion. The United States, and especially those of its citizens who have big investments in Nicaragua, wanted the conservative party, now under the leadership of Diaz, to win. Because it was defeated we have gone in with our armed forces to make Diaz President anyhow.

A DELICACY IN BREAD.

A. L. GILLIS in the Pathfinder.

ABOUT 70 years ago my grandfather was agent for the Pawnee Indians on their reservation in what is now Western Nebraska. I have often heard my father, who was then a boy, tell of those Indians eating grasshoppers and the interesting way in which they caught them. They would dig a deep hole in the ground and then choosing a time when there was no wind and when a fire would burn on the prairie slowly and could be kept under control, they would encircle several acres around this hole with a ring of fire and drive the hoppers into the hole and capture them by the bushel. They were then dried and ground into meal to be mixed with their cornmeal and made into bread.

OUR RELATIONS WITH TURKEY.

From the Washington Post.

EVERY consideration of public policy requires the United States to resume diplomatic, cultural and commercial relations with the Republic of Turkey. American commerce, including products of the Southern states, will be destroyed by ruinous Turkish tariffs unless the treaty is ratified. Nothing can possibly be gained by any religious or educational institutions of the United States by refusing to resume relations with Turkey. No good can come to the Christian minorities in Turkey by a policy of aloofness on the part of the United States.

THE "DOGOODER" DEFINED.

From the "Scrap Bag" of the Paris (Mo.) Mercury.

WE FIRST encountered the word in Mr. Mencken's enjoyable diabolical American Mercury, if we recall correctly in one of Herbert Asbury's infamous and shocking contributions to the good of American Methodism, and it was probably coined by some of the young men who, with delightful swagger, are helping Mencken in his effort to ridicule the American amen corner into a return to sanity. The moment we encountered it our salivary secretions began to show increased activity and we smacked our lips in greedy anticipation. Here was a word with history-making potentiality, a word with the needed punch, carrying in its eight letters caricature more stinging and more complete than even Senator Reed, or for that matter the editor of America's greatest unpopular magazine himself, could limn in a page. A valiant word with good plain Anglo-Saxon ancestry—a family Henry himself does not cultivate any too assiduously—and withal a word that sprang to life in response to a national need. The dogooder is a 1927 model of that type of homo sapiens referred to by the reporters of the sayings of Jesus as "Scribes and Pharisees." He is all the hokum, all the blather and all the babble of the modern so-called "social movement." His eye is trained from dawn till dusk on diseases in the social body that call for remedy and he is ready at a moment's notice with a patent formula guaranteed to do the work. As a rule, the cure is worse than the disease, and it never fails to take the form of compulsory correction through governmental agencies, with "liberal appropriations" to put the machinery in operation and fat salaries to make it worth the time and effort of the group of dogooders who, as a matter of course, are to be in charge. It is rare that the nostrums of the dogooder contemplate the doing of the most benign act for nothing or accomplishing a lovely purpose by voluntary service independent of so-called social agencies. He was born with a flare for the mazuma and the stipend is an integral and indispensable part of his high and holy yearnings for those about him.

SCIENTIFIC SUGGESTION.

Mankind is frightened by whatever is formidable. This applies even to words. People have an instinctive aversion to polysyllabic inhabitants of the dictionary. The average man skips the page and the highbrow looks at the word only long enough to learn to mispronounce it. But if words are not grasped, ideas never will be assimilated. Therefore, shorten the words. As a starter, make "Neanderthal" "Neany." We do not blame the people of Tennessee for fighting shy of "Neanderthal," as we must look it up in the dictionary every time we wish to use it. "Neany" they would hug to their hairy chests, if the antievolution law allows them to have hairy chests.

THE TIRED CHILD. By Max Seham, M. D., and Grete Seham, Ph. D.

IN the good old days before children had come to be regarded as "biological organisms" it was generally believed that stout clothes, plenty to eat, plenty of sleep and work to do both in and out of school constituted an excellent opportunity to grow up successfully. It was. If a boy seemed to be suffering with what is now scientifically termed "chronic fatigue," the old folks called it laziness, and the exterior application of a now half-forgotten remedy seemed to yield results. Times have changed. Life has grown complex, and the social pace is swift. Formerly children had only to learn their lessons at school, and do some useful work at home. In contrast with this, consider the hardships of the modern school child; his nerve-racking struggles for credits enough to get by, the vital energy he must devote to the arduous task of going to the movies, his exhausting social duties and all the "advantages" he has to assimilate. In many cases he is even compelled to drive a flivver to school. And so the modern child has become a "biological organism," scientifically afflicted with chronic fatigue. The modern mother, upon noting the old symptoms, does not go out and cut a switch; she buys and reads "The Tired Child," by Drs. Seham and Seham, and is grieved to learn that poor Willie is overworked and undernourished. It is much easier on Bill and, in occasional cases, no doubt, much better for him. In the treatment of those occasional cases or, better still, the prevention of them, the present work should be of use to parents.

CROSSROADS TO CHILDHOOD.

By Anne Carroll Moore. Doran.

HERE a well-known critic of children's books gives much advice to children and to their parents as to what youngsters may read. Very little independence of judgment is shown, the author's advice being pretty faithful to the prevalent vogues. There seems to be some unconscious humor in spots where, perhaps, the author's advice outruns her understanding just a trifle. An especially amusing example is the recommendation of Edwin Arlington Robinson's Collected Poems as reading for children. The recommendation is backed by the quotation of a passage from "The Town Down the River," in which the word "children" occurs; and that is about as far as the poem goes in the direction of juvenile appeal. The recommendation becomes more amusing when Robinson's poem, "The Man Against the Sky," is named as having "a strong appeal for boys who are awake and

VAN DRUTEN ASSAILS DODGING PLAYWRIGHTS

Author of "Young Woodley" Attacks Authors Who Start Things They Never Finish.

In an address on "The Theater of Ideas" last night at the Town Club, John van Druten, author of a play so notable as to be suppressed in London for its ideas and not its morals, had a good deal to say about the theater without ideas.

"Perhaps it is fair that such plays should bring their authors money," he quoted George Bernard Shaw. "Certainly they can never bring them anything else."

Van Druten's play, "Young Woodley," is to be presented next week at the American Theater. He spoke again today at Washington University, and will speak at 2 p. m. Thursday at a meeting of the St. Louis Women's Club. His style was suavely epigrammatic, and if he writes as he talks his play ought to bring him money as well as the distinction conferred by the London censors.

The Dodging Playwright.

He touched on the playwright who sets up an issue, marches boldly up to it, and then pretends it wasn't there at all and retires ignobly out the emergency exit, the "all along" solution—no crime had been committed, "all along," the heroine wasn't a half-caste, "all along," no issue existed, "all along," and the playwright was afraid to face it if it did, "all along."

Then he took a swing at the play which dodges ideas altogether, particularly the sort which, like many magazine stories, caters to the inferiority complex with the cream puff of vicarious heroism. "Men leave the theater feeling, 'Maybe I don't amount to much, but in a crisis like that, I know I could save that girl from the runaway horse,'" Van Druten remarked.

"The ethics is all rot. It's not in the moments of crisis that one is tempted—if so, one is likely to fall very hard. Temptation comes in the steady stream of life." Citing "A Doll's House," which its denouement simply a disclosure of murky currents that had been swirling beneath the stream when it seemed steadiest, he remarked, "Men leave that theater perhaps not so puffed up, but rather with a sense that, 'There, but for the grace of God, go I.'"

Very much awake and thinking! It is probable that not one adult out of a dozen who professes to admire Robinson's poetry really understands much of it. Also, "The Man Against the Sky" is far from being the most obvious of Robinson's poems.

It is no longer deemed necessary to have a background for reading. One reads altogether with the eyes and may begin anywhere. "Crossroads to Childhood" is faithful to that view.

Causes of War.

The Marshal Jones Co. of Boston announces the early publication of a book that promises to be of extraordinary value—"Causes of War and the New Revolution," by Tell A. Turner. It must be apparent now to everyone who thinks at all that the general public in any warring nation never has any clear notion of what the row is about. Each new war seems to have a new cause, for it is the occasion and not the underlying cause that is discussed and rationalized in a way to arouse patriotic ire and to develop the necessary mob psychosis. Mr. Tell, in his forthcoming volume, discusses the underlying causes, principal events and results of 60 important wars covering the last 350 years, and summarizes his data to the end that the reader may know better what is happening when the next war breaks. It would seem that the book deserves wide circulation, especially since it appears that the author is concerned merely with the facts and not with any particular social doctrine.

Harpers explains that the set is aimed at those who are competing for the awards, so that they may make a thorough study of Wilson before writing the essay, not more than 2500 words in length, which may net them practically $10 a word. Young men and women between the ages of 20 and 35 are eligible to compete.

VAN DRUTEN ASSAILS DODGING PLAYWRIGHTS

Author of "Young Woodley" Attacks Authors Who Start Things They Never Finish.

His style was suavely epigrammatic, and if he writes as he talks his play ought to bring him money as well as the distinction conferred by the London censors.

The Dodging Playwright.

He touched on the playwright who sets up an issue, marches boldly up to it, and then pretends it wasn't there at all and retires ignobly out the emergency exit, the "all along:" no crime had been committed, "all along;" the heroine wasn't a half-caste, "all along;" no issue existed, "all along," and the playwright was afraid to face it if it did, "all along."

"The ethics is all rot. It's not in the moments of crisis that one is tempted—if so, one is likely to fall very hard. Temptation comes in the steady stream of life." Citing "A Doll's House," which its document simply a disclosure of murky currents that had been swirling beneath the stream when it seemed steadiest, he remarked. "Men leave that theater perhaps not so puffed up, but rather with a sense that, 'There, but for the grace of God, go I.'

Tempts the Lay Preacher.

"Men go to the theater of ideas as they go to church, to learn a new aspect of their own life. Ibsen realized, as Shaw said, and as every dramatist since Shaw has realized, that the theater is a tempting platform to the lay preacher. Shaw somewhere wrote of the possible canonization of St. Henrik Ibsen, and said his message was, 'I came to call not sinners, but the righteous, to repentance.'

"Shaw realized that audiences hate to be preached at. They hate to be taught, or to be made to think. He realized he had to make them listen. As he said, 'Only the man who has no message is too proud to beat the drum of popularity in front of his theater.' So he wrote really good plays, and filtered his philosophy into them—wrapped the powder in the jam. He is a popular dramatist, because he writes tremendously entertaining plays. The watchword of any repertory theater in England when it is losing money is, 'Revive Shaw.'"

Van Druten's nearest approach to a recipe for a successful play was to "have something you know, believe and feel, and write it the best you can." It was not necessary to have personally experienced everything you wrote about —"Imagine what the private life of Shakspeare would have been!" And for the way it felt to be an author, he quoted J. C. Squire:

"Now am I a tin whistle
Through which God blows.
And I wish I were a trumpet—
Why, God knows."

MRS. JULIETTE LOW, FOUNDER OF GIRL SCOUTS, DIES AT 67

First Got Idea in England When Baden-Powell Formed Boys' Organization.

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 18.—Mrs. Juliette Low, of London and Savannah, founder of the Girl Scouts, is dead at her home here after a brief illness. She was 67 years old.

The daughter of Gen. W. W. Gordon, she married William Low of Warwickshire, England, and maintained homes both here and in London for more than 40 years. It was while on a visit to England that she conceived the plan of forming the Girl Scouts in the United States.

A close friend of Sir Robert Baden-Powell, who founded the Boy Scouts of England, she had watched with interest the growth of that organization and the formation soon afterward of a similar order for girls known as the Girl Guides.

For many years Mrs. Low was president and later was given the executive title of Founder. Of late years, she had directed most of her efforts toward extending the order into an international movement and lived to see the Girl Scouts of America become affiliated with the international organization of Girl Scouts, or Girl Guides, with members in 26 countries. Mrs. Sarah Louise Arnold of Boston now is president of the order, and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, honorary president.

DEEMS TAYLOR-EDNA MILLAY OPERA TO BE GIVEN FEB. 17

"King's Henchman" Old English in Theme, But American in Atmosphere.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—"The King's Henchman," an opera in English, with words and music by two Americans, will be given its premier at the Metropolitan Feb. 17. Deems Taylor composed the score and Edna St. Vincent Millay the libretto. Taylor was born in Manhattan and Miss Millay in Rockland, Me.

The opera, although not about America, they feel, is as American as Shakspeare's "The Merchant of Venice" is English.

The principals selected for the premier are Lawrence Tibbets, American; Edward Johnson, Canadian, and Florence Easton, an Englishwoman. They will be supported by George Meader, Marion Telva, Joseph MacPherson, Dorothy Flexer, William Gustafson, all Americans, and others.

The story of the opera is the application of a legend to certain historical characters, without undue regard for historic veracity. The legend is that a maid, faring forth at midnight of hallowe'en with a torch, will see her future spouse. The King has sent his henchman to take a look at the daughter of the Thane of Devon, to ascertain if she be beautiful enough to be his Queen. As the Thane's daughter goes through the forest to test the superstition her light falls on the henchman.

He concluded by reading a letter of Franklin's saying: "France is really a generous nation. She loves glory, but, above all, loves helping the oppressed." This morning's newspapers printed long articles extolling Franklin's career and his efforts in behalf of France.

Easy to digest?

Why, it melts in your mouth!

TAKE a little bite, or a big bite, of a fully ripe banana. The tasty, appetizing morsel will literally melt in your mouth—an indication of the extreme ease with which a ripe banana is digested.

To careful parents, it is a happy reassurance that the fruit their children like is one of the most easily digested foods they can eat.

It should be. For the ripening process does for the banana even more than cooking does for similar carbohydrates, or energy-producing foods. Even young children thrive on this wholesome, all-food fruit.

In winter or in summer, bananas are the safest all-purpose fruit you can buy. They soon ripen when kept in a warm room. They can be served as entrée, vegetable, salad, dessert or fruit. Surprise the family with a shortcake rich with the flavor of their favorite fruit.

TEA

A MAN'S DRINK

Sir Charles Higham

INDIA TEA is the ideal drink for a man. It refreshes. It tones body and brain. Try a cup each afternoon at 3 o'clock and see how much better you feel at your work. Tea, correctly made, increases energy 20%. Its mental effect is startling. I know—and I want you to know.

I have been told that many American men consider tea-drinking to be effeminate! But what was said of the man who smoked cigarettes twenty years ago—or the man who wore a wrist watch before 1914? No—there is nothing a real man does, that he likes to do, that makes him less of a man.

India Tea is a man's drink in every country of the world, because it's a good stimulating drink, if for no other reason. Try a cup or two tomorrow and you will be glad you took my advice.

CUT THIS OUT

and show it to your folks at home. It is the right—and only way—to make India Tea.

Be sure you use India Tea or a blend containing India Tea and make it in the correct way—as it is served in England. Use an earthenware teapot. Put into it one teaspoonful of India Tea for each cup of tea required. Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little milk or cream into each cup before serving the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. Then add sugar to taste.

Any retailer or store can supply you with India Tea or blends containing India Tea. He has no difficulty in getting it, as practically every wholesale distributor of Tea in this district supplies India Tea. He will get it for you stance to obtain testimony for that purpose."

SUPREME COURT RULES SENATE CAN FORCE TESTIMONY

Its answer to both questions was in the affirmative.

Although the Constitution does not expressly confer it, the power to conduct investigations for the purpose of obtaining information enabling it to legislative properly has been exercised by Congress and most of the State Legislatures throughout their history, the court pointed out. James Madison was one of the first to emphasize its necessity. Its exercise has entered into many historic events, one of the most celebrated being the congressional investigation of John Brown's raid at Harper's Ferry.

Power of Inquiry Essential.

"We are of the opinion," said the court in its opinion, "that the power of inquiry—with process to enforce it—is an essential and appropriate auxiliary to the legislative function. It was so regarded and employed by American Legislatures before the Constitution was framed."

Referring to Daugherty's contention that the power may be oppressively and abusively exerted, the court observes that the same argument might be raised against any governmental power. It must be assumed, it says, that the power will be properly employed.

Not only did Judge Cochran err in holding that the power did not exist, the opinion continued, but he erred again in holding that it was not properly employed in this instance. While it was true that the particular nature of the contemplated legislation did not appear, the fact remained that the investigation was one of the Department of Justice, and when it was remembered that Congress must make yearly appropriations to maintain that department, the subject plainly was one on which legislation could be had, and would be materially aided by information which the investigation was calculated to elicit.

Granting that the only legitimate object which the Senate could have was that of obtaining information to assist it in legislating, the court said:

"We conclude that the investigation was ordered for a legitimate object; that the witness wrongfully refused to appear and testify, and was lawfully attached; that the Senate was entitled to have his testimony and that the District Court erred in discharging him from custody."

Jail Sentence Possibilities.

While it will be observed that the Court limits investigations to obtaining information pertinent to legislation, it is very plain that the presumption will always be strongly in favor of that view, however remote the investigation may appear from immediate legislation. Obviously, it would be difficult for any Court to say that a given piece of information would have no bearing on legislation, either pending or possible.

And although reluctant witnesses in the future may refuse to testify, holding that the information sought if them would not aid any legislation and may appeal to the courts on that ground, they will take a chance of going to jail for contempt if the courts fail to sustain their contention.

The decision does not cover the production of books, documents or papers. The Daugherty subpena called only for his appearance. But there is a strong presumption that if a witness can be compelled to give the information in his head he may also be compelled to give the information in his books.

Course in Case Uncertain.

Senator Wheeler had not decided last night on the procedure he would follow in Daugherty's case. If Daugherty is to be punished, two avenues are available. The Senate itself can order committed to jail. In addition, there is a Federal statute making it a misdemeanor with a maximum penalty of $1000 fine and a year in jail to refuse to testify before a committee of Congress.

Wheeler will confer with colleagues on the course to be pursued. The likelihood is that Daugherty will surrender appear at the bar of the Senate, plead that he mistakenly believed himself within his rights, and offer to testify. In that case the Senate might decide not to punish him. The books having been burned, it is not believed likely his testimony would be of much value now.

In the case of Sinclair, who appeared but refused to answer questions, the Senate cited him for prosecution under the misdemeanor statute and his case has been held up in the District Court of the District of Columbia awaiting the action of the Supreme Court in the Daugherty case.

Senator Reed of Missouri said last night he would ask the Senate to proceed immediately against Insull, Crowe, Cunningham and others who defied his committee in the primary investigation.

This is assured:

In the future there will be no lessening of what some people have called "Government by Investigation," but which others have called "letting the people know how their Government is being run."

Why You Should Open a Savings Account and Build Up a Cash-Reserve

1 · Because a Savings account is the logical way to accumulate a fund, through regular deposits of small sums.

2 Because a Savings account can be the foundation of a college education or a professional training course. It can provide for vacations, for extended trips, for purchase of a home or a business, or for financial protection in case of illness or other misfortunes.

3 Because a Savings account is the finest way to teach your children the lesson of thrift, without which there can be no genuine prosperity. It is a character builder and an income producer.

4 Because a Savings account is a training school for future investors.

5 · Because a Savings account of sufficient size makes you independent of installment purchases. When you buy outright for cash you do not have to pay interest on unpaid balances, there are no monthly or weekly notes coming due, there are no mortgages hanging over you, and furthermore you frequently get a discount for paying in cash.

6 · Because for the man who has insurance premiums, mortgage payments, or notes to meet, a savings account is one of the finest ways to accumulate the necessary amounts over a period of time so as to meet such obligations when they come due.

7 Because a Savings Pass-Book, in time of necessity, is excellent collateral and enables you to borrow in varying sums for short periods to meet your needs.

8 · Because every man, regardless of wealth, should maintain an adequate reserve fund in cash, which is independent of his current needs. You should have a cash reserve of not less than 10% of your annual income, available for use at all times. Many of our Savings Accounts are maintained by men of wealth who are constant investors, nevertheless, they realize the advantage of keeping an independent cash fund of considerable size.

9 · Because such a fund in the case of great necessity frequently makes it unnecessary to sacrifice otherwise excellent investments, by selling them in a market which may be temporarily unfavorable.

10 · Because a Savings account is easy to open and may be started with only $1. It is easy to maintain because there is no fixed deposit. Your money earns interest at the rate of 3% per annum compounded semi-annually. Your dollars in a savings account do not fluctuate in value but are always worth par, plus the interest earned.

Your Savings account in the American Trust Company is protected by our Capital of One Million Dollars and our Surplus of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars. We are Members of the Federal Reserve System and the St. Louis Clearing House Association, which are additional factors of safety for the protection of your savings.

If you haven't a Savings Account now, open one without delay and build up a cash reserve fund. If you have a Savings Account already, keep your balance up to the "protection point." (At least 10% of your year's income.)

FOREIGN MINISTER SAYS JAPAN WON'T MEDDLE IN CHINA

Tells Diet That National Policy Is Respect for Sovereignty of Neighboring Country.

PATIENT DURING PRESENT TURMOIL

Regrets Immigration Law, but Confident of Lasting Accord With U. S. for Peace in Pacific.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Pledging noninterference on the part of Japan in the internal affairs of China, and expressing a desire to promote world peace and a further reduction of naval armaments, speeches delivered to the Japanese Diet by Premier Wakatsuki and Foreign Minister Shidehara were made public last night by the Japanese Embassy. The texts had been received from Tokio by cable.

Both officials stressed the Chinese situation, both said that the relations between Japan and the Russian soviet union had been marked by growing cordiality, and Baron Shidehara made direct reference to the immigration law of the United States.

"I regret," he said, "that the question of discriminatory treatment involved in the United States immigration act of 1924 still remains unadjusted. I have nothing to say at present that would modify or supplement the observations which I have made on many previous occasions, but to point out the evident welcome facts that the knowledge and sympathetic understanding of Japan have grown considerably in the United States in recent years, and that wild reports circulated at one time discrediting Japan's Pacific intentions now are receiving the general condemnation of an enlightened public opinion there.

Mutual Understanding Essential.

"In our turn, for the correct estimation of the question, we should also fully appreciate the national institutions and conditions which characterize the United States. A mutual understanding is the first essential step for the settlement of all international questions, and I am firmly convinced that the two nations, conscious of their important missions of guardians of the peace of the Pacific, will stand side by side for all time in friendly accord for the fulfillment of such responsibilities."

Japan's policy toward China was summarized by Baron Shidehara as follows:

"First—Respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of China and scrupulously avoid all interference in her domestic strife.

"Second—Promote the solidarity and economic approachment between the two nations.

"Third—Entertain sympathetically and helpfully the just aspirations of the Chinese people and cooperate in efforts of realization of such aspirations.

"Fourth—Maintain an attitude of patience and toleration in the present situation in China and at the same time protect Japan's legitimate and essential rights and interests by all reasonable means at the disposal of the Government."

Relations With Soviet.

In discussing relations with the Soviet Union, Foreign Minister Shidehara said that oil and coal concessions in Northwestern Saghalien were developing satisfactory and that revision of the fishery convention was under negotiation.

"There are in certain sections people who indulge in alarming speculation as if the interests of Japan and the Soviet Union are destined to clash in Manchuria," he continued, "but we have no aggressive policy in Manchuria or elsewhere, our sole preoccupation being that peace and order be maintained in that region and that our nationals there be permitted to engage in peaceful pursuits without molestation."

Baron Shidehara said that Japan welcomed Germany's entry into the League of Nations, would "heartily welcome and appreciate all efforts looking to the limitation of armament," and would seek to "maintain and strengthen the bonds of amity with all European powers."

On account of the general reaction following the World War and the more recent earthquake in Japan, he declared, the Japanese Government intends to do its utmost to promote foreign trade "without unjust infringement upon the interests of any other nation."

Premier Wakatsuki told the diet that the output of rice in Japan was not keeping pace with the increase in population, and that "unless a fundamental, lasting policy is established concerning population and the supply of foodstuffs, the nation some day may find itself in a state of great difficulty from which it will be unable to extricate itself."

BRIAND STILL HEARING THE CALL OF THE SEA

French Foreign Minister, Farmer and Fisherman, Always Wanted to Be Sailor.

PARIS, Jan. 18. — Aristide Briand, France's Foreign Minister, is a lawyer and journalist, amateur gardner and stock raiser, and wishes he might have been a sailor. He always wanted to be a sailor and yearns even now for the days that might have been spent before the mast.

"You know," he began, "I was born in Brittany and I like to think of myself as a true Breton.

"As a boy, I had one consuming ambition. That was to be a sailor and go before the mast. The sea seemed ever to beckon me. But my boyish dream never came true. Instead I studied law. Paris called me, hoisted me on its wings. But I have never let it capture me or destroy what is my real self. I have always remained true to the sea and true to nature."

Every summer, when possible, the recent recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize goes to the Gulf of Morbihan and runs about in his little sailing boat, with his pipe for company. In Paris he smokes cigarettes, too many, he says. But afloat he is a sea dog with his pipe.

The French statesman, however, admits he is amphibious, for the land claims his devotion as well as the sea. He talked with glowing pride of his farm at Cocherel, a little village in the department of the Eure in Normandy.

"Every week-end I go there," he said, "and I never let anything interfere, unless, indeed, it be a ministerial crisis or something exceedingly grave. I like to don an old suit of clothes and a slouch hat and loaf among my chickens, my pigs, my cattle and my sheep.

"Not loaf exactly, either, because I do a lot of tinkering about the farm. I know something about hens and cows and sheep, too. I have to look after them—see that they don't get sick. I do a little repairing now and then about the place and look after the crops. A farm has to be kept up, and there are a lot of things you can let no one else do when you really enjoy a farm and like to get back close, very close, to nature in all its calm, its simplicity and its beauty.

"And, too, I like to fish in the River Eure, which runs nearby, and there is a wealth of instruction in the silence of the forest."

AMERICAN PRIEST DESCRIBES IMPRISONMENT IN MEXICO

Declares He Was Told 36 of His Colleagues Had Been Shot for Religious Activity.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 18.—Father Gustavo Caballero, American citizen, arrived here yesterday after being exiled from Mexico. With him were Father Crescencio Cruz, Father Manuel Lara Rosaldo and Father Casteuno Delgado. All were arrested in Merida, Yucatan, on charges of violating the religious laws and were ordered deported after being in prison three days.

Father Caballero was a professor of theology at Boston College from 1915 to 1925. He is a naturalized American, having been born in Cuba and educated in France and Spain.

Requests that he be allowed to communicate with the American Consul after his arrest were ignored, he said, by the Governor of Yucatan. An injunction halting the deportation was treated in like manner, the priest declared.

"There was not the faintest semblance of a trial or hearing of any sort accorded me or my fellow priests," Father Caballero said. "I was taken from the home of a friend and told I was arrested for violating the religious laws. I protested, but was placed in a cell in the barracks at Merida. An officer came to see me often and told me 36 priests had been shot in the states of Jalisco and Michoacan and indicated this might be my fate.

"But three days later, during which I had been given only water by the prison officials, my three companions and I were sent to Progreso, where, after two days more, we were put on board the ship for New Orleans."

G. F. SCOLLARD FACES LARCENY CHARGES OF WEALTHY WIFE

Complaint Alleges He Made Away With $157,000 in Cash and Household Goods.

By the Associated Press.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Jan. 18.—The question of whether it is legally possible for a man to steal from his wife has been revived by the filing of larceny charges here against George Francis Scollard, husband of the wealthy "Hetty Green of La Salle Street."

Scollard's elderly spouse, in two informations lodged yesterday, accuses him of making away with $157,000 in cash, household goods and securities which she claims. Attorneys, however, place the amount of Scollard's peculations at closer to $1,500,000 than $157,000.

Howard C. Thompson, attorney for Scollard, does not believe that his client has committed an offense for which he can be punished. "A wife doesn't commit a crime when she goes into her husband's pockets and takes a dollar," he argues. "The cases are entirely analogous."

Scollard won a race with his wife from Buenos Aires to Seattle to gain possession of the fortune to which Mrs. Scollard avers he has no right. She arrived a week later and started court proceedings. Receivers found that a vault which once contained $1,000,000 is now empty.

H. K. Curtis, Philadelphia publisher, is honorary chairman of the campaign for funds.

SUNDAY SPORTS BAR SOUGHT

Ohio Bill Would Include Baseball and Football.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18.—All Sunday sports for which admission is charged or a prize or purse offered would be barred in Ohio under a bill introduced in the Legislature by Senator Joseph N. Ackerman of Cleveland.

Baseball and football are not mentioned specifically, but no exemption is noted for them. The measure also would place all professional sports under the jurisdiction of State and county athletic commissions.

NEVER INTENDED FRAUD, C. W. BECK SAYS ON STAND

Defendant Declares He Thought Federal Home Builders Corporation Scheme Was Sound.

"ONLY AN ADVISOR IN PLAN, ANYWAY"

Company That Collapsed With $282,000 Loss to Investors Was "a Side Issue" for Him.

Christian W. Beck, author of the Federal Home Building Corporation's "own-your-own-home" scheem which cost some 400 St. Louisans about $282,000, took the witness stand in Federal Court today, sketched the story of his life, outlined his theory of mass production in home building, and assured the jury he had no intention of defrauding anyone.

On trial since last Monday on nine counts of an indictments charging use of the mails to defraud, Beck related in an hour on the stand that the Federal concern was to him a "side issue," and that in his capacity as president he only acted as an advisor.

He was 34 years old, he related, and lived on Warson road, Clayton, with his wife, Ruby Florence, a 12-year-old son and a 6-year-old daughter. For 11 years, he said, he han been engaged in subdivision promotions, on St. Louis, New York, Chicago and Florida—in fact, was in the business now and probably "always would be."

Outlines His Scheme.

In 1922 he conceived the Federal scheme, the object of which, he said, was to "build homes cheaper than anybody else could." On his fingers he listed 18 points in construction which could be cut down under his plan—such as commissions to salesmen and middlemen, money spent for material and labor obtained in smal llots—and insisted that a saving of 27 per cent would accrue to the home builder.

For example, he related that the Federal salesman's commission on a $5000 project was $100, whereas any other company would pay $145, and that the Federal company contracted for 2,500,000 feet of lumber at 5 per cent less than the usual cost.

He related that he outlined his scheme to friends and submitted it to Gus O. Nations, former chief prohibition agent here, who took him to Jefferson City and hoped arrange for approval of the scheme by the State Finance Commission. The active head of the firm, he asserted, was Edward J. Barrett, who was convicted on a similar Indictment last April, sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $5000. As for himself, Beck said he occasionally attended a salesmen's meeting, but took no active part in the operation of the company, coming forward only after the crash to try to salvage assets from the wreckage.

He told of giving the receivers $10,000 cash for expenses, of engineering contract holders' meetings at which he proposed to salvage their investments, and declared that th osubdivision and deeds of trust he turned over to trustees for the receivers represented everything he and his wife had at the time.

Cross-examination was brief. Asked about the testimony of a woman who said she paid $1025 directly to him, he said: "I don't like to dispute the lady's word, but I can't remember it." He adopted an air of hostility to Assistant United States Attorney Stattler and left the stand in a huff.

A few character witnesses followed, after which the Government began rebuttal testimony. Argument will be presented tomorrow, after which the jury will get the case.

A few of the 400 men and women who bought Federal home building contracts rallied to Beck's defense yesterday in brief testimony which the defense introduced to prove their contention that the concern's affairs were going well when a receivership suit caused its collapse. George D. Mahon and Ben Steyermark, who were members of a contract-holders committee formed after the crash, expressed the opinion that Beck "would have made good if given a chance."

Satisfied Investors.

Three men testified they invested various sums with the company and were satisfied after the receivership when Beck sold them building lots in subdivisions, accepting their claims in part payment. Guy Pollard, cashier of the Clayton National Bank, said he purchased some deeds of trust from Beck applying a $1400 claim on the purchase price.

Mrs. Frances Dexter of 5751 Shreve avenue, and her sister, Mrs. Florence Kleinhoffer of 5755 Shreve avenue testified that they contracted each for a $5000 bungalow which were nearing completion when the crash came. They finished the buildings themselves, they said, and were satisfied with the transaction.

The defense introduced as an exhibit a trust agreement executed by Beck and his wife, Aug. 31, 1923, by which deeds of trust and real estate of an apparent value of $145,000 were turned over to W. A. Meletio and George L. Zollman, trustees for the receiver.

Zollman testified that the trustees succeeded in selling some of the lots and some deeds of trust, through Beck as sales agent, but would not estimate the actual value of the property. He said the trustees were compelled to spend much of the revenue in improvements and in taking up underlying mortgages before they could sell.

Pricking Pains In Your Thigh?

Apply Tysmol for Relief!

When you feel those tingling, pricking pains that travel down the thigh and leg to the heel, don't wait to be told that you have sciatic neuritis. Stop at the nearest drug store and get a supply of soothing, healing Tysmol—that wonderful absorbent which soaks in through the pores and helps to drive out pain and inflammation for good.

Tysmol is highly recommended for nerve pain in any part of the body, whether caused by neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Apply a little to the affected part and right away the torture ceases. That numb, tingling feeling in the skin soon disappears and along with it goes the nerve inflammation which is responsible for pain, soreness and stiffness.

Anybody can use Tysmol with perfect safety, because it contains no dope of any kind. Nothing like it for limbering up a stiff, aching back or taking the agony out of painful, swollen joints. Price $1 at Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Walgreen Drug Co. or any other good drug store anywhere.

MAN FOUND KILLED BY EXHAUST GAS IN CLOSED GARAGE

Louis Gamache, 58, Dies While at Work Cleaning His Car — Polishing Rag Still in His Hand.

Failure to ventilate a garage while an automobile engine was running inside proved fatal yesterday to Louis Gamache, 58 years old, a Terminal Railroad Association switchman, who was found dead at 7 p. m., apparently from carbon monoxide poisoning, in a garage in rear of 2829 Iowa avenue.

Gamache, who lives at 2633 Lynch street, had gone to the garage at 4 p. m. to give his sedan its weekly cleaning. He borrowed a bucket of hot water from Mrs. Thomas Higgins of the Iowa avenue address and took it to the garage. A few minutes later neighbors heard the engine of his car running.

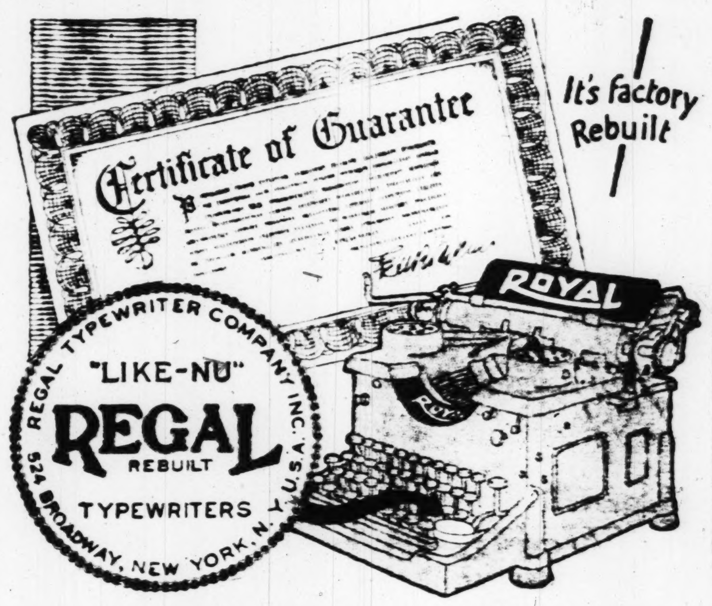

At 7 p. m. Mrs. Higgins noticed that the lights on his car were on. Her husband went out and found the doors and windows of the garage closed and the interior filled with exhaust smoke. Gamache had slumped over the front bumper of the car. He had fallen, apparently as he shined the radiator, and the polishing rag was still in his hand. The engine had been running but had stopped, presumably because of an overrich carbureter mixture, which would have generated carbon monoxide.

Gamache, a former locomotive engineer, had been living alone since the death of his wife two years ago. He had told friends that all of their 12 children had died.

METHODISTS AID MISSIONS

Seek 50 Cents from Each St. Louis Member Toward $7000.

A missionary institute held yesterday at Centenary M. E. Church decided to ask each member of the Southern Methodist Church in the St. Louis district to contribute 50 cents to help raise the district's quota in the $1,000,000 church-wide offering to missions. The Rev. Dr. Frank L. Wells, district superintendent, presided. The general conference last May decided to raise the missionary fund. The quota of the St. Louis conference is about $22,000, with $7000 to be raised in St. Louis and vicinity.

Nasal catarrh is not only disagreeable and offensive, but it will lead to serious trouble.

That inflamed condition of the mucous membranes of the air passages of the head, nose and throat may spread to the point where it is incurable and a danger to life.

Pennsylvania Supreme Court Rejects Plea to Forbid Their Removal to Washington.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—The State Supreme Court today dismissed the appeal of Joseph Cicales to prevent the taking of Philadelphia ballot boxes in the Vare-Wilson senatorial contest to Washington.

House Committee Throws Out La Guardia's Queries to Mellon.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The House Judiciary Committee has reported adversely two resolutions by Representative La Guardia (Rep.), New York, designed to bring out information on prohibition enforcement. One asked Secretary Mellon to inform the House regarding fines against the Howell-King brewery and whether a compromise had been reached by which such fines were materially reduced, also as to enforcement activities in Virginia and North Carolina.

In making this announcement in the House, Representative Tilson, Republican leader, said that on next Monday the House would be called on to decide whether it could insist on the Hull amendments on which the controversy centers. safe, low-cost protection against freezing

A DOLLAR'S worth of Pyro today may prevent twenty dollars' worth of repair bills tomorrow.

For it will freeze hard tonight. You must have an anti-freeze in your radiator.

Pyro is so much better than any other anti-freeze that 40% of all the cars in the United States used it last winter. It's the one anti-freeze that can be put in every make of car with safety. No clogging of the circulating system—no rotting of hose connections—no leakage through the gaskets—no corrosion of metal parts.

You can't buy equal safety cheaper—you can't buy greater safety at any price. The Pyro Proportion Chart shows how much Pyro is needed to give you complete protection at any temperature. Ask the garage man for your copy.

Stop at any garage or filling station tonight. Ask for Pyro and look for the blue-labeled Pyro drum. Have the garage man fill your radiator with the right mixture.

Take home a gallon can of Pyro too. Then just add Pyro and water from time to time to take care of evaporation. It's no more trouble than putting in water alone.

Pyro Denatured Alcohol is sold in bulk from drums bearing the blue Pyro label. Also in convenient gallon cans. Keep a can of Pyro in your garage

A Pyro-Meter tells you in an instant whether you have enough Pyro in your radiator. If your garage cannot supply one send us $1.00 and we will mail it promptly. U S Industrial Alcohol Co., 110 E. 42nd Street, New York

... BITTEN BY DOG GETS VERDICT FOR $1200 DAMAGES

George Wooliff, 16, Wins Suit Against Pair Who Said Animal Strayed Into Home.

George Wooliff, 16 years old, 1504 ... avenue, whose head is bare in spots as a result of an infection alleged to have been caused by dog bites, yesterday obtained a jury verdict for $1200 in Circuit Judge Mix's Court against Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zavodnik, owners of the dog. Wooliff said he was delivering ice at the Zavodnik home, 3411 Evans avenue, Aug. 3, 1925, when the dog bit him on both legs. The wounds were cauterized in a hospital, but Wooliff said he subsequently visited a physician 65 times for treatment. He alleged the dog was vicious.

The defendants contended they were not the actual owners of the dog, which, they said, had strayed onto their premises. They also denied they knew the dog was vicious. Their counsel cited a Supreme Court decision holding that "the law allows a dog his first bite."

DESPONDENT IN LOVE, WRITES TO GIRL AND ENDS LIFE

William Beehl, Refused Marriage, Kills Himself With Policeman's Revolver in Home.

Despondent because of the refusal of a young woman to marry him, William Beehl, 24 years old, of 2422 Elliott avenue, shot and killed himself yesterday in the home of his brother-in-law, Patrolman Louis Kelly, of 5129A South Compton avenue.

Awakened by a shot at 5:30 p. m., Kelly found Beehl slumped over a kitchen table, a bullet wound in the head. Death was instantaneous. Beehl shot himself with Kelly's revolver, which he took from a cabinet drawer after sending his 10-year-old niece, Mary Kelly, to a bakery for a pie. A letter, addressed to a young woman at Gerald, Mo., was found in his pocket. It read:

"I am just about to the end of my rope so I might as well hang myself with it. Please try and forgive me for I never would have been worthy of you. You really didn't miss anything in not marrying me, so don't think I did this out of selfishness. Here's hoping you get someone better than me. I'll always love you to the end."

SAYS FARM AID RISK FALLS ON GOVERNMENT

Haugen Explains Relief Bill as Experiment in Interest of Public.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINIGTON, Jan. 18.—The relief which the McNary-Haugen bill aims to give the farmers is an experiment in the public interest and, therefore, the Government should assume the risk of the pioneering work, Chairman Haugen declared today in reporting the measure for the House Agriculture Committee.

"The principle is well established," he said, "that the Government shall assume the risk of pioneering and experimenting in many fields where the public interest is involved and to do so in behalf of the public welfare."

The problems of American agriculture have become so profound, he added, that they are "beyond the power of individual farmers or their relatively small organizations to solve." Admitting that the bill carries a large appropriation, $250,000,000, he held nevertheless that this was merely to set the plan in motion and was no different than advantages the Government had extended to various lines of industry.

No Price-Fixing Element.

He explained the provisions of the bill, which carries the controversial equalization fee, as compared with the Curtis-Crisp and Aswell measures, which do not include such a fee to control crop surpluses. There was no subsidy or price-fixing element in the McNary-Haugen Bill, he said.

"The equalization fee," he asserted, "is simply the contribution each unit (bushel, bale or pound) makes to a common fund for the commodity. This stabilization fund for wheat, for example, makes it possible for an agency set up and controlled by the wheat growers, in co-operation with the Federal Board, to say how much of the surplus of wheat shall be removed from the domestic market at any time.

Adjust Supply to Needs.

"Within limits dictated by business sense, it enables wheat farmers to adjust the supply of wheat to the needs of the domestic market at an American price. It would mean the same with rice.

"American exports are nearly two-thirds of the world's international trade in cotton. Such a fund for cotton would make it possible for cotton growers to feed cotton into the markets of the world as fast as the world wanted it at a reasonable price."

Other commodities upon which the fee would be levied are corn and swine.

"There are differences in operation," Haugen said, "but the same principle applies to each of the five commodities. Notwithstanding the tremendous up-and-down movement in corn prices, we produce on the average little if any more corn than we need here. Variation in corn yields keeps the farmer in the corn belt in an endless seesaw between corn and hogs. To help check this is one of the purposes of the measure."

Cardinal Objectives.

Haugen gave as the cardinal objectives of the bill the following:

To give producers of farm crops power to influence their market as effectively as industrial groups.

To afford orderly marketing of crops of which the American supply is a dominant factor in world price.

To secure a protected market for crops of which a relatively small surplus enters world trade.

To enable meat producers to maintain a stable level of swine and cattle population by steadying prices.

To promote co-operative association.

Haugen held that the $250,000,000 revolving fund is not different in principle from the monetary reservoir which began the functions of the Federal Reserve Board, or that contributed to the stabilization of railroads. After the plan is once set in motion, he said, the equalization fee will provide necessary funds to keep it going.

TO RECORD POLICE HEROISM

Chief Gerk to Keep Card Index of Meritorious Work.

Meritorious work of policemen and civilian employes of the Police Department performed since April 1, 1925, and from now on, will be recorded in the office of Chief of Police Gerk in his personal Bertillon file of the department. The information will be available to the chief in recommending advancement for members of the department when occasion arises. For the same period the cards of those who have been dismissed from the department and the causes will be preserved.

The card system was inaugurated by the chief three months ago, each card bearing the photograph description and fingerprints of the individual members of the department.

WOUNDED ROBBER SOUGHT

Police are searching for a wounded Negro, who was shot at several times at 2 a. m. today by Patrolmen Downey and Jorn in the alley behind 2100 Chestnut street. The Negro had thrown a brick through a shop window at 2035 Market street, snatching up two overcoats, a suit and a pair of shoes. In the flight he dropped the loot, stumbled and fell, and finally disappeared through the yard of 2130 Chestnut street.

The officers reported blood stains in the alley where he fell.

GOV. FISHER FAVORS FURTHER TEST OF PRIMARY LAW

New Pennsylvania Executive Doubts Advisability of Making Any Change in System.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18.—Gov. John S. Fisher, who was inducted into office today, said in his inaugural address that he doubted the advisability of making any change in the State-wide primary law until the system has been further tested and public opinion has directly expressed itself.

On the prohibition question, the Governor said he believed in law observance and law enforcement.

"The eighteenth amendment and atendant prohibitory laws," he asserted, "will be respected by all law-abiding citizens and made effective by every public official.

"Those who are guilty of making and distributing for beverage purposes alcoholic liquors containing deadly poisons will be subjected to every rigor of the law. It is just as much murder to kill with poisoned beverages as to kill in any other way. The law should be made adequate to the offense."

LIQUOR RING DEFENDANT FREED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Defendants in the Costello-Kelly liquor running conspiracy trial, at which disclosures of graft by members of the Coast Guard were made by members of that service have dwindled to 14, with the dismissal of the case against one of the alleged leaders.

Judge Winslow ordered a verdict of not guilty for Edward Costello. The court held that he had not been shown to be guilty of conspiracy and that the most that could be said against him was that he might have had knowledge of the alleged conspiracy. The Government had alleged that Costello and his brother, Frank, with Edward and Frank Kelly, also brothers were the leaders of a gigantic international ring that imported large quantities of intoxicants.

AMERICAN LEAGUE INVESTIGATING 1922 WORLD SERIES, JOHNSON SA[YS]

FIGHT TO OUST FOE OF LANDIS MAY DEVELOP

Attention Called to Pledge of Owners in 1924 to Discharge Ban If He Continued His "Misconduct."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—The baseball winter scandal series, which is approaching its climax in Monday's reopening of the Cobb-Speaker situation, took a new tack today with declarations by President Ban Johnson of the American League that the 1922 world series is under the scrutiny of his office.

Johnson, in adding to his criticism of Baseball Commissioner Landis for making public the Speaker-Cobb case, spoke of the investigation of charges of fixed games in 1917 and then asked why the baseball head "doesn't show the same enthusiasm for the investigation of some of our recent world series."

Johnson said his office was using all the resources in its power "to unearth the facts about that peculiar series played in 1922," which the Giants won from the Yankees in five games.

"I am still trying to get evidence against several players in that series. Their actions and my reports on them make me suspicious."

Feud Seven Years Old.

Baseball observers expect plenty of fireworks at Monday's meeting, as the culmination of a seven-year feud between Johnson and Landis.

The American League head, who forced the retirement of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, and Commissioner Landis, who wants to know more about the reasons for this action, were agreed that the investigation be held in public.

But just what Johnson and his club owners will decide to disclose to the commissioner and the public will be decided upon next Sunday, when he and his magnates discuss their plan of procedure.

When the commissioner's request for the hearing intimated that the league club owners had taken joint action on Speaker and Cobb, Johnson replied in a statement with the principal details of his investigation of the two stars, but he cast the onus on Landis for making the "mistakes" of the two former managers public.

Favors Open Meeting.

Acknowledging the truth of a published interview, which stated that only a part of the facts had been made known, Johnson answered the commissioner's summons with a declaration in favor of holding the inquiry before newspaper men.

"We have nothing to conceal from the fans," Johnson said. "As much as I regret the Commissioner's desire to further spread the facts on the dismissal of Cobb and Speaker, I feel that if that is his attitude the public should be told of every development.

"The American League found Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker unworthy of trust and we were forced to let them go. Landis apparently insists upon publishing the whole data, regardless of how it reflects upon these two men. I welcome an open hearing on the American League's action."

Report on Betting.

Continual betting upon horse races by members of the Cleveland club, President Johnson said, had been reported to him as late as 1925. One report detailed the winning of $4200 by a betting pool.

"We have no objection to our players attending these horse races," said President Johnson. "We do object to them betting on races while they are supposed to be giving their best efforts to the baseball game."

President Johnson, in going into details of the Cobb-Speaker case in a statement yesterday, said that he had sent a detective to watch the conduct of the Cleveland club two years ago. Advices from Cleveland today said it was learned there that the head of a detective agency employed by Johnson had answered a summons from Commissioner Landis and had spent an hour in his office last Saturday.

JOHNSON HAS TALKED HIMSELF OUT OF JOB, N. Y. WORLD SAYS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The New York World says today that Ban Johnson "has talked himself out of the presidency of the American League" unless seven club owners go back on a promise made to Commissioner Landis Dec. 17, 1924.

The club owners of the league, with the exception of Phil D. C. Ball of St. Louis, signed a statement of assurance to the Commissioner on that date that Johnson's "misconduct will cease or his immediate removal from office will follow," the paper says. Action of the league grew out of Johnson's criticism of Commissioner Landis' decisions in the O'Connell-Dolan scandal, a situation which the World compares with that now existing as a result of the American League president's condemnation of Landis' action for publishing the charges made by Dutch Leonard against Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker.

The league owners, in their 1924 statement, told Commissioner Landis that conditions "harmful to baseball" and "intolerable to him" had arisen through Johnson's actions, the paper says.

The paper adds that Johnson has further imperiled his position by violating the pledge he signed along with the American League owners in 1921 in which each promised Landis to "acquiesce in his decisions, even when we believe them mistaken, and that we will not discredit the sport by public criticism of him or of one another."

Landis for Open Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., Jan. 18.—An open hearing of the complete details of the American League's charges against Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, is just as welcome to Commissioner Landis as it is to President Ban Johnson of the American League, the boss of organized baseball said here last night.

If the commissioner has his wish, he said, newspapermen will be admitted to the hearing next Monday as they were to the investigation of the Risberg-Gandil charges last week.

Told that President Johnson had admitted authorship of the newspaper article which precipitated the special meeting, the commissioner refused to comment, at this time.

President Phil Ball of the Browns today said that he had been notified by President Ban Johnson of the American League that a meeting of the league's club owners would be held in Chicago Sunday, in advance of the open session called by Commissioner Landis for next Monday.

"No information as to the occasion for the preliminary meeting accompanied the notice," Ball said, "but I assume that it is to discuss the wrangle over the Cobb-Speaker case."

Christian Brothers High is scheduled to play the John Burroughs quintet this afternoon in the Burroughs gymnasium in a Preparatory League basketball game. The contest will start at 4 o'clock.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Female of the Species.

GEORGE YOUNG won the Catalina Island swim, but he did not win all the glory. The race proved that for sheer stamina, the female of the species is quite equal and perhaps superior to the male.

Young won the race in 15 hours and 45 minutes; but two women who narrowly missed completing the swim, endured the icy waters and the struggle against the waves for more than three and one-half hours longer than did the actual winner of the race.

They were taken from the water about 7 o'clock Sunday morning, having battled more than 19 hours. They were Martha Steger of Portland, Ore., and Margaret Heuser, of Long Beach, Cal.

As a matter of sheer endurance and stamina the women really surpassed the performance of the victor. Good judgment in plotting his course had much to do with Young's success. Had it required three and one-half hours longer, perhaps he might not have been equal to the task.

In any case, talk of the "weaker sex" will subside to a mere whisper.

President Heydler Writes.

A BASEBALL player is no closer to being an angel than the average young man who works for a living, according to President Heydler of the National League. Too much is be expected of them by critics who at present are sneering at the national game the National League executive writes, in a letter to the sports editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The Post-Dispatch asked President Heydler if the recent scandal-mongering would affect baseball's popularity; if regulation by state, federal or baseball law would help keep the players out of trouble; and whether an anti-gambling clause in the contract of the player would be of benefit in removing some of the cause of sportsmanship slumps by players. In part Mr. Heydler replied:

Nothing New Developed.

Dear Ed:

I have again picked up your telegram of the seventh, and while I will not attempt to answer your questions seriatim, I still do not wish to dismiss them.

My personal opinion is that you cannot parade scandal and gossip for three solid weeks on the front page of nearly every newspaper in this country and not hurt the game. I think it was a deplorable thing that the game was compelled to answer now for something that took place during those distressing days when we first entered the World War, when everything in this country was at a low moral ebb, and when it looked as though the game would be shelved for at least three years.

The surprising thing about it is that so little was brought forth in that long Chicago session, which was open to the tales of every one.

Legislation Failed.

After the 1919 world series scandal, you may recall that at least six or seven states passed legislation making it unlawful for anyone to influence a game of ball to result otherwise than on its merits. Such a law is on the statute books of the State of New York, and if you will recall that shortly after the expulsion of O'Connell and Dolan, the case was taken up by the District Attorney of New York County and baseball again opened its doors wide and sent everybody from its ranks who could give any evidence for this supplemental hearing. The only one who did not respond was O'Connell.

People seem to forget how willing and anxious those who conduct baseball have always been to bring everything out into the open.

I do, however, wish to express to you my appreciation of treating this latest subject in such a sensible and fair manner as you did in your article of last Sunday.

There are a lot of people in the game who think it would be wise to prohibit players or anyone connected with the sport from betting on horse races, for instance, during the championship season. However, I would not care to read anything into a contract, of this nature, unless it could be enforced.

Ballplayers Not Angels.

I really think this idea of trying to make a ballplayer an angel is being overdone. You know a lot of ballplayers, and I am sure I do, and my opinion of them generally is that they are young men no better nor worse than you find in our highest-paid industrial offices or work shops.

Prior to 1921, strange as it may seem, the player made himself responsible for his deportment only to his own individual club. In the present excellent contract, drawn by Senator Pepper, the player, for the first time, acknowledges the broad powers of the commissioner for the control and discipline of the game, and further along in that contract he signs a loyalty clause (paragraph 3), which reads as follows:

"The player will faithfully serve the club or any other club to which, in conformity with the agreements above recited, this contract may be assigned, and pledges himself to the American public to conform to high standards of personal conduct, of fair play and good sportsmanship."

I may be wrong, but I think that fully 95 per cent of our players in the major leagues have lived up to this pledge.

Yours truly,

JOHN A. HEYDLER.

Second Catalina Island Swim for Women Likely

Wrigley Considers Putting Up $25,000 Prize—Young to Receive His Money Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—That William Wrigley Jr., Chicago manufacturer, may sponsor another $25,000 Catalina Channel swim such as that of last Saturday, exclusively women, became a possibility today following the announcement that the proposal was under advisement.

The announcement was made last night by Oscar Reichow, business manager of the Los Angeles baseball club, which is owned by Wrigley. Reichow, who was Wrigley's chief lieutenant in Saturday's event, said if another contest was fostered, it would be held next summer, and would provide $25,000 for three prizes.

The recent deep-sea derby, which was won by 17-year-old George Young of Toronto, created a new crop of professional swimmers, for virtually all of the 102 entries were amateurs before undertaking the feat. Entrance in the prize competition, however, disqualified them for further amateur swimming.

Young to Get Prize Tonight.

For Young who alone of the large field successfully paddled across the 22-mile passage, it meant the loss of his prized standing as a Canadian amateur. But also it meant a net profit of $15,000. He had a contract with Henry O'Bryne, his manager, giving the latter 50 per cent of his winnings. Young, however, has answered the call of the vaudeville stage and it is said will realize $1000 a night for a five-day appearance here.

Wrigley yesterday met the winner of the channel swim, and in addition to promising the Canadian youth to deliver the $25,000 first-prize check tonight, offered a little fatherly advice: "Don't invest your money in mining stocks, although I own a few mines myself," cautioned Wrigley.

Young Learned to Swim When Chased by a Bull.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—When George Young, winner of the Catalina Island swim, returns home, he will be overwhelmed with honors as a "national hero." His mother, naturally, is proud of his success, his friends and well-wishers are glad that he proved his swimming ability and won the prize money, but the average Canadian and the people of Toronto particularly, rejoice that he gained the glory for Canada.

Messages by the score, from individuals and organizations as well as from officials, are being sent to George, at Santa Monica, Cal., and to his widowed mother.

One message which Mrs. Young will always cherish is from Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, in which he congratulates her on her son's "great achievement." In his message to George, the Premier referred to the pride of Canada "in the honor you have brought to our country."

How George first "took to the water" has been revealed by Mrs. Young. When he was only 5 years of age, she recalled, George was chased by a bull and ran right into the water of a nearby creek. "And," she added, "he's stayed there ever since."

With a show of pride she remarked that she did not think the youth would "get his head turned at all, because he is a good boy, and I have talked to him a lot about the world."

Mrs. Young will not go at once to California, as proposed by her son, because she is not able to travel at present.

Bears Drill for Grinnell Contest

Poor Start Has Handicapped Washington Quint in Previous Games.

The Washington U. basketball team which meets Grinnell here Saturday night in a Missouri Valley Conference engagement will be stronger than in any contest thus far with a Valley opponent. The return of Lorraine Eckert, forward, to practice following a forced layoff due to injuries and the presence of Carl Stanford, who is rounding into condition again after illness, will bolster the Pikeway cage men considerably.

Grinnell lost, 23 to 19, last night to Ames, victors over the Kansas Jayhawkers, who recently trimmed Washington, 31 to 15. The Pioneers have taken one game from the husky Oklahoma Aggie crew and lost a close one to the Oklahoma Sooners, Valley championship contenders.

The Washington cage men have shown inability to get started in the first period. In every contest played the Bears have outplayed and outscored their opponents in the latter period, only to lose because of topheavy first period counts.

Epworth League Games.

Epworth League basketball games last night in the Wesley M. E. gymnasium resulted as follows: Wesley M. E. 23, Maple M. E. 13; Grace M. E. 37, Salem M. E. 16.

Magnates Ratify Landis' Plan to Stop Betting

French Lick Session Argues to Standstill Over the Draft.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Jan. 18.—Aside from ratifying Commissioner Landis' four new antibetting rules, designed to "clean up baseball," the major and minor league magnates, in session here, have done little else than argue to a standstill over the draft.

One of the new rules proposed by Landis, dubbed "the statute of limitations," which regulates the time after which charges against ball players would be void, places such a limit at five years.

Major league representatives at the meeting include Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators; E. S. Bernard, Cleveland Indians; Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburg Pirates; Robert Quinn, Boston Americans; William F. Baker, Philadelphia Nationals, and William Veeck, Chicago Cubs.

George E. Muehlebach of Kansas City, Ross C. Herriott of Terre Haute, S. L. Robertson of Buffalo and H. W. Lane of Hollywood, Cal., represent the four leagues which have hitherto resisted the draft.

Officials of minor leagues which now heed the draft include A. J. Heinemann, New Orleans; Arthur J. Shean, Springfield, Mass.; Walter Morris, Dallas, Tex.; M. H. Sexton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball League, and J. H. Darrell, secretary of the association.

Cold Weather Hampers Dogs in National Trials

Field Work of Pointers and Setters Was Below Par Yesterday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Jan. 18.—With weather conditions cold and gloomy and a southeasterly wind blowing all day, the first four dogs competing in the National Bird Dog Trials, which carries with it the title of National Champion, a leg on the Col. Merriman trophy and $1500 in cash, did not cover themselves with any particular glory yesterday. Unless all of the other 17 competitors still to run are below form, it is not likely that the champion for 1927 has yet been seen.

The first brace of the morning consisted of the pointers, Walnut Grove Lucy, owned and handled by R. W. Norman of Salisbury, N. C., and Long Hunter, owned by M. W. Lyday of Clinton, Ind. Lucy found two bevies independently and divided one with Long Hunter, both dogs finishing in good form.

In the afternoon the pointers Fearless Fred, owned by the Lebanon Kennels, and Procter's Dot, owned by A. J. Stegall of Jackson, Tenn., ran their long three-hour race. Dot had all the better of this heat in work on game; she found four singles and a bevy, but her range and speed were somewhat below par. Fearless Fred ran a disappointing race, failing to make a single independent find, although he backed his brace mat on three occasions.

This morning a rather interesting race is expected when the pointer Highland Boy of the Lebanon Kennels runs against the setter Pearl Momoney, owned by B. K. Littlepage of Charleston, W. Va.

The afternoon's program will have the setter Halworthy, owned by Dr. T. F. Berberovich of Saginaw, Mich., and the pointer, Eagle Ferris, owned by Frank Kidwell, of Washington, D. C., in competition. Eagle Ferris is the dog that gave Seaview such a good run for his money last week and finished second.

La Barba to Quit Ring for College Next September

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—FIDEL LA BARBA, youthful flyweight champion of the world, plans to retire from the ring before his twenty-second birthday next Sept. 29. The little battler from Los Angeles, Cal., intends then to enter Leland Stanford University to complete his education. He plans two more title defenses before next September provided he disposes of Elky Clark of Scotland, European champion, in a 12-round championship match at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

[Sp]ecial to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Inspired [b]y reportorial zeal and what not, [w]hich sometimes retails as low as [5]0 cents a shot, a covey of news [sc]avengers returned today from the [Sh]rewsbury River whence they had [g]one with the idea of seeing what [m]anner of man Elky Clark was. It [se]ems, judging by the boys' reports, [th]at all they discovered was what [El]ky was not.

The young man, who is flyweight [c]hampion of Europe, will meet [F]idel La Barba of Los Angeles for [th]e world's title on Friday night. [T]herefore the boys' findings on the [fo]llowing points may be of general [in]terest:

That Clark is not another [J]immy Wilde, either in cleverness [o]r punching ability.

That Clark is not able to stop a left hook or straight lead except with his countenance.

That Clark is not so equipped that he can land an effective punch except at close quarters.

That he is not able to shoot a left hook, his best punch, without communicating his intention to all concerned, if any.

If what the boys say is true, La Barba should cake-walk to the judges' "nod" next Friday night at Madison Square Garden, after which we may be able to turn our attention to something important.

Perhaps They're Wrong.

This Clark party had been megaphoned as a better man than Wilde, who was better than the best in his day, and Richard was making ready to suffer a rush of blooded saps to the box office but now the business looks like a plain case of non-support.

Of course our boy friends have made their mistakes. One can remember their gushing rhapsodies about Dempsey's marvelous condition on or about Sept. 23 and Berlenbach was to be a romp in the [fir]st Delaney fight.

But the boy friends are not always wrong and all I ask of them is to be right in two particulars, [vi]z., that Clark is a set up for a [le]ft hand and that he must get in close to do his punching. If that combination proves true, La Barba [sh]ouldn't lose unless he forgets to show up.

First of all, he has one of the [fin]est lefts extant. Second, can't [ev]eryone imagine how easy it will [b]e for Clark, being left handed all [ov]er the place, to get in close for [a]n effective punching?

Joe Choynski Tells Of His 5-Round Kayo Victory Over Hanrahan

"Wild Bill" Was One of Hardest Hitters in Game —Died of Pneumonia Shortly After He Suffered Defeat.

THE DAYS OF FINISH FIGHTS

By Joseph B. Choynski.

CHAPTER XXVI

OLDER fight fans will recall a sensational knockout hitter of a generation ago who flashed into sudden prominence, known as "Wild Bill" Hanrahan. Nature had endowed this young fellow with everything a fighting man needed. He stood 6 feet in height, weighed around 190 pounds, had tremendous shoulders, a great reach and fists like hams.

And how he could fight! It was his habit to paw the ground like an enraged bull before the gong and to hurl himself with savage fury at his foe the instant the bell rang. He was more like the modern Jack Dempsey than any man I can think of. Hanrahan slugged and slugged until something dropped—usually the other fellow and usually the dropping came early in the proceedings.

"Wild Bill" was regarded by many fistic experts as the most promising heavy of his time. He had concluded a long series of quick knockouts by flattening Marvin Hart at Louisville in one round. Hart was one of the toughest heavyweights that ever took a punch. Jack Johnson mauled him for 20 rounds and Hart was there at the end bloody, but smiling and strong. Hanrahan knocked Hart dead as a mummy with one punch.

Accepts Bout With Hanrahan.

WHEREUPON the Louisville promoters desiring to provide a fresh victim for "Wild Bill" telegraphed me an offer which I promptly accepted. The fight was held in Music Hall before a crowd such as the building had never accommodated.

And what a fight! Believe me I was glad when it was over.

True to form "Wild Bill" came at me with both hands driving at my head. In the first round I felt the weight of his terrible blows several times. I managed to avoid their full impact, but even what was left of them jarred me terribly. The pace was as fast as in my fights with Goddard in Australia.

In the second round Hanrahan caught me a grazing blow in the stomach that almost bent me double. How that punch hurt! A few seconds later he hit me with a straight left in the mouth and it felt like my neck was disjointed. Blood flowed from my lips.

I managed to even things up a bit by crashing a right on Hanrahan's ear, but it did not seem to slow him up. On the contrary he tore into me with greater fury. I saw that this lusty young fellow could take as well as give punishment and I realized that I was in for a fight.

Things Look Dark.

THE third round made things worse for me. Hanrahan knocked me to my knees with a series of jarring punches, most of which landed on my shoulders. One of them however, got to my ear and dazed me. I took the count. There were several exchanges in the next minute that thrilled the huge crowd. Hanrahan forced the fighting and seemed determined to end it quickly. He landed three terrible body blows that hurt. When the bell rang I took my corner with a realization that a change of pace was needed to save my bacon.

I had been fighting Hanrahan at long range. I decided to get close inside his long swings. At the beginning of the fourth round there was rough work in clinches. Hanrahan missed several hard swipes and I jabbed him on the nose with force enough to shake him. There was a clinch and in the breakaway I got home a fearful right to the point of the jaw and followed it with a hard right hook and a straight left to the chin. I saw then that "Wild Bill" was not so wild. But he was still dangerous when the bell rang.

The fifth opened with hard fighting. I was still staying in close and this bothered Hanrahan. He had lost the range. Suddenly I staggered him with a left hook to the jaw and followed it with a right punch in the ribs and another in the stomach. Hanrahan hit me two lefts on the head, but they were badly timed. Then he put everything he had into a wild right swipe which, fortunately for me, missed. Before he could recover his position I nailed him with a left hook back of the ear. He dropped to the canvas and was counted out.

Ended Hanrahan's Career.

THAT punch virtually ended the career of "Wild Bill" Hanrahan. It was a clean-cut triumph of science and ring generalship over brute strength. Hanrahan contracted pneumonia in Chicago soon after and died.

That fight made me realize that I was no longer a youth as athletes are reckoned and, while I had beaten a dangerous foe it had been a narrow escape. I smiled when I read in a Louisville paper next morning that I had pulled a fine piece of strategy by permitting Hanrahan to hit me in the early rounds so I could get him to open up for my knockout wallop. Imagine Joe Choynski permitting a murderous hitter like Hanrahan to punch him!

About that time I received an offer from the Klondike to fight Nick Burley at Dawson City. The trip to the Klondike was an interesting one and I had two hard-fought battles with Burley which I will describe in the next chapter.

Rickard Matches Delaney Against Maloney Feb. 18

Winner May Meet Victor in Uzcudun Hansen Bout.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Tex Rickard announced today he had closed negotiations for a heavyweight match at Madison Square Garden Feb. 18, between Jack Delaney and Jim Maloney.

Pete Reilly, Delaney's manager signed articles of agreement while Dan Carroll, Maloney's manager, accepted terms over the telephone from Boston, Rickard said.

Terms were not disclosed but it was understood a compromise financial agreement was affected by which the two rivals will fight for a purse of upwards of $100,000.

The match will bring together two of the outstanding candidates for heavyweight honors. Maloney already has disposed of three foreign threats—Dekuh, the Italian; Persson, of Sweden, and Diener, of Germany. Delaney knocked out Bud Gorman of Wisconsin, in spectacular fashion in his first venture into the heavyweight ranks.

While the winner of the Delaney-Maloney bout probably will be matched to meet Jack Sharkey, Boston conqueror or Harry Wills, an opponent may be found in the winner of the bout between Paolino Uzcudun and Knute Hansen at the Garden Feb. 7. Paul Berlenbach, who meets Mike McTigue here Jan. 28, also is on the tournament list, and Jack Dempsey, while not definitely signed to a contract, is understood to have an agreement with Rickard to battle in the final match of the series.

C. C. Peterson Decides to Stay In St. Louis

Definitely Rejects Offer of Position With Manufacturing Company.

Charles C. Peterson, local billiard expert and fancy-shot artist, today wrote to the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., manufacturers of billiard and bowling equipment, definitely rejecting that firm's offer of a position as head of its promotion department.

Peterson said it had been the intention of the company to send him about the country doing everything within his power to promote the interests of the billiards. He was to form classes of instruction in various cities, promote tournaments and to give exhibitions. But Peterson said he preferred to continue at the head of his own establishment. He is proprietor of the Peterson Billiard Parlor at 218 North Seventh street.

Some time ago Peterson conceived the idea of holding an amateur billiard tournament by wire and outlined his plan to newspapers and prominent billiard parlors throughout the country. He said today that the idea was taking hold and that he had assurances from leading billiard parlors in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Cal.; Portland, Ore.; Spokane, Wash., Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., Detroit, Chicago and other cities signifying their intentions of entering their leading amateur players in the event.

If the plan goes through conditions for the tournament would be the same in each city. Peterson has charted 20 fundamental gather shots. In each city the spheres would be placed on the table according to the key and the player would negotiate the shots. Should he make the first one, he would continue until he missed or scored 10 points at straight rail, then go on to No. 2, and so on until the 20 are completed. By this method a maximum score of 200 could be made.

Following each match, the player's score would be sent to a central headquarters, so that an accurate account of the games could be kept.

Selection of the player to represent the various cities would be left to the roomkeeper, the only restriction being that the player must be an amateur. Each entrant would be required to oppose each other entrant once.

Peterson's idea is to charge an entry fee of not more than $25 for each room and would provide prizes for the first 10 to finish, and in addition the winner would receive a cup.

MOTORMAN HELD FOR STREET CAR FATALITY

Case That in Which James Pappas Was Found Dead Between Rails.

A Coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness, holding Elisha D. Ray, street car motorman, was returned today in the case of James Pappas, 45 years old, of 4544A Papin street, whose mangled body was found at 6:10 a. m. yesterday between the north and south rails in front of 4517 Chouteau avenue.

On advice of counsel Ray, and his conductor, James C. Crait, did not testify. The case will be presented to the grand jury this afternoon.

Police Sergt. Adam Riek testified to finding blood stains on the fender of a Market street car which had been operated by Ray. He also found stains on the westbound rails in front of 4517 Chouteau avenue, where Ray's car passed about 6 a. m.

Riek quoted Ray as admitting he had observed what he thought was a gunny sack in the street at that point and had stopped his car to investigate. Ray said, according to Riek, that he got out and looked at the object, saw that it was clear of the westbound car, and then went ahead. He did not think it was a human form.

WARDEN, SHOT TWICE, WOUNDS TWO CONVICTS IN PISTOL FIGHT

J. S. Blitch and Trusty Recapture Three Men in Flight From Florida State Farm.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 18.—A prison superintendent, who borrowed a pistol, out-distanced his posse and with the aid of a one-eyed trusty fought with pistols to capture three escaped convicts, today fought for his life.

J. S. Blitch, State Superintendent of Prisons, was shot in the cheek and abdomen in a pistol fight with three convicts who had escaped from the Raiford State Farm yesterday.

Al House, serving a 70-year sentence for robbery; Lew Williams and Albert Thomas, Negro, escaped at the lunch hour. Blitch and Marion Highsmith, a trusty, overtook the men at Baxter, near the Georgia line. The fugitives opened fire from behind an automobile. Blitch was hit twice by bullets, but he shot House twice and Williams once and the Negro surrendered. Highsmith clubbed the fugitives into submission.

A posse then arrived and took the prisoners in custody.

LAMB, BUT NO MARY, WHEN FORD OPENS NEW SCHOOL

14 Massachusetts Children Answer Old-Fashioned Bell, But Epidemic Ends Session.

By the Associated Press.

SUNBURY, Mass., Jan. 18.—Henry Ford's new school house, latest addition to the New England village which he is building here around famous old Wayside Inn, isn't likely to see its first class of little pupils for at least a week.

It opened yesterday long enough for Miss Martha Hopkins of Fort Fairfield, Me., to ring an old-fashioned hand bell and call the 14 children together, but a scarlet fever outbreak in the town forced it to suspend at the end of the session.

A realistic touch was added to the exercises when Ford brought a frisky lamb from his estate to gambol on the green, just as Mary's little lamb of poetic fame did a century ago.

The new building contains parts of the old structure where once Mary Sawyer, original of the poem, was wont to bring her lamb. Old-fashioned seats and desks and a cozy big stoves of antique design add to the effect.

Only a Mary was missing. Of the 14 children who responded to roll call not one responded to that name. Mary Sawyer died in 1898 at the age of 92 years.

All expenses of the school are being paid by Ford.

REED FIGHTING COURT CODE BILL

Measure, Providing for Change in Federal Judicial Procedure, Is Backed by Bar Association.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The American Bar Association, through its Committee on Uniform Judicial Procedure, has started another campaign for legislation authorizing the United States Supreme Court to codify the rules of practice in the Federal courts, claiming that if action is not taken in the present session of Congress, simplification of the administration of justice will be postponed two years longer.

In a recent statement, Thomas W. Shelton, chairman of the committee, declared that 90 Senators have indicated their approval of the bar association bill, which is being sponsored by Senator Ernst (Rep.) of Kentucky, but that Senators Walsh of Montana, Caraway of Arkansas and Reed of Missouri, all Democrats, have blocked consideration of the measure. The bill is now on the Senate calendar and the association is demanding a vote.

The bill itself provides: "That the Supreme Court of the United States shall have power to prescribe, by general rules, for the district courts of the United States and for the courts of the District of Columbia, the forms of process, writs, pleadings and motions, and the practice and procedure in actions at law. Said rules shall neither abridge, enlarge nor modify the substantive rights of any litigant. They shall take effect six months after their promulgation, and thereafter all laws in conflict therewith shall be of no further force or effect."

Basis of Opposition.

The three opponents of the bill who are among the best lawyers in the Senate, say that enactment of the bill would produce chaos in the courts and would be only to the advantage of skilled corporation attorneys, experts in the new technique.

Senator Reed asserts that the bill was put on the Senate calendar through trickery and discourtesy when the Senate Judiciary Committee reported favorably on the bill while he and Walsh were not present.

"There are many objections to the bill," Reed declared today, "but the principal ones are that it would give the United States Supreme Court and the American Bar Associations the right to legislate and would compel lawyers who have learned the rules of practice in state courts to learn an entirely new technique.

"We all know that the American Bar Association is dominated by corporation lawyers, men who are skilled in the ways of the Federal courts. This bill would authorize the United States Supreme Court to abolish the precedents that have been in force for more than 140 years. Even if the court and the Bar Association could agree on a codified procedure, their orders would be open to interpretation and each Judge would modify the rules to suit himself.

Local Lawyers Handicapped.

"At present, a small town lawyer who has learned procedure in the state courts, can with little preparations, steps directly into a Federal Court and plead his case, knowing that he is on the same footing as the opposing counsel. T mode of proceeding in a Federal Court now conforms as near as possible with the courts of the state in which the Federal Court is situated.

"If we accept this Bar Association proposal, we abolish this procedure and set up a new code of rules. Attorneys for the big corporations, the railroads, insurance companies and public utilities would immediately become versed in the new rules and would have the local lawyers at a distince disadvantage.

"Louisiana holds on to the old code Napoleon. Illinois retains the old forms of common law pleadings which Missouri discarded years ago. What would happen in these states if this bill were enacted? It would mean that the lawyers in those states would have to learn an entirely new system of practice."

HOLMES TAKES AUDIENCE THROUGH THE FAR NORTH

Illustrated Lecture of Tour of Norway and Iceland Second of Travelogue Series.

To Norway by way of Iceland was the subject of Burton Holmes' second travelogue of the season at the Odeon last night, and the lecturer entertained a large audience with his talk and pictures of the Far North countries.

The motion pictures and still photographs of the trip showed the grandeur of the scenery in the part of the world visited but hardly put Norway or Iceland in the light of being desirable places to live. Next Monday night Holmes' talk will be on Holland.

SMITH IN CAPITAL TO DEMAND SENATE SEAT

Illinoisan Announces He Will Present His Credentials Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—After his arrival here today from Chicago, Frank L. Smith, Senator-designate from Illinois, decided to defer until tomorrow the presentation to the Senate of his credentials as successor to the late Senator William B. McKinley.

Smith found that Senate leaders desired to press the Lausanne treaty to a vote today and out of deference to their wishes, he decided not to appear in the Senate at noon today as had been his original intention.

In making this announcement, C. J. Doyle, counsel for the Senator designate, said Smith was not in any belligerent mood, and desired to accommodate his own plans to those of the Senate.

The Senator-designate, whose right to a seat is contested largely on the ground that he accepted $125,000 from Samuel Insull, public utilities operator, for his senatorial primary campaign, conferred during the morning with Senator Deneen (Rep.) of Illinois.

Although opposing Smith in the primary, Deneen is expected to lead the fight to have him sworn in as a Senator before the Elections Committee gives him a public hearing. Democrats and some Republicans are opposed to permitting Gov. Small's appointee to take the oath of office before such a hearing.

The former Chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission, who was elected to the Senate last November for the term beginning next March 4, and subsequently was appointed by Gov. Small to succeed the late Senator William B. McKinley, was accompanied by his secretary, William Colver; former Representative Allen Moore, his campaign manager, and Moore's secretary, William Barnes.

Smith was met at the station by his attorney, who accompanied him to the New Willard Hotel where he established his headquarters preparatory to the Senate fight over the question of giving him a seat.

To provide an extra hour for discussion of the Illinois man's eligibility, the Senate agreed to meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow instead of the usual hour of noon.

It is hoped that action can be taken before adjournment tomorrow night on all the motions that grow out of Smith's presentation of his credentials.

BRITAIN REAFFIRMS POLICY OF CONCILIATION IN CHINA

Declares Protection of English Lives and Policy Is Only Object of Military Move.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The hands of the British diplomatic representatives in China were strengthened today by instructions from Downing street stating that the Cabinet had reaffirmed the present British policy of conciliation in China.

Ambassador Lampson was directed to continue his efforts to meet China's legitimate national ambitions, but to protect British lives and interests. On this basis Charge d'Affaires O'Malley, who has been carrying on conversations with the Cantonese Foreign Minister Eugene Chen, will renew his negotiations at Hankow.

The Foreign Office today indicated the British Government was willing to meet the many desires of the Cantonese. The details were not explained and denial was given that the question of recognition of the Canton Government was being considered at present. It was also stated that any British naval or military movement now taking place was for the protection of British lives and property, and not as an aggressive action.

HIGHER CABLES SEND WHEAT PRICES UP

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Wheat prices were firm right from the start today. Strength in Liverpool and Buenos Aires were encouraging features to the bulls, which had further help in the report that the Argentine Government might buy 37,000,000 bushels of wheat to help her farmers.

Wheat closed strong near the best prices of the day. Last prices were ¾c to 1⅛c higher. May, $1.40½ to $1.40¾; July $1.31¼ to $1.31¾; September, $1.28. Corn closed ⅜c to ⅝c higher. May, 82¼c to 82⅝c; July, 85⅝c to 85½c; September 87¼c. Oats were ⅜c to ¼c higher; May, 39¼c to 39¼c; July 48⅛c to 48¼c. September, 46¼c to 46⅝c. Lard closed 7½c to 10c higher; ribs 5c lower; bellies unchanged. Local cash sales were 10,000 bushels of wheat, 55,000 of corn 38,000 of oats, 30,000 of barley. The seaboard reported 50,000 bushels of wheat and 300,000 bushels of rye taken for export. New Orleans asked local shippers for offers of corn.

Local started buying at the start, partly for short account because of the unexpected strength in the Liverpool and Buenos Aires markets. Sentiment became more friendly after the opening when there was a noticeable let-up in selling pressure, but at $1.40½ for May, resting orders to sell and sales against indemnities halted the upturn.

The Liverpool market closed 1⅛c higher and while no explanation was given, it is believed that strength in Buenos Aires and further reduction in Liverpool stocks induced buying. Stocks in the English market were 232,000 bushels smaller than a week ago or 440,000 bushels compared with 2,128,000 last year. Buenos Aires was ¾ higher on the second call.

The seaboard reported fair inquiry, but bids for export were under sellers' views. Gulf No. 1 hard was offered at 9⅛c over May for January shipment, at the lowest premium in weeks. Portugal was reported in the market for 1,000,000 bushels of Manitoba.

Local mills continue to take a little wheat out of store but outside mills are taking little, informing local shippers that they are having difficulty securing shipping directions on old flour sales.

Corn was strong, meeting fair commission house buying because of unfavorable weather and the advance in prices for cottonseed oil feed. Local longs took profits on the advance. Shipping demand showed no improvement and recent advices from Canadian distributing points show that section is supplying most of the New England while smaller markets east of Chicago are offering corn to consuming points 1 to 3 cents under Chicago.

Oats were firmer with other grains. There was moderate local and commission house buying. Shipping demand was improved.

Provisions were firm with corn.

Chicago Grain Carlots.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Carlot receipts: Wheat, 31; corn, 314; oats 102; rye, 3; barley, 14.

St. Louis Hay Market.

Hay receipts were somewhat lighter, but the market ruled rather quiet due to the very bad roads which is preventing drayage. There is more good hay on the market than for some time past, in fact there is a larger percentage of the better grades of timothy hay than off grade hay. Light clover mixed hay quiet but steady with a fair demand. Heavy clover mixed hay scarce and wanted. Pure clover hay scarce, not offered. Alfalfa market quiet, receipts moderate and demand fair for the better grades suitable for the dairy trade, but the medium and lower grades are dull. Prairie hay market quiet, offerings are liberal and demand limited.

Hay quotations:

No. 1 timothy hay, $22 to $23; No. 2 timothy, $19 to $21; No. 1 light clover mixed, $23; No. 2 light clover, mixed, $20 to $22; No. 1 heavy clover, mixed $23; No. 2 heavy clover, mixed $21 to $23; No. 1 pure clover $27 to $28; No. 2 pure clover, $24 to $25; choice alfalfa, $28 to $29; No. 1 alfalfa, $23 to $26; No. 2 alfalfa, $19 to $22; choice prairie, $19 to $20; No. 1 prairie, $15 to $18; No. 2 prairie, $16 to $17.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Heavy buying of railroad shares was the outstanding development in today's trading on the stock market. Many standard favorites sold at the highest levels in years when orders flooded the market for better grade stocks as well as speculative shares. Offerings of traders willing to take profits were readily absorbed and strength in the carriers finally spread to industrials, which rallied toward the end of the session in response to covering by those who had sold for a decline earlier in the day. Several weak spots testified to the unsettlement of the general list, however. With the money market relatively firm and call loans ruling at 4½ per cent, bonds became quieter and showed some unsettlement as speculators took profits.

Confused Price Movements.

"Confused price movements in all sections of the list were attributed to conflicting opinions in speculative circles. Many professional operators centered selling attacks on several normally inactive issues in the industrial group. Moreover, profit-taking in several rail shares checked the steady forward movement after several new high records had been established. Quite a few specialties again scored upturns, but declines were more apparent and gave encouragement to speculators in quest of lower prices who felt recessions were in order as a result of the recent general advance under the leadership of railroad stocks. News developments of the day had little influence on prices, which were governed largely by professional activities. Lehigh Valley shares were quiet and somewhat lower in response to the absence of any developments out of the ordinary at the annual meeting of stockholders. Announcement was made of a 10 per cent stock dividend by the Texas Corporation. This resulted in slightly increased activity in the oil group, but advances encountered increased offerings.

Mo. Pac. Preferred Strong.

"Stocks of carriers led the forenoon upturn, Frisco, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie first preferred, Missouri Pacific preferred, Reading, Wheeling & Lake Erie and Pere Marquette soaring. Advances in this group failed to revive interest in industrials, however, and selling pressure was quickly renewed in some stocks in which the street believed favorable developments had been fully discounted. Moreover, money rates continued to rule firm despite the Federal Reserve Bank's statement on brokers' loans, showing a decline of $27,000,000 in a week.

Little Interest in Exchange.

"Movements in foreign exchanges attracted little interest. Sterling and French francs held steady, while lire rallied slightly. Norwegian rates developed weakness in London and were marked down here and prices dropped back to the 16c level. Chinese exchanges eased somewhat.

Commodities Higher.

"Prices resumed an advancing course in the principal commodity markets after early unsettlement. Cotton worked forward briskly, May contracts rising to 13.65c.

CONSOLIDATED PAPER DIVIDEND 50 PER CENT

Lehigh Valley Board Re-Elected

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—With the largest vote in the history of the company, the president and entire board of directors of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co. were re-elected at the annual stockholders' meeting here today.

Reports that had been current that the New York Central and other railroad interests would attempt to gain representation on the board were not outwardly manifest at the meeting. All officers being reelected without opposition.

Edward E. Loomis, re-elected president, said after the meeting that he had no information regarding the reports in connection with the stock market activities in Lehigh Valley and that no overtures had been made to him by these interests.

The vote cast for the present management was 930,014 shares, representing ... per cent of the stock. There has been no material change, Mr. Loomis said, in the list of shareholders from that of Dec. 31, 1925.

All the officers were re-elected with the exception of Edgar H. Boles, who was vice president and general counsel. He resigned to become president of the General Reinsurance Corporation. He was succeeded as general counsel by Richard Warren Barrett, who was general solicitor of the Lehigh Valley.

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—An opening decline in the cotton market today was followed by rallies on reports of continued steadiness in the Southern spot markets and talk of probably light ginning figures for the period ended Jan. 15. March sold up from 13.28c to 13.50c with the mid-afternoon market ruling about 15 to 18 points net higher.

Futures closed steady, 13 to 17 higher: January, 13.38c; March, 13.46@13.48c; May, 13.68@13.70c; October, 14.09c. Spot steady; middling, 13.65c.

The cotton market opened today at a decline of 3 to 7 points under renewed liquidation coupled with some Southern and local selling.

The latter probably was promoted by reports of a falling off in spot demand after the completion of mid-January engagements but early offerings were readily absorbed by covering or buying on continued favorable reports from Liverpool and predictions for another cold wave in the South.

March steadied after easing off to 13.28c and rallied to 13.32c by the end of the first hour when the general market was within a point or two of yesterday's closing quotations.

Private cables said hedging had been absorbed by trade calling and Manchester buying in Liverpool and there was large inquiry for cotton cloth from India.

The market turned steadier when early offerings had been absorbed. There was considerable trade buying and an active demand for May contracts which was attributed to price fixing or rebuying by sellers of last week. March advanced to 13.43c and July sold up to 13.84c making net gains of 9 to 12 points, but there was more realizing at these figures and prices subsequently reacted 3 or 4 points.

INDUSTRIAL BONDS.

MARKET MOVEMENTS IRREGULAR ON CURB

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Market movements were irregular on the curb today. Speculative sentiment was divided in the various groups and price movements in the most active issues were in opposite directions. Oil stocks continued to show increased interest from some sources. The motor stocks for some reason were pressed on the market and showed substantial losses being influenced by heaviness in the same group on the stock exchange. An entirely distinct movement took place in the bond market where German bonds including steel issues and municipals, were in demand at a large scale and a number of them made new high records.

Continental Petroleum was strong in the oil group making a further advance but Standard Oil of Indiana continued to hold first place both in the volume of business and price movements, rising about one point and selling at a new high for recent years. Humble was strong in the forenoon but reacted from its top level. Prairie oil moved in the same way, an early gain being followed by a reaction. Vacuum Oil after a fractional advance dropped a point.

Utilities were without special feature, fractional gains being made in some of those issues while others showed moderate losses.

A feature of the market was strength in Western Maryland first preferred, which followed a gain of 7 points yesterday to 117 with a further advance of % on small dealings today.

Libby Owens fluctuated over a wide range first falling 4 points and after recovering its loss was under pressure again. Marmon was a weak feature in the motor group falling over 3 points. Stutz and also declined over a point. Kardex showed a heavy tone after its recent advance and had a loss of over a point.

Texas Corporation Declares 10 Per Cent in Stock

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Directors of the Texas Corporation, one of the largest independent oil producers, today declared a stock dividend of 10 per cent in addition to the regular quarterly cash payment of 75 cents.

The Texas Corporation was formed under the laws of Delaware in August 1926, with authorized capital stock of $250,000,000 and has acquired through a share for share exchange about 90 per cent of the capital stock of the Texas company, incorporated in Texas. Formation of the new corporation was with the object of acquiring properties over a wider area than the laws of Texas permitted.

A meeting of stockholders of the old Texas company will be called shortly to vote upon its dissolution and a transfer of its assets. Stockholders who have not yet exchanged their shares still have the privilege of exchange and by acting promptly can participate in the stock dividend authorized today which is payable April 2 to holders of record March 4. The cash dividends is the same rate paid by the old Texas company and is payable April 1 to stock of record March 4.

RAILROAD BONDS

GERMAN BONDS ARE FEATURE OF TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Brisk trade in German securities featured the bond market today when heavy investment demand brought material advances over a wide field. Railroad issues attracted a share of attention and industrials were firm.

In the foreign group new high records in three German issues featured the trading. Rhinelbe 7s led the advance with a gain of more than a point to 125 and Leipsig 7s and Heidelberg 7½s, with slighter gains, reached 102 and 105 respectively. Bremen 7s also went up a little. Belgian 7½s moved forward fractionally, while Finland 7s fell back a point on realizing.

An increase of almost two points in Chicago and Western Indiana 4s was a feature of the railroad list. Other gains of a point or more were made by Chicago and Northwestern 3½s, Erie consolidated 4s, series "D," Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s and Seaboard adjustment 5½s. Industrials showing strength were Morris and Co. 4½s, Central Steel 8s and Sinclair Pipe Line 5s. On the other hand Liggett and Myers 7s, American Sugar 6s and California Petroleum fell back a little. Public Utilities bonds were quiet. Irregularity marked the Federal Government list.

Announcement was made that the $30,000,000 Indianapolis Power and Light Co. mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds was promptly over subscribed.

FORSEES FEDERAL LAW ON SECURITIES

President of Investment Bankers' Association Discusses Responsibility to Public.

It may be that the very large increase in the sum of securities offered each year to the investment public will require Federal regulation of securities, Pliny Jewell, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, said last night to the members of the Mississippi Valley group of the association at a dinner in the University Club.

Jewell said that the responsibility of investment houses in recommending securities to their customers was grave and compared the present bond and stock situation to the "hodge-podge" of railroad financing prior to the establishment of the Interstate Commerce Commission which now has authority to regulate the capital issues of railroads. He urged that members give blue-sky laws their support, even though, in some states, the laws seemed to retard the prompt flotation of legitimate sound bonds. He also praised the Better Business Bureau for its watchfulness in behalf of the investor.

With Jewell were Allen T. H. Little, formerly of St. Louis, and Harry Rascoran, publicity representative of the association, who are touring the country in the interest of the association.

50 INDICTMENTS AGAINST PARTICIPANTS IN RIOT

Twelve Men and Five Women Accused of Causing Death of Polish Priest's Housekeeper.

By the Associated Press.

WHEATON, Ill., Jan. 18.—Fifty-one true bills, charging manslaughter, rioting and conspiracy, have been voted by a Du Page County grand jury against 12 men and five women, parishioners of a Polish Catholic Church at Downer's Grove, in connection with the death of the housekeeper of the pastor of the church.

The housekeeper, Mrs. Anna Rucinska, died of heart disease, induced, according to a Coroner's jury, by manhandling at the hands of a crowd on Jan. 9. The Coroner's jury recommended that the 17 persons be held to the grand jury. The Rev. Boleslaus Nowakowski, pastor, said that a crowd of men and women visited his house incensed because of a $12 assessment made to balance a deficit in parochial school funds.

Some of the crowd accused Mrs. Rucinska of blame in the matter, he said, and as she tearfully denied it, pushed her out of the pastor's house and hurried her to a depot to send her out of town. Then she collapsed and died.

NOTHING SO FRAGILE AS A REPUTATION

Tales May Not Even Be True, but Their Echoes Often Persist Until the Poor Victim Is Undone.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

EVERBODY is sorry for Maisie. Awfully sorry.

Maisie is such a pretty thing—really pretty don't you know. Just so. She's tall and she's slender and she has little bits of feet and delicate hands. She has red hair that's pure gold in the light, and eyes that look black, but when you look into them they are really exactly the color of good sherry.

WINIFRED BLACK

And she has a way with her—oh, such a way! She doesn't have to be pretty at all or even clever. She could get through the world very nicely on nothing but her "ways."

Everybody notices Maisie's "ways"—even the waiters and the cabmen and all the servants. Even her little brothers. They'd die for Maisie and be glad of the chance—poor little fellows, with their round eyes and their fresh cheeks—and you never need worry about your dinner parties if Maisie is one of the guests.

All the men will be so busy watching Maisie that they won't even notice if the soup is a little too thick. And the women will have such a time looking at her, wondering how she can wear that simple little frock and make it look like a creation, that they won't have time to talk.

The way Maisie can arrange flowers and the knack she has with furniture. How she has turned her husband's gloomy old house into something lovely and romantic just by living in it—yes, Maisie is really a darling in her own little way.

But just now she's in serious trouble.

A young man was killed the other night in an "accident," and everybody says it wasn't an accident at all—it was suicide. They say he killed himself because he and Maisie were desperately in love with each other, and he was poor, and, of course, Maisie could not leave her rich husband and run away with him. Imagine Maisie in a hall room or a cheap boarding house with hash and weak coffee for breakfast and no flowers to arrange and no dinners and no smart frocks. And Maisie's husband was beginning to be difficult. The girl in the case? Oh, yes, there was a girl. She was the romantic young man's fiancee—she was complaining, too. There was just one way out and the young man took it.

Shocking affair all around. Maisie is really blue about it. They say her husband is in a fury, and that makes it a lot worse. A man in a fury isn't apt to be the most agreeable companion in the world, and Maisie really never loved her husband. He's rich and generous and well known, and she thought she might as well marry him as anybody—and all of a sudden—there you are.

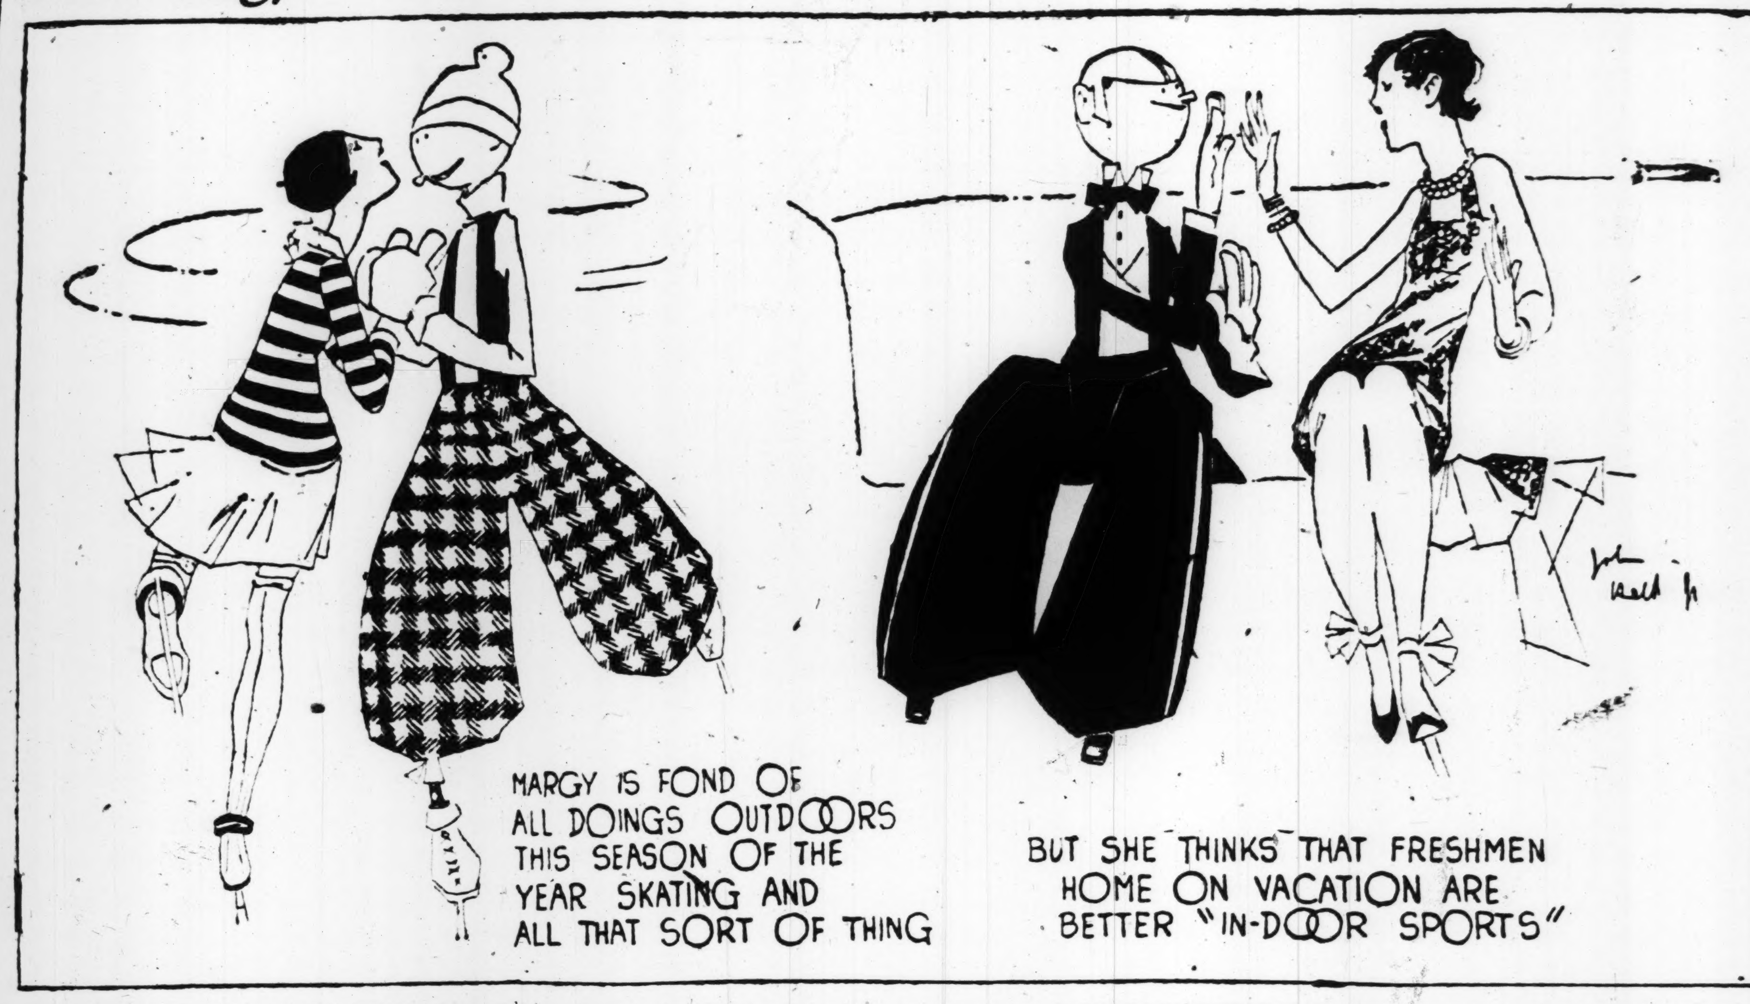

Somehow I'm not so awfully sorry for Maisie myself, are you? Maisie married for money quite deliberately. Her husband kept his side of the bargain. I wonder why Maisie thinks she didn't need to keep her side?

Secrets of Health and Success

Danger Signals and Baby's Ears

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.

Former President of the American Medical Association.

THERE are some things that you ought to know about ears and about the sense of hearing that may have escaped your attention. This is especially true if you happen to be a parent.

It is a common and highly dangerous fallacy that when a child has ear trouble there is "nothing to worry about while his ear is still running" and that it "will grow out of" the deafness from which it is suffering.

These beliefs probably result from the fact that deafness never causes death.

Nevertheless, there is a good deal to be said for the view that deafness is a worse affliction than blindness, and if it is to be avoided the slightest sign of ear trouble must be given skilled attention at once.

It is important to look out for ear defects early. Thus, a child's ear may be injured by the forceps during delivery or may have a fault in its development. Some, again, are born with an ear stopped by a bony obstruction. If both ears are deformed the child should be sent as early as possible to a school for lip reading.

If your baby doesn't early respond to noises, and especially to mother's voice, the condition may be serious. The child may have been born deaf, and if this should be true the time to begin compensatory education, something that will tend to make up for the loss of hearing, is right away.

Speech is only learned by the imitation of sounds, and a child who is born deaf or becomes deaf early will remain dumb.

Acquired deafness, however, is more common than congenital deafness, and may be caused by many of the infectious diseases, by adenoids, and by inflammation of the middle ear. When a child between 4 and 7 becomes deaf it will gradually lose what speech it has learnt unless it is trained in lip reading, but long and careful training will save its speech if deafness does not occur till after 7.

Much deafness would be averted if all adenoids, tonsils and running ears were taken at once to the doctor.

Don't treat earache in the baby as something trivial.

Practically all babies feel some pain in the ear when the teeth are coming through. This is not, properly speaking, earache, but is placed in the ear because of the child's vagueness about its own parts and inability to locate the source of pain. In these cases the baby puts its hand to its ear or the back of its head and cries with the usual fretful cry of teething. Provided there is no discharge from the ear this can safely be disregarded. A few drops of warm sweet oil dropped in the ear will often relieve the pain, but nothing very much can be done except waiting till the teeth are through.

Another common source of worry about teething time is a discharge of earwax. This is deep yellow in color and should be bathed away. It does not indicate ear disease. The discharge, which must never be neglected, is the pale yellow or greenish-yellow matter, like the matter that collects in a festering sore or abscess. Such a discharge or severe and persistent ear pain, especially if accompanied by any gastric disturbance or fever, must be taken to a doctor without delay.

Pointers on Auction Bridge

By MILTON C. WORK

THE pointer for today is:

With but one winning card of the suit originally led at No Trumps, Declarer usually should hold that card until the third round if possible.

The doctrine of the hold-up at No Trump is one of the most rudimentary and yet important of the many that the Declarer must understand in order successfully to manage the 26 cards he is called upon to play.

The adversary who has the lead will open his longest suit in the hope of establishing it and winning enough tricks to save game; the object of Declarer's hold-up is to block the suit after it is established and kill what would otherwise be one or more adverse winners. The opportunity to do this blocking arises when the partner of the original leader has no more of the suit, and the original leader can be kept from winning a trick and getting in the lead to cash his winners; Declarer often can bring about this condition by holding up his winning card of the adverse suit until the third round of it.

Of course the hold-up should be made only when it does not endanger the winning of that one trick in the adverse suit. With Ace-x-x either in Dummy or Closed Hand, Declarer may be sure of winning either of the first three tricks; with King-x-x in Closed Hand when the Ace is played by the Third Hand and the suit returned, Declarer may be sure of either the second or third trick at his option. But when the holding is King-x-x, Dummy having no support in the suit, and the Third Hand does not play the Ace, the first trick obviously has to be taken with the King, or the King surely would be lost; so the advice in today's pointer applies generally to the Ace-x-x holdings. The following No Trump hand will illustrate:

South.
S.: A-K-3.
H.: A-9-4.
D.: K-Q-10-5.
C.: A-6-4.

West would lead the Five of Clubs and East would play the Queen. It will be noticed that should Declarer fail to plan and should he take the first or second Club trick, East—when he won with the Ace of Diamonds—would be able to return his partner's suit, which would save game; but if the Declarer hold up his Ace of Clubs until the third round, East would not have a Club to lead, and Declarer would make game.

How should Declarer plan the following No trump hand after looking at his Dummy?

RECIPES FROM "My Old Virginia Cook Book"

Tomato Jelly.

TAKE a 1-quart can of tomatoes, ½ box of gelatine, 1 heaping teaspoonful of sugar, a dash of cayenne pepper and a little salt.

Rub the tomatoes through a fine sieve. Dissolve the gelatine in ½ cup of cold water. Put the tomatoes in a sauce pan and bring to the boil, then pour in gradually the gelatine, stirring all the time. Then add the seasoning and bring again to the boil. Have the molds cold and then pour the jelly in and set by to get firm. Turn out of molds on crisp lettuce and serve with a spoonful of mayonnaise dressing on top and some strips of green peppers.

The Tailored Suit.

NEW YORK.—Shopping and traveling made the tailored suit almost indispensable. The type of garments seldom show much change, but at the moment the skirts are evidencing a slightly greater fullness obtained with hidden pleats. One of the smartest short coats—and they are all short—is a straight, almost box type, shaped in at the waistline.

Furs as gifts are still selling, but since the decline of the sale of the fur neckpiece, no fur section can show so many pieces of fur bought for gift giving.

How to Protect Your Hands

By Lucrezia Bori

GLOVES are of the utmost importance to the woman who does her own housework. Strong soaps, polishes and cleaners are necessary to the accomplishment of household tasks, but they do take their toll of beauty from the hands. Hot water alone makes the hands red and coarsens the skin so that unless some means of protecting the skin is adopted, the hands really suffer when strong cleaning mediums are used.

A pair of cotton gloves should be worn while sweeping and dusting to keep the grit and dust from becoming imbedded in the skin. The gloves also act as a pad between the handle of the broom and the skin, so that the chance of getting blisters and callouses is greatly lessened.

Rubber gloves should be used when the hands are in hot water, and when using cleaning powders or silver polishes. These preparations, no matter how carefully compounded, must be stronger than hand soaps or else their cleansing value is destroyed. They tend to dry up the natural oils on the surface of the skin, and this makes the hands rough and red. Rubber gloves prevent the skin from coming in contact with the cleaning preparations and protect the hands.

A small pad, fitting across the palm of the hand and held in place with a bit of elastic across the back of the hand, offers splendid protection when ironing.

And one can always use to good advantage those clever night gloves which are slipped on after a beautifying cream has been massaged into the hands.

Self-Made Success

By Lucy Lowell.

A FAMOUS orator said the other day that he did not believe there is any such thing as a self-made man.

The men who boast of having achieved success by their own unaided efforts could, if they were more analytical—and perhaps more honest as well!—find many factors, some of them very humble, all of which had some slight part in building their lives.

It seems a reasonable theory. For by no human effort nor by any circumstance may one member of the race be separated from others. Lives are like the pieces in a mosaic; they all fit together and all touch, however briefly.

And I'm wondering if all of us, going about with our small triumphs and successes, are rather like the man who is so proud because he considers himself self-made.

"I've done this—no help from a soul! Just set out by myself and by sheer determination and maybe a little extra special cleverness I've put this over.

"What an extraordinary person I am, to be sure! Get a right to hold my head high, haven't I? I'll say you what! Not many can stand up to life and take what I've got all unaided!"

That's rather the way we feel about it, isn't it? The something good thing we have done; what we've put over, as we say.

But have we a right to feel so? Why do we assume that we alone deserve credit?

Perhaps it was no more than a word someone gave us that helped; maybe it was a suggestion made one made, long ago, that caught in our minds and grew. It might have been this or that—any one of many things—but something it was that assisted us.

No—we didn't do it, whatever it is, alone!

So let's not swagger any more. Let's be joyful, but not boastful. And let's, when the time comes, do for someone else what someone has done for us.

Squares.

NEW YORK.—Jewelry has to be on the square, but jewels do so. The latest fashion of cutting precious stones is to cut them in a square. Diamonds and emeralds are cut either into squares or oblongs and this fashion has passed to the imitation stones and costume jewelry. The vogue is most noticeable in bracelets.

4 out of 5 start too late

Among the people you see today, four out of five past forty (and many younger) are victims of Pyorrhea—simply because they started too late to protect teeth and gums.

Pyorrhea starts with tender, bleeding gums. Unchecked, it undermines youth and health. Too often it results in loss of teeth, neuritis, ulcers, rheumatism or other serious diseases.

But have no fear. If you start in time, you can prevent or check the vicious inroads of Pyorrhea. If your gums are soft or bleeding, see your dentist at once for examination. And start now using Forhan's for the Gums.

Used regularly and in time, Forhan's prevents Pyorrhea or checks it. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., a recognized specialist for years in Pyorrhea.

Forhan's firms the gums, keeps them healthy. It protects teeth and keeps them white. It guards your youth and health. Don't gamble with your health! See your dentist twice a year. And start the Forhan morning-and-night habit, now. Teach your children to use it, too, as health-insurance. Play safe. Get a tube today. At all druggists', 35c and 60c.

Little Miss Malaprop

By Fay Stevenson

MISS MALAPROP thought she knew all there was to know about society's initials when she learned that R S V P meant "Respond if you please." But when she discovered a card in her tray on which the initials P. P. C. were written in ink she was decidedly and frankly puzzled.

What could P. P. C. mean? She hurried to the home of her best socially informed friend.

"Please tell me at once! Don't keep me waiting!" she begged. "All I know is that this lady is going to Florida in a few weeks, and it may be that the initials have something to do with that trip."

Miss Malaprop's friend informed her that the P. P. C. did have a great deal to do with the proposed trip to Florida. In fact P. P. C. translated in French is pour prendre conge—to take leave—and many society folk write this on their cards a few weeks or days before they leave town for the season.

Upon receiving a card with these initials one is supposed to pay a visit or write a note of bon voyage.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

AH! What a story the work-box could tell, little torn stockings and sadly ripped frocks out of confusion such marvels would well could we but hear it, the tale of the box! Children all flushed with the gladness of play, climbing aloft in the old appletree, boughs for their boats to go sailing away; rents in their clothes, but no flaws in their glee! Here a red sweater grown shabby with age; next, an old sock that is worn through at the toe; hinting of winter when wild tempests rage, hinting of highways the wanderers know. Yet, of all tales which the work-box could tell this one is best: tale of fingers so sure, mother's white fingers beneath whose swift spell torn little frocks are made strong to endure! Torn little dresses and ripped little hose . . . mother's deft fingers can soon make them whole; mother-love potent at mending old clothes as at the healing of heart and of soul!

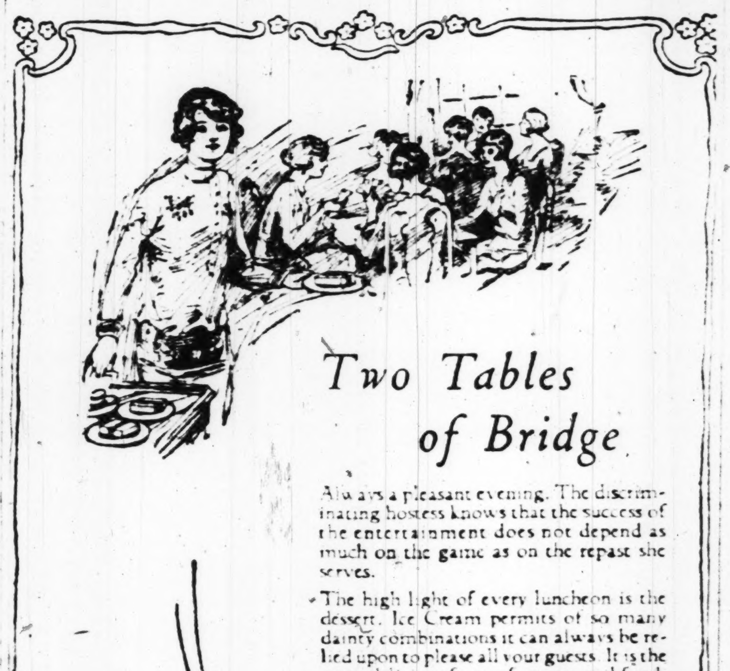

A type of costume that is practical for snowshoeing or winter sport that does not involve violent exercise is whipcord in light hunters green patterned with vermilion leather in primitive designs that almost cover the bodice and band the clever trouser-skirt.

Whitefoot Climbs High

Know what to do in time of stress;
It may be fatal just to guess.
—Whitefoot the Woodmouse.

LITTLE WHITEFOOT THE WOODMOUSE sat on the snow at the foot of the big stump in which was his home and gazed up at a little black spot as if he couldn't believe his eyes. You see, he knew right away what that black spot was. He knew that it was the black tip of a tail. More than this, he knew whose tail it was. That tail was hanging down from under the piece of bark that covered the entrance to Whitefoot's home, and Whitefoot knew that the owner of that tail was looking into that home.

For a moment Whitefoot sat motionless and breathless. Then that tail disappeared. Whitefoot knew that the owner was now inside his home in that hollow stump.

Whitefoot turned and ran. My my, my, how he did run! Never in his life had he run faster. And as he ran he said over and over to himself, "Shadow the Weasel! Shadow the Weasel!" And every time he said this it seemed as if he jumped a little farther.

Whitefoot knew just what he was going to do. He had planned what he would do if ever Shadow should appear, and now that Shadow was here he didn't forget. The instant that he saw that tail disappear he made for the nearest tree, so as to get that tree between him and the stump. Then he couldn't be seen if Shadow should come out to look about. And this is just what Shadow did do. Just as soon as he found that Whitefoot wasn't at home he came out and looked all about to see if by any chance he might be in sight. Then he went back into Whitefoot's comfortable home. He would wait there for Whitefoot to return. There was a nice soft bed and it would be a very comfortable place to rest while he waited.

Meanwhile Whitefoot, as you know, was running with all his might. There was a certain tall tree, a dead tree, for which Whitefoot was heading. High up in it was a hole. It was an entrance to the old home of Drummer the Woodpecker. No one had lived in it for a long time. Whitefoot had known about it for a long time and once in a great while had climbed up to it. He didn't like to be up so high. It was a long climb and a hard climb for Whitefoot. He much prefers to be near the ground. But now he was making straight for this tree.

He came out and looked all about to see if by any chance he might be in sight

"That's the place for me," said he to himself. "Shadow the Weasel can climb, but he isn't fond of climbing. He isn't likely to climb so high as that unless he is pretty sure that some one is in there. He isn't likely to climb way up there just to see if some one is in there. So if I can get up there without being seen by him, I'll be safe, I'm sure of it."

Without pausing for breath Whitefoot started to climb that tree. He was smart enough to climb on the side away from the direction from which he had come. This was so that if Shadow should be following him he would not see him climbing the tree. Up, up he went and popped into the little hole. There was an old bed in there, a bed Timmy the Flying Squirrel had made, for once upon a time Timmy had lived in that hole.

Whitefoot curled up in that bed and shivered and shook. Yes, sir, he shivered and shook. You see, he thought he was safe, but he couldn't be sure. There was the chance that Shadow the Weasel might come out and finding his trail follow it with that wonderful nose of his. If he didn't do this, Whitefoot felt that he would be safe.

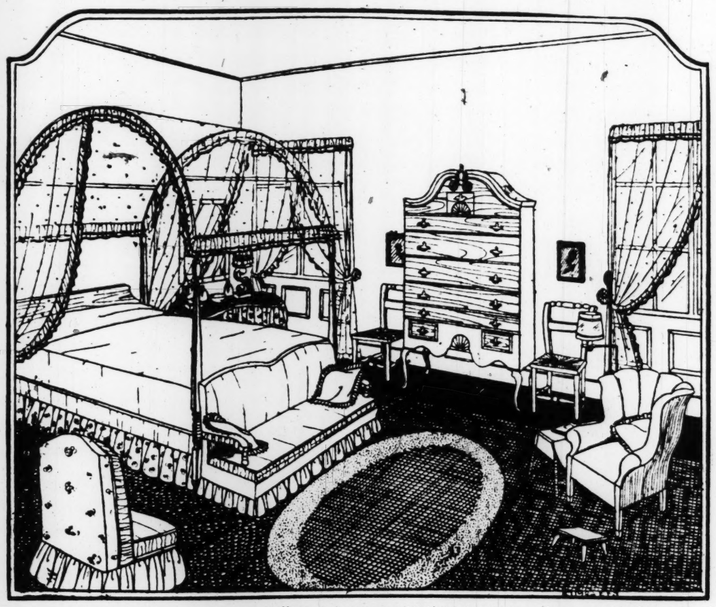

Whitefoot didn't remain curled up long. He just had to peep out. He just couldn't remain down in there without seeing what was going on. No, sir, he just couldn't. So, after he had gotten his breath, he crept up to the entrance where he could keep watch. As he sat there he saw a Merry Little Breeze doing a whirling dance and catching up the light snow and sprinkling it all about. This whirling, dancing, Merry Little Breeze came along right where Whitefoot had run. Whitefoot gave a little sigh of thankfulness. That Merry Little Breeze had covered up his trail completely. He was safe from Shadow.

Colonial Furnishing for the Bedroom

THE quaintness and delicate coloring of the Colonial bedroom makes it particularly appealing to the schoolgirl. The quality of fineness in the decoration and furniture—combined with subtle coloring creates an atmosphere which is most pleasing and refreshing.

There is a feeling of refinement evident in each detail. While decorative touches are introduced to enhance the furnishings, a certain definite trend of simplicity is present as is illustrated by the sketch.

As a background, indicative of such a mood, the walls can be tinted in a soft rose shade with the ceiling and woodwork a deep cream or ivory. The floor boards which are wide, can either be painted black or covered with a dark linoleum. It is attractive, as well as in keeping with the setting, to have the greater share of the floor covered with a rag rug or carpet with perhaps one or two small colorful hooked rugs placed here or there.

The lovely old fashioned bed with its dainty ruffled canopy top is made of maple. The bed need not be an antique as many pretty reproductions, not at all unlike the one shown, are being sold in the shops today. The counterpane is a plain cream chintz with a colorful ruffle.

The canopy is a cream dotted Swiss embellished with three tiny ruffles of rose, blue and yellow ribbons. The same suggestion is carried out for the window curtains and they are caught back with rose silk cords.

The highboy is of maple and is given a high polish. Balancing it on either side are two small rose-painted chairs. The overstuffed chair is covered with denim in an ashes of rose shade. Beside it is a small maple table and stool as well as a wrought iron lamp with a plain natural colored parchment shade.

The settee is covered in a self-colored linen and the little slipper chair is in a vari-colored glazed chintz. This same material is also used for the ruffle around the unique dressing table with its kidney-shaped glass top.

The lights on the dressing table have glass bases like old lamps and the shades are of pleated flowered chintz. The pictures on the walls are principally silhouettes and clusters of painted flowers.

Our Children

Stories for Children.

SOME folk have queer notions about what they tell children. They are horrified when a little child, still in the world of fairyland from which he started on his long journey through this world of realism, tells them a bit of a fairy tale. Shocked beyond expression to think that a child of their bosom would tell a lie. But listen to this:

"Peggy, I don't like that Daddy of yours one bit."

"Don't ike mine daddy?"

"Not one bit."

The happy little face lost all its radiance. A shadow of trouble brooded in the great dark eyes and about the sensitive wee mouth. Very sweet and pathetic, little Peggy looked in her distress. She loved her daddy dearly. They were such good friends that to have mother say she didn't like him was a great blow. But she said not one word. She slipped off into her own corner and gravely busied herself with her dollie.

"Oo ike mine daddy, don't uh?" she whispered wistfully to the bundle of rags and hair long past any semblance to the beautiful dollie of treasured memory. "Oo like him, don't uh?"

"Why you blessed silly little Peggy, of course mother likes daddy. Don't you know mother was only teasing you? Of course, mother likes daddy." Peggy crumpled up in mother's lap and sobbed as though her heart would break. "You silly little Peggy," said mother.

And there's Uncle Bill. He is big and hearty and loves to send thrills down other folk's backs. How would they know he was strong he-man stuff if he didn't tell them so? He gets the children about him and tells them ghost stories, blood curdling ghost stories. And a long, bony arm without body or even the shadow of body reached out of the darkness and clutched him. He couldn't push it off. His hand slipped right through it yet it clutched with icy fingers on his throat. Slowly, slowly."

"Bill," calls mother, half laughing, half protesting, "don't frighten those children with your awful stories. You know there's not a word of truth in them. They're awful."

"He isn't scaring us, Mom. We aren't afraid. Go on Uncle Bill. What happened then? Did he choke him, or what?"

And Uncle Bill, pleased by the applause, goes on with his thrilling tale, right on to the frozen end. The children draw a long breath and stretch themselves and draw closer to the fireside. The youngest boy gets close to his mother in the circle of lamp light. "No, I'm not scared, mother. Ghosts don't really happen, do they?"

And that night he cannot sleep and by morning he has a temperature and the doctor frowns and says, "Shock. Anybody frighten the child?"

It seems to me that folk who enjoy seeing shadows of grief or fear darken the eyes of childhood ought to form a club and practice their art on each other. That would still afford them their favorite amusement and let the children escape.

A Well-Lighted House.

LIGHTING a house has become an established art. Modern builders work out the lighting system as carefully as they do the proper placing of the water and heating plants. It costs but little extra to have all the lighting outlets placed when the house is being built, but as afterthoughts they are quite expensive.

Duplex outlets provide for two lights from one center. A duplex in the kitchen allows for a light on one side and an attachment for the iron on the other.

In the cellar, a light at the furnace and one at the coal bin will be a great comfort. A switch at the head of the stairs will turn one, or both, on. If the laundry is kept in the cellar there will have to be adequate arrangements made for the electric washer, mangle and irons.

For the dining room, center and side lights will be needed, besides the extra outlets for table stoves for different uses. While wiring, don't forget low outlets for the vacuum cleaner. If the stairs in the hall are dark, step lights will save many a fall. For all large closets there should be installed lights that operate by the opening and closing of the door.

In bedrooms lights are generally side lights, except where they are placed at either side and above the bureau mirror. For use of the invalid there is an under the bed light which lights the room, yet cannot shine in anyone's eyes. It is also handy for dark cleaning days in rooms where sunlight does not penetrate.

Outlets for the electric fans for summer use should figure in the plans. Plugs on the porch allow the use of toasters, waffle irons and grill. Porch ceiling light and side reading lights are now considered a necessity. On one porch there is a small light placed on the door frame to light up door-knob and keyhole, quite a convenience for the late homecomer on a dark stormy night.

This may sound like elaborate arrangements until we stop to consider that many of the lights suggested are only lighted in emergency and do not appreciably increase the bills. We might as well have them installed while building and save the need to add them at a much greater cost later on.

The gay ski-scarf tied in the back and the trapper's sash bound tightly around the waist over the ski-breeches are picturesque and becoming accessories that the American sportswoman adores.

The Diary of a New Father

TUESDAY NIGHT.

WELL, if I want to see the apartment jammed full of new clothes, I got what I wanted tonight. All of the things Joan bought yesterday were delivered today, and when I got home she was still trying them on, assisted by her grandmother and my mother, who had helped her buy the stuff and were standing up for the different articles they had suggested, whenever Joan said she wondered if she had made a mistake in buying THIS.

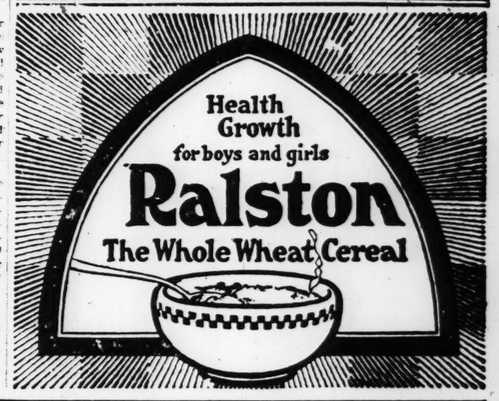

She always wonders that.

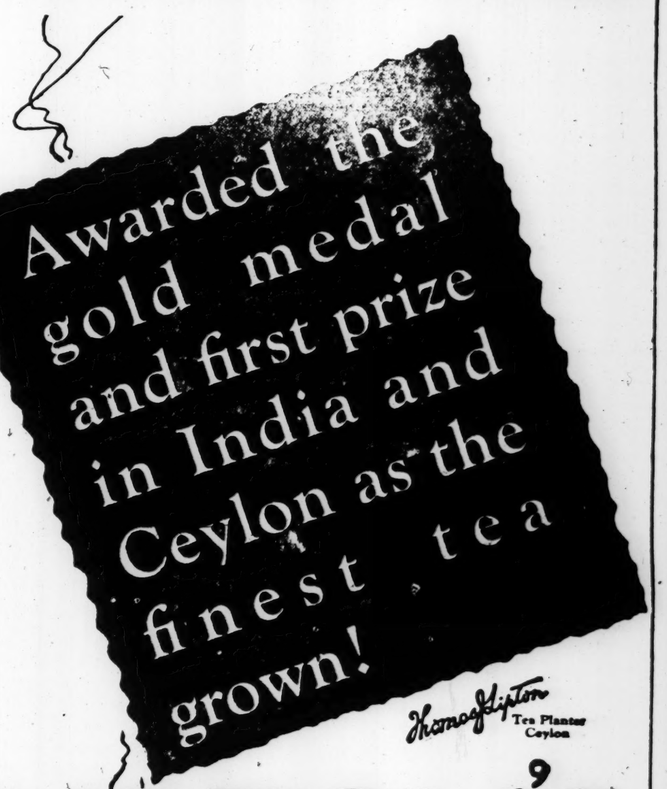

I said, "Can I come in?" and they said, "Yes, but don't step on things," so I went into the bedroom and the baby was lying awake in his crib and I played with him for a while, but pretty soon he began crying and I looked at my watch and it was 6:30 and I hollered out to the other room, "The poor little fellow is hungry," and my mother said, "Oh, good heavens, we forgot. I'll get his dinner right away." I said, "Any chance of MY getting a little dinner tonight?" and Joan said, "We will all have to go out for dinner. We have been so busy today, getting ready to leave."

I said, "Have you decided when you are going?" and she said, "We think we will take that 8 o'clock train Friday night. You had better buy my ticket and reservation tomorrow." I said, "We probably haven't a dime left in the bank after your writing checks for all these clothes," and Joan said, "Why, I spent hardly anything. Most of this stuff is charged."

Stuffed Leg of Lamb.

Select a large leg of lamb and have the chops cut off for broiling. Have the butcher remove the entire bone, and crack the bones and use with trimmings for soup. Make a savory stuffing, using a minced onion, a minced pepper, two cupfuls of crumbs, pepper, salt, a quarter cupful of chopped celery leaves, a teaspoonful each of powdered mint and sage, a dessertspoonful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter, and a quarter cupful of cream. Stuff the leg and bind it closely with asbestos string and roast as usual, basting freely. Potatoes may be roasted with the meat and mint jelly may be served with it.

"SALLY STEPS OUT"

A Tale of Romance and Adventure
By ACHMED ABDULLAH
Dramatic — Thrilling — Appealing

"The Great Velasquez."

ROGER MORROW'S great mural painting was finished.

"I'm going to have a party," he told Sally. "A regular bang-up party. You shall be the guest of honor. Janet and Sam must come and your young friend Wyatt—I'm hearing all sorts of good things about that forthcoming novel of his, by the way. We'll get all the crowd and then some. Your old friend Korke is away for the summer. He and Lowe have gone to Brittany. But Lissac and Lena are not sailing until next week."

Sally tried to be happy about the party and the completion of the mural. But she was worried. What was she to do next? With Korke and Lowe away she could not get work with them; and she knew that Morrow would take a long rest. It was his custom to lie fallow for some time after each important achievement.

Sally had saved some money. For a time she would be all right. But she knew that she must get work somewhere and somehow.

The night of the party came, a warm, still night, crystal clear. There were dozens of guests. Few people refused Morrow's rather rare invitations. The mural was of course the chief object of attraction and the big studio had been cleared for dancing. Along one end of it ran another innovation which soon rivaled the interest in the mural. This was an old-fashioned bar constructed with brass rail and everything. Behind the bar were several young men in white aprons and broad grins. There was also a free lunch counter, and the "lunch" was a super-lunch, all sorts of salads and appetizers heaped in profusion.

One of the first people Sally saw was Sam. She hurried up to him.

"Looking very pretty tonight," said Sam, approvingly. "I like that green dress."

"Where is Janet?"

His face clouded. He ran a hand through his red hair.

"Sulking. She wouldn't come."

"Oh, Sammy, why?"

Sam grunted. Then he explained carefully.

"I've been out on a couple of parties lately . . . and I've lost the family wad . . . shot it on a few poker games. Janet got mad. So when tonight's shindig came along she wouldn't come. That's that."

"Where's—George?" asked Sally after a while and Sam stared at her.

"Didn't he telephone you?"

"Only that he couldn't call for me, but might meet me here."

"He isn't coming," said Sam. "Something about proofs, I believe . . . job of work, anyway."

Sally became convinced at once that George had never intended to attend Morrow's party. And that annoyed her. Why hadn't he said so right out?

She was quite right in her surmise. George had not intended going to the party. He was still mulling over the fact that Morrow—plus the roses—had been to call on Sally. He was still angry and suspicious and had denied himself a really good time in order to sit at home and sulk.

Sam was in high spirits. He had been pressed into service to play the piano at such moments as the jazz artists engaged by Morrow felt in need of refreshment or rest. Sam spent his time between the piano and the bar, and when he wasn't at one place or another he was somewhere else in the apartment where poker and red-dog were in progress.

Morrow's apartment was very large indeed. On the top floor he had studio, dressing rooms, and a sort of workshop. Down a flight of private stairs were his bedroom and bath and a guest room. Then from the studio itself, or, rather, from the workshop, there was a flight of stairs to the roof which he had fixed up as an Italian garden with shrubbery, flowers, wicker chairs and tables, a canvas swing and a little singing fountain.

Sally was sitting up there with half a dozen others when she became aware that a man, leaning on the balustrade, was staring at her intently. He was directly under the glow of an electric light bulb concealed in a silken lantern, and she saw his features plainly. The artist in her was at once intrigued by his unusual face and personality. He was not young. A mass of white hair was swept back from a broad, rather bulbous forehead. His eyes were immense, hooded, golden-brown, the eyebrows shaggy and white, the skin too pale, the full lips too red, the nose an immense, purely Semitic affair.

Sally disliked him, at once, instinctively. Still, at once, instinctively, he interested her. She turned to the girl next to her:

"Who's that?"

"That?" The girl looked on. "Oh—my hat, green or otherwise! Don't you recognize Solomon Velasquez?"

"The producer?"

"Of course. Look out for him. He lives on little girls. Eats 'em alive!"

Later on, as she crossed the garden to talk to Lena, she noticed that Velasquez was watching her closely, tensely.

She did not meet him again until later in the evening, when they had all gone downstairs. Then he came to her across the room piloted by a man she knew slightly. When Sally saw him under the glare of less flattering lamps she saw that much of his [illegible] had vanished. He [illegible] little greasy, a trifle [illegible] still possessed the [illegible] eyes, the mop of [illegible] that was slow [illegible] almost [illegible]

CHAPTER 22.

What Has Gone Before.

SALLY DANGERFIELD, a lovely tawny-haired Southern girl, lives alone with her invalid mother in their ancestral home in Charleston, S. C., both of them very poor and very proud. There are three fine young Southerners who want to marry her, but Sally is not in love with any one of them. She longs to develop her talent for drawing and earn her own living. Then one day she meets George Wyatt, a novelist who has come to Charleston seeking quiet in which to write his book, and they fall in love. Unfortunately, they have the usual lovers' quarrel and George returns to New York without even saying good-bye. Shortly after this Mrs. Dangerfield dies suddenly and Sally herself comes to New York, hoping to study art. However, she soon finds she has not enough money and with the help of Janet Powers, a young girl living in the same boarding house, she secures a job as an artist's model. Also she meets George again, as she had secretly hoped she would, and they make up their quarrel, but he does not propose as he feels he is too poor. Sally is hurt at his failure to declare himself and when the great artist, Roger Morrow, asks her to pose for him she consents in spite of George's violent objections. She also takes lessons from a friend of Morrow's and makes excellent progress, and when George finally proposes she refuses from pride, although admitting that she loves him. When Janet and Sam, a friend of George's, get married, she is envious of their happiness, but persists in her refusal. George is increasingly jealous of Morrow and this leads to many misunderstandings between himself and Sally.

man who had introduced them wandered away.

"I have been watching you, Miss Dangerfield."

"Yes?"

"I have wanted to meet you for some time," he assured her in his slow way. "I have seen your pictures in the papers. You are Morrow's Hope. Everyone knows that."

Sally disliked the intimate look in his peering, tragic eyes, but she was used to being studied by now.

"You have never been on the stage?" he went on.

"Why, no. I haven't been in New York very long."

"They tell me you are an artist."

"I am a pupil of Max Lissac," she answered, with a little thrill of pride.

"So? And you pose for Morrow?"

His tone was fatherly, interested. Sally answered, in her impulsive, frank manner:

"Oh, yes . . . you see, I came here to study, Mr. Valesquez, but I did not have much money and I had to work . . . and work in the studios seemed the very best thing I could do all around."

"Yes, I see."

He was silent a while, studying her. Then he said abruptly:

"I would like to see you on the stage."

"But I can't act! I have had no experience!"

"That makes no difference. From my point of view it is all the better—the lack of experience, I mean . . . But as to the other, of course, you can act. All women can. Their entire lives consist of acting . . . they act as children for their parents, later for their friends, lovers, husbands, children. Women are natural Thespians. And I like to take this native talent and train it—for the larger and more impersonal audience. Miss Dangerfield, if you would like work of this sort, come to me, at any time. I promise you a position."

"But—"

"Oh, not at once, I assure you. I would train you first. But while you were learning I would pay you a salary, one upon which you could live nicely. You would have many lessons, fencing, riding. I suppose you do ride, you are a Southern girl, of course . . . voice training . . . you would have to live very simply and put yourself in my hands, and I would be your teacher. But in a year or two—I promise you a great success. You have youth, beauty, grace, the native feminine talent, great charm and are, I think, docile, an apt pupil. Think it over. Call me up and make an appointment with my secretary."

He rose and left her.

Sally sat in a daze. She had been worrying about work—and here it was being offered to her—work, study, a career, a good salary—on a silver platter.

Why—it was splendid.

She ran after him:

"Oh—Mr. Velasquez—"

"Yes?"

"I am grateful to you—so grateful—"

"Grateful?" Nonsense. We are both artists. We need each other. Come to me."

She left the party early, when the Lissacs went. They took her home, kissed her goodnight. She was sorry, so sorry, to see them go; said so.

"Sally, liebes Herz, come with us abroad!" begged Lena, and Max, standing in the narrow hall of Mrs. McDonnell's boarding house added his word of invitation:

"But do that, Sally—what fun we will have! I will show you my Paris and then we will take a little house in the country and paint and laugh."

Sally's eyes filled.

"I wish I could."

"But come," urged Lena. "We have a little money saved . . . it lies idle. Why not come then, as our guest?"

Sally was terribly touched. She wanted so to go. Paris! France! and with these two good friends. But her pride would not allow her.

"Not this year," she answered regretfully. "But I can't thank you enough . . . you've been so dear to me, and I love you both, and shall miss you so, my very best friends!"

They could not persuade her and finally left her after a rather [illegible] all around [illegible] quite happy [illegible] she had [illegible]. And [illegible]

ing out of pride, for had not Velasquez promised work?

A few days later, having first telephoned to his secretary, she met Solomon Velasquez in his large studio on top of his theater.

It was an immense room, crammed with antiques—a few rather good, but most of them decidedly reminiscent of junk shops. Still, nobody noticed the garish shabbiness at first sight. For the lights were cunningly arranged.

Solomon Velasquez received her, sitting in back of a huge desk, littered with bric-a-brac, and observed her as she walked across the floor.

"So, you came, Miss Dangerfield?"

"Yes" . . .

For a time he talked to her about the theaters, about ideals and hard work and the glory that waited at the top for the woman willing to sacrifice herself to art.

"You must not marry, you know, if I take you under my care."

Sally looked her astonishment.

"But—actresses marry?"

"Not my actresses—at least, not without my consent."

He rose and stood over her as she sat in a deep chair by the desk. He put out his soft, white hands and pulled her to her feet.

"See," he said, holding her there. "When I consent to take a pupil, she belongs to me. I must have her mind and her soul and her ambitions and her body. I must have all of her. She is clay in my hands. She is moulded as I will. I make a great actress out of that clay. I teach her sacrifice and heartbreak. I teach her passion and despair. . . I create her, I, Velasquez."

His voice was slow, quiet, even. His brown eyes burned with a veiled, fanatic flame.

She struggled to loose herself. But his hands were strong, for all their soft whiteness. He pulled her closer.

"I—Velasquez," he repeated.

And, somehow, although Sally was furious, the situation also struck her as funny. This rather dirty old man—with his Napoleonic conceit: "I—Velasquez."

So she laughed.

He misunderstood the laugh—thought it a laugh of surrender. He bent closer.

"Oh"——

She tore herself free; and the next moment her hard young hand had slapped the great Velasquez, the wizard of Broadway, across the face.

He was startled; not at the slap, for many women, in the past, had struck him, in high, emotional anger. But not so early in the game, and not laughing, as Sally was laughing, not saying, as she was saying, with a sort of pity in her voice, a contemptuous pity:

"Oh—you are an old fool, aren't you?"

She went to the door, walked out, went straight home.

She was furious at herself. What a greenhorn she had been to believe him—she should have expected just what happened.

Fool—she had called him. Well—she was the fool—George was right—a woman could not look after herself. Yes—George was right—and she loved him—she would tell him so.

No! suddenly. She would do nothing of the sort. She would stand on her own feet, make her own life, her own fame!

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

The Home Kitchen

By Jeannette Norton.

Lamb in Several Languages

LAMB is a favorite meat with Far East nations. The Eastern cooks serve lamb by adding the most unexpected things to it. They cook it with peppers, onions and garlic, or with apples, or quinces, or baked squash, or okra. Odd though some of the dishes are they are excellent.

Hungarian Lamb.

Stew four lamb chops until tender, then left and chop fine. Mince an onion and two red peppers fine and saute them in a tablespoonful of butter until cooked, but not browned, then add them to the meat. Make a brown sauce, using the liquor from the meat, and when done add to it twelve olives cut from their stones. Serve garnished with toast sippets.

Armenian Lamb With Quinces.

Cut as much lamb as is to be used from a thick leg. Pare, quarter, core and slice four ripe quinces. Put the lamb to stewing with the quinces and a minced onion. When the meat is done lift with the quinces to a hot dish. Now thicken the gravy with brown roux, season it to taste, adding a little sugar, pour it over the lamb and quinces and garnish with toast sippets.

Turkish Lamb.

Take two pounds of deep breast of lamb and stew gently until tender. Drain all but a cupful of broth and add a minced pepper, a very thinly sliced onion and two cupfuls of grape juice. Add pepper, salt, a tablespoonful sugar and a teaspoonful of powdered dried mint. Stew gently until the onions are done. Lift the meat, thicken the gravy slightly and turn over it.

French Lamb Cutlets.

[illegible] cutlets, dip them in beaten egg, then into dry seasoned crumbs and fry in hot fat. Cook two quarts of well washed spinach and boil it in a very little water. When done, chop it as fine as possible adding a big lump of butter, pepper and salt. Heap the spinach puree in the center of a hot dish, arrange the cutlets around it and mask with a rich brown sauce.

HER RECIPE . . HAVE YOU TRIED IT?

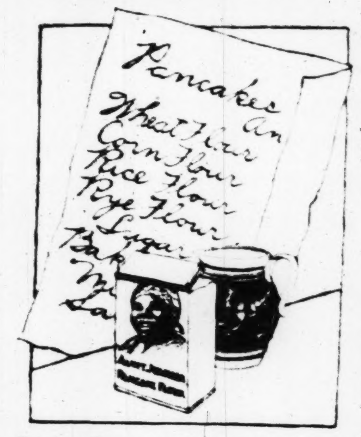

Her own ingredients ready mixed

In one important aspect of cooking American women stand far ahead of every other nation. In all countries women try hard to please their families at table.

But only in the United States are they so constantly collecting and testing new recipes. For this American women are celebrated. And this is one reason perhaps, that a single old-time recipe has today won more users than any other ever recorded.

Down on the old plantation, Aunt Jemima would not tell a soul how she mixed the batter for her light fragrant cakes. Only her master and his guests could enjoy them.

Today her own ingredients, just as she proportioned them, come ready-mixed. Millions of women are baking tender, golden-brown pancakes like those she made years ago—following her recipe exactly by using Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour. It is the only way to have that wonderful plantation flavor that made her famous.

Notice the new enthusiasm at table when you first serve Aunt Jemima's cakes. Plan now to test her recipe—ready-mixed. Your grocer has Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour and her Prepared Buckwheat Flour.

—Coupons for valuable premiums come in every Aunt Jemima package.

SUNDAY MAGAZINE. — To [mou]nt the Sunday magazine pic[ture] apply enough paste to the [bac]k of the picture so that it will [be] moist until laid on the [mou]nting board. Place the pic[ture] carefully on heavy, smooth [card]board so that the center of the sheet rests on the board first. With a soft brush smooth the sheet from the center outward, avoiding wrinkles and creases. A dinner-knife handle is convenient for smoothing the wrinkles. Place a large flat book or weight over the picture and allow it to remain on over night. Next day apply a coat of white shellac very smoothly. A second coat of shellac should be applied after the first one dries. The next operation is to polish the surface of the shellac with a very little bit of wax on a soft cloth. This polishing may be repeated but a small amount of wax should be used each time, not a larger quantity with one polishing. After polishing, trim the edges of the picture neatly, leaving a quarter of an inch for framing. Any suitable frame may be used. A simple frame for such pictures may be made by edging the picture with a folded strip of adhesive tape. The tape should be at least three-quarters of an inch wide when folded. Smooth the tape evenly around the edges and color it to harmonize with the picture. The coloring may be done with water color paints or other paint and a coat of shellac put over the paint. Brass rings may be fixed to the back of the picture with the adhesive tape when a regular frame is not used. The shellac and wax deepen the tones of the pictures and insure the permanency of the coloring. The picture may be wiped with a damp cloth and given another thin coating of wax every six months to clean it.

PERPLEXED.—If you overstay the time limit granted by the immigration authorities, your only punishment probably, will be deportation when they discover your whereabouts. We cannot say just what the transportation conditions might be in such a case.

MRS. M. R.—You can put your money in a joint account so that the survivor, either your husband or yourself, will get the money when one of you dies. The survivor would not have any legal difficulty in obtaining the money as it would not be any part of your estate.

A. C. F.—You can get an order from the Circuit Court, changing your name. The cost would be about $50. Marriage under either name would be a legal marriage. You should write to the Secretary of State, Jefferson City, Mo., for an application for a notary public. A notary must be 21 years old, a citizen, and a resident of Missouri.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

[H]ealth and sanitation questions of public interest only will be con[sid]ered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

WORRIED.—There is no medi[cal] treatment that would relieve [the] condition you mention. You [mi]ght consult a surgeon regard[ing] the defect.

POST READER. — If you can[no]t consult a physician about [you]r baby's diet we advise the [pu]rchase of a baby book, which [ca]n be obtained at a nominal cost. These books give detailed rules and diets for all ages of children and can be used to regulate your baby's meals until she is able to eat adult meals.

MRS. H. F. J.—Undoubtedly you are still experiencing the discomforts of the menopause, according to your description. Nervous sedatives properly administered by a physician, light exercise, sleep, wholesome and light diet and avoidance of overwork and worry is all that can be advised in such cases. Usually very good health is enjoyed after this period of discomfort. There is no reason for worry or thinking that you will lose your mind. You should consult a physician and follow his advice.

THE CASE OF CASEY.

THE outlook was propitious for the Mudville nine that day,
With the bags all populated and one inning more to play;
In fact their chance of winning might be designated fat,
For the great and only Casey was advancing to the bat.

Ten thousand eyes were on him as he rubbed his hands with dirt,
Five thousand tongues applauded
as he wiped them on his shirt.
To slam it for a homer they implored
him and beseeched,
For none of them suspected that their hero had been "reached."

"That 'aint my style," said Casey as the pellet split the plate,
While glaring at the arbiter with simulated hate.
The fans were yelling, "Soak it, for the sacred love of Mike!"
But with bat upon his shoulder
Casey took another strike.

The stands were in an uproar
as the pitcher wound his arm
For now the situation they were viewing with alarm.
A momentary silence hovers o'er them like a pall
As Casey with his bludgeon fails to offer at the ball.

Then from the stricken rooters
there arose a mighty roar,
Like beating of the storm waves on a stern and rocky shore.
"Fraud!" cried the maddened patrons and the echoes said the same.
For Casey, mighty Casey had
"sloughed" off another game.

TOO TRUE.

The man on the sandbox says "Ma" Ferguson seems to have adopted the old-time political slogan of "Turn the rascals out."

It has kept the courts of Texas pretty busy furnishing grist for "Ma's" pardon mill.

Certain Senators are opposed to Col. Orrick because of his aloofness and discouraging attitude towards the political approach. 'Tis a negative fault.

ALAS! poor Orrick,
He should be impeached.
When a friend's in trouble,
He cannot be reached.

"Chaplin in Chicago Calls Suit 'Terrible'."

Not as terrible as that old business suit of his—dinky cutaway, balloon trousers and over-size white vest.

As the Mayor of New York said to the Mayor of London by phone, it's a long way between drinks.

"Jazz Has Place in State Department."

Jazz so. Now the next move is to create the office of Secretary of Jazz.

At that it wouldn't be a bad idea to put a little jazz in the Congressional Record.

See where the merchants of Constantinople are to be fined for poor spelling in advertising. Guess that will hold them for a spell.

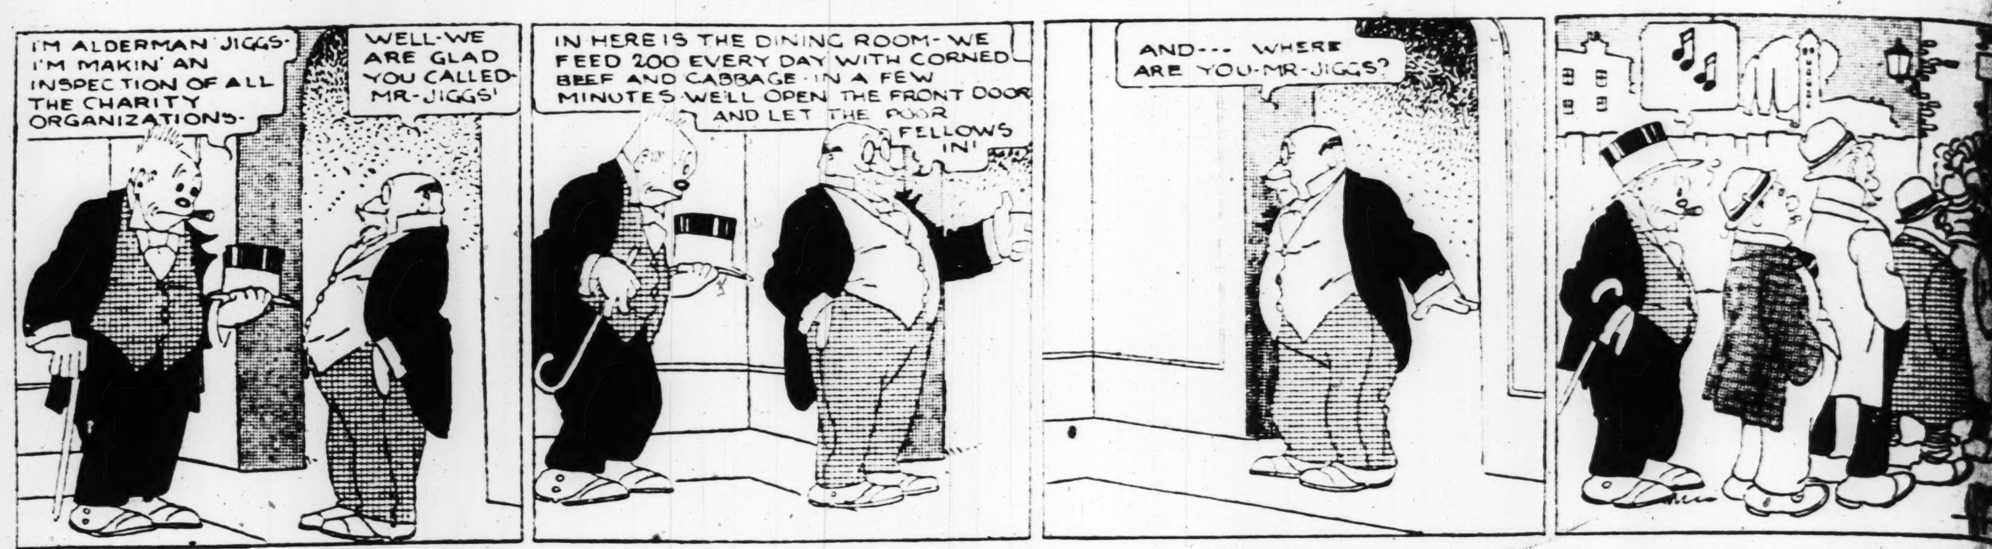

"Ma" Ferguson seems to be hail fellow well met with the criminal element of Texas.

QUITE SO.

FOR non-paying boarders
The State has no use.
The Judge puts 'em in
And "Ma" turns 'em loose.

However, the reign of error has ended and justice will proceed to tighten up again.

BECK GUILTY ON ALL NINE CHARGES OF MAIL FRAUD

Jury, After 40 Minutes Convicts 34-Year-Old President of Federal Home Building Corporation.

SENTENCE DEFERRED UNTIL FRIDAY

Head of Concern, in Which 400 St. Louisans Lost $282,000, Faces Possible 45 Year-Imprisonment.

Christian W. Beck, 34-year-old subdivision promoter, was found guilty by a Federal Court jury at 2:30 p. m. today of nine counts of using the mails to defraud in the operation of the defunct Federal Home Building Corporation. The jury deliberated 40 minutes after a trial which lasted nine days.

Judge Davis deferred sentence until Friday morning so that Beck's lawyers might prepare motions for new trial and arrest of judgment. The maximum punishment he can impose is five years in the penitentiary and a $1000 fine on each count, or a total of 45 years.

Beck's associate, Edward J. Barrett, general manager of the concern in which 400 St. Louisans lost $282,000, was convicted of nine similar counts last spring and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $2000. He is now at liberty under appeal bond.

Shows No Emotion at Verdict.

Beck showed no emotion when the verdict was read and was permitted to go about his business without giving a new bond. It was his second trial under a joint indictment in which he was named with Barrett. At last spring's trial the jury could not agree as to Beck's guilt or innocence.

The jury began deliberation at [illegible] p. m., after a morning session devoted to arguments by opposing counsel and instructions from the court.

Judge Davis reviewed the nine counts of the indictment, each based on a letter soliciting money from a contract holder. He told the jurors Beck's guilt or innocence depended on whether there was a scheme to defraud in the operation of the concern before the letters were mailed in April, 1923, whether false representations had been made, and whether Beck himself had a part in such a scheme, if it existed. It was not necessary to show, he said, that Beck personally mailed the letters or personally accepted money from contract holders.

Opposing counsel took an hour each in argument. Arthur L. Oliver and Nat C. Whaley, for Beck, argued that he was a reliable real estate man, stressing his alleged efforts to assist losers after the concern collapsed. Assistant United States Attorney Stattler asserted his opponents were "befogging the issues." Testimony ended yesterday afternoon after Beck spent an hour on the stand asserting his innocence of fraud and defending the Federal plan of mass production in home building.

Concern a "Side Issue."

On the stand, Beck declared the Federal concern, during its six months' existence in 1923, was to him a "side issue," and that, in his capacity as president, he only acted as an adviser. He devised a plan of "building homes cheaper than anybody else could," he said, and his associates, headed by Barrett, had active charge of the concern.

He denied he had any part in preparing or distributing the glowing sales literature or in training the salesmen, using a large part of his time in telling how he tried to salvage assets from the wreckage after the receivership in August, 1923.

Beck declared that, after the receivership, he turned over deeds of trust and real estate worth $145,-[illegible]—all that he and his wife possessed at the time—to W. A. Meier and George L. Zollman, trustees for the receiver, and spent a year of his time trying to turn these assets into cash for the benefit of the contract holders.

Mishandling is Charged.

In rebuttal, the Government presented John W. Schneider, accountant for the trustees, who testified the handling of the property had resulted in a deficit of $1723[illegible] ... Beck's property, consisting of 199 subdivision lots and deeds of trust, [illegible] apparent value of [illegible]
